

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

The bulk of the text from which the following translation was made is printed in the volume entitled Three Irish Glossaries, pp. 1—45, from a MS. in the library of the Royal Irish Academy which I call Codex A. The Additional Articles, now for the first time published, are printed from a transcript made by me some seven years ago from the Yellow Book of Lecan, a manuscript in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, containing the copy of Cormac's Glossary which I call Codex B.

The translation now printed was made by O'Donovan many years before his death, and appears never to have been revised by him after he had acquired the wide and accurate knowledge of the ancient Irish language which he possessed when I enjoyed the privilege of knowing and learning from him. This being so, I have thought it my duty to endeavour to print his version in such form as it would have assumed had he lived to publish it. But wherever I have ventured to make any change substantially affecting the meaning, O'Donovan's words have been given either in the text or a foot-note.

The transcript of O'Donovan's version, sent out for the purpose of the present publication, contained a large body of notes, philological, topographical, and historical. These required much sifting and abbreviation. But nothing, I think, of importance has been omitted. O'Donovan's notes are signed thus :—'O'D'. Those by the Editor are marked 'Ed.' Passages and words inserted in O'Donovan's text and notes are inclosed in square brackets. Attention is requested to the Corrigenda.

ADDENDA.

- P. 5, ANART. As to tig anail cf. infra p. 155 s. v. Sethor, 'unde est isin tris tig anail M.'
- P. 12, note (b) But see infra p. 61.
- P. 15, AMOR. The Skr. ambhas 'water,' ambhri-na 'watervessel' may be connected.
- P. 15, AUCHAIDE: ἀκούω is possibly cognate.
- P. 17, BUANANN. buan may be = Faunus, Umbr. soni.
- P. 23, BIND. Add pindarus is in Isidorus pandurus, πανδοῦρα, a three-stringed musical instrument.
- P. 25, BE NET, see Pictet, Revue archéologique, Juillet, 1868.
- P. 30, CRUIMTHEE. The Old Welsh premtor seems borrowed, like the Cornish prounder, prōnter 'priest', from praebendarius.
- P. 32, CROICENN. Add croc, crac, W. crach 'puny' may be connected with O.Lat. cracentes graciles, Skr. kriṣa.
- P. 33, COAIET. I would now refer urtica to an Italo-celtic root URT 'to burn,' whence the Irish ort .i. losgadh (gloss by Mac Firbis in H. 2. 15, p. 181), and possibly the man's name Ultán.
- P. 36, CRONTAILE. The t in cron-t-shaile (literally 'horn-spittle,' W. corn-boer) is inserted between n and the aspirated s (pronounced h) of saille just as in the German derent-t-halben, dessen-t-halben a t is inserted between n and h. So rigen-t-shaile 'tough spittle,' lán-t-shásad 'full satisfaction,' infra p. 77 s. v. Fled, min-t-shuilech (gl. luscus), aon-t-shlige 'one road,' aon-t-shuil 'one eye,' O'Don. Gr. 372, aon-t-shuim 'grand total.' So after feminine ā-stems governing the genitive, in ben t-shirg 'the woman of sickness,' Senchas Mór, p. 140, and after the preposition cen now gan: cent-t-shuile 'without eyes,' infra p. 58, s. v. Dall: gan t-shliocht 'without issue,' gan t-shult 'without cheerfulness,' Keating cited by O'Don. Gr. 393.
- P. 45, CULLACH. Add from caull 'a testicle,' W. caill. The Skr. kola 'hog,' with which M. Pictet compares cullach, has only one l. I suspect that the Celtic words are connected with Lat. callu-m, callu-s.
- P. 46, CA. The Old Irish cas 'house' is from the root κῠῖ, Skr. ṣṭ, whence καίμας, qui-es and Goth. hai-ma, Eng. home. The Low Latin cayum 'house' is probably from an Old-Celtic caion, of which the dat. or abl. sg. caio occurs in Endlicher's glossary, Revue archéologique, Mai 1868.
- P. 54, line 4. In dé-dól 'twi-light' the dól (root du 'to burn') is identical with the Laco-nian δαβελός (from δαφελός) i. e. δαλός 'torch.'
- P. 72, note (b) add If initial p has been lost, we may compare πέρκος, περκνός 'dusky,' the Skr. priṇi 'variegated,' 'spotted,' which is used especially of cows, and the Latin spurcus.
- P. 74, note (d) add 'But see mur .i. imat infra p. 116. s. v. Mér.
- P. 76, FERN. I now think this word must be an old preterite participle passive in -na (like lá-n 'ple-nus,' dá-n 'dō-num') from the root VAR 'to choose,' Skr. vri. The fern 'man' cited from Duál Laithne, where the nom. dual ferno in the phrase da-(fh) erno-er-ciach 'twelve men,' lit. 'two men on ten,' also occurs, may be for **feren*, **versno*, root VARS, whence Skr. vriśhai 'ram,' vriśha 'bull'.

- P. 78, note (e) add 'But cf. scindo i. dluge nech infra p. 154.'
- P. 86, line 5, etarlam is glossed in H. 2. 16, col. 108, by lamdas dogni an goba cein mbis iarnd i tinid 'lamdas (P) which the smith makes while (the) iron is in (the) fire.'
- P. 86, GART: add gart 'hospitality' is probably cognate with Latin grātus, Skr. gārta.
- P. 89, GUTH, add Probably GU, Skr. gu 'to sound,' Gr. γούω.
- P. 92, IARN. The forms iart, iarih remind one of the Old Breton hoiart in Run-hoiart, also Run-hoiarn. The Old-Celtic probably had the form isarto as well as isarno.
- P. 97, IMBARACH: imba ['in quo erit'] jubar.
- P. 104, LESC: add 'lose is cognate with λοζός, luxus.
- P. 110, line 2 add Skr. mā.
- P. 111, MUG-ÉIME, line 7. Dinn Trađui would in Old Welsh be Din Tri-đui. "Dwy is an appellative for several rivers, as Dwy fawr ['Big Dwy'] and Dwy fach ['Little Dwy'] in Arfon." Pugh.
- P. 117, MOLT: sult 'fat' may be cognate with stultus, stolidus, Skr. sthūla 'bulky,' 'fat,' sthūlatā 'bulkiness.'
- P. 117, MÁSS, add = μαστός 'breast,' 'udder,' 'knoll.'
- P. 117, MENDAT. The root is MAND, whence Skr. mandirā 'house,' mandurā 'stable,' Gr. μάνδρα 'stall,' with which M. Pictet (Orig. Indo-européennes, II. 19), puts the Ir. manrach 'sheepfold.'
- P. 117, NENAI. Add as to which see Pictet's Orig. Indo-européennes, I. 323.
- P. 132, OSSAR might just as well be equated with ὄσσερος.
- P. 132, OSNAD is for **sonad*, **svanātu* = M. Bret. huanat 'a sigh,' root SVAN 'to sound,' Skr. svana, Lat. sonus.
- P. 144, ROP (from **rup-vo-s*?) I would put with rup in Latin ru-m-po, rup-tu-s = Skr. rup-ta. From the root RUP or LUP come Zend raopi 'a kind of dog,' Skr. lopāka 'jackal,' Gr. ἄ-λώπηξ 'fox,' Lat. lupus 'wolf,' and (with the common change of p to c) the Irish luch 'mouse.'
- P. 164, UR, line 2, after dicitur insert [isna brethaib nemed 'in the Bretha Nemed,' F].
- P. 165, UIM, add but cf. Gr. οἰμή.

FURTHER CORRIGENDA.

- P. 8, AIRTHECH: dele the reference to Skr. atīyaças. For patika (which occurs in compound adjectives for patī, πῶσις, Goth. fath-s) is more likely the Skr. cognate.
- P. 11, A, line 5, for 'It will come' read 'I will bring (it)': cf. toi 'bring thou' infra s. v. Lethech. Line 14, omit 'but this seems wrong.'
- P. 24, line 3, for bratan read bratán: and cf. nocobiat brattána isind abaind-sin, Trip. B. 166, col. 2 ('there will not be salmons in that river').
- P. 31, CERBSIRE, for 'is a v' read 'is not a v'
- P. 35, CANÓIN, for 'It also meant' etc., read "The acc. dual of a cognate n-stem meaning canonicus is found on the Aran inscription," &c.
- P. 59, DUILE, line 6, for atchiu 'I see' read diliu 'I pray,' and note that gaibiu, guidiu and ibiu are originally d-stems, as appears from the 3d sg. pres. indic. gaib, guid and ib.
- P. 68, ÉC, line 3, for angew read angen
- P. 75, note (c), for sassud read sassad
- P. 100, note (a), for is read id
- P. 104, LOS CUIRN, line 3, for los read lost
- P. 110, n. (d), for quacz read quacx
- P. 117, MAOTHAL, for leth read leth
- P. 145, RER, line 3, for 'Hard' read 'Here (comes).' O'D is clearly right: uindri (spelt undreo in O'Curry's Lectures, pp. 490, 507) is a pronominal adverb meaning 'here.' O'Davoren's annsa is a blunder for annso, andso 'here'.
- P. 149, SEGAMLAÉ. Here again O'D is right: messtar bú 'cows are estimated'—the passive here as occasionally taking the accusative (bú=βούς)
- P. 160, note (b) line 2, for ormaisin read ormaisiu

FURTHER ADDENDA.

- P. 2, AMOS: The gloss in Leabhar Breac cited by O'D seems nanamus (gl. satilitum) quoted in Lib. Hymn. ed. Todd, 232.
- P. 5, ANART: the gen. pl. occurs twice in the Tripartite Life: "l. clocc 7 l. caillech naltóre 7 l. anart faraccaib hi tir condacht ('50 bells and 50 altar-chalices and 50 linen cloths he left them in the land of the Connaughtmen') Eg. 9. a. 2. na caillecha oc denum nananart altóra ('the nuns making the altar-cloths') i. Cochmaiss 7 Tigris 7 Lupait 7 Darercæ, ib. 17. b. 1.
- P. 8, AIRTHECH. The gen. sg. masc. is aithig, fem. aithige: luighe in aithigh thighe 7 na haithaighe thighe ('the oath of the man of the house and of the woman of the house'), O'Davoren 61. Hence aithiechus i. laochdacht 'heroism' ib. 49.

- AITHCHES: the suffix ess also occurs in manchess, Trip. B. 173.
- AIGEAN: isand oiden n-imechtrach 'into the external ocean' H. 2. 16. c. 391.
- AITTENN, gen. s. atinn, Senchas Mór, 166.
- AIRENDIL: an gach tigradh forrethar airndil nach suidi(g)thi anmann in eigill (in every place in which a trap is set animals are not to be put in danger) O'Dav. 82, éccell.
- P. 13, AISLINGH: is andsin din roindis boethfne in aislinge n-aurdaire .i. teora cathaire do aicsin do hi nim .i. cathair óir 7 cathair argait 7 cathair gloine ('so then B. related the remarkable vision, i. e. three cities which he saw in heaven, i. e. a city of gold and a city of silver and a city of glass'), Note on Féire, June 10.
- P. 14, ALCHUNG. The dat. sg. spelt ealchaing is in O'Curry's Lectures, 512.
- AINCES: as tré erchaoileadh foillsighter aincesa an betha (it is through definition are cleared up the doubts of the world), O'Dav. 83.
- ABRAS: intabras dungní incorp do dia (the work which the body does for God), Milan 36 r.
- ANNACH: O. Ir. andach, dat. anduch, Goidilica, p. 26.
- P. 15, AUCHAIDE is an emphatic form of the 2d. sg. imperative, and should have been rendered 'hear thou.'
- P. 16, AI: tomus n-ae 'measure of pleadings,' Senchas Mór, 18. lecem ae n-aicitail O'Dav. 47, 'let us leave a pleading (or case) of commentary' (i. e. requiring comment).
- P. 18, BACHALL a fem. ā-stem: gen. sg. inna bachla, O'Curry, Lect. 538, dat. bachaill Trip. Eg. 13 a. 2.
- P. 20, BIALL, gen. sg. béla, Senchas Mór, 166, 170.
- P. 30, CROSS: dobir cross ditsailiu forochtar dochinn (put a cross of thy saliva on top of thy head) Z. 926.
- P. 31, CREATRA: bert benén cretra di ó patrico ('B. took the consecrated elements to her from P.') et surrexit confestim viva, Trip. Eg. 16. a. 1.
- CERBSIRE: a cirpsere .i. a scoaire, Trip. Eg. 18. b. 2. cirbsire, O'Clery's Glossary.
- COIC. Athgein bothi domnaig a choice, Trip. Eg. 18. b. 2.
- P. 32, CROICENN, n. pl. croeni loeg nallaid ('hides of wild calves'). Note, Féire, March 5.
- CAISSEL: a fine example (with ss) is found on the Termon-fechin (co. Louth) inscription discovered in 1867 by George Du Noyer:—Oroit do ultan et do dubthach dorigni in caissel (pray ye for U. and for D. who made the caissel).
- P. 36, CIL. A similar phrase gar cian co tífá ('a short time till he shall come') occurs in a note to the Féire, Nov. 25, cf. batar for fhoesamaib cen moir (leg. céin móir) timchell herenn 'they were safe for a long time all round Ireland', Longes mac nUsnig. O'D is right in his rendering of gar cian co tís. His quotation from Horace should be cancelled.
- P. 38, line 4: notesctha a folt 7 a ingne cecha dardain chaplaite cecha bliadna cohaimsir adomnain ('his hair and his nails used to be cut every Maunday Thursday every year till the time of A.'), Note to Féire, Nov. 24.
- P. 39, CULIAN, nom. pl. dall-chuilein 'blind puppies', O'Dav. p. 51, araicht. Corn. coloin.
- CIL 'death' O'Davoren has cil .i. bas ('death') and quotes cotarlaic faodb fir cil (so that he made a truly deadly shot).
- P. 42, CUMAL, gen. sg. cumaile, Senchas Mór, 162.

- P. 44, CENDAS. O'Davoren has ceannas .i. arian (= frenum), and cites each gach eamhain ina cain cendas coir (a horse of each pair in his fine proper bridle).
- P. 45, CULLACH: cf. echcullach (stallion), muccullach (boar). Senchas Mór, 126.
- P. 47, CAM: midhach teora cam (a champion of three fights), .i. térna ó tri cama (he escaped from three fights) O'Davoren, 47.
CUACH NAIDM: mer fo cuachnaidm (finger under axe) occurs in O'Davoren, p. 64 s. v. cliath.
- P. 48, CACAID. See note on Félire, Sep. 9, and O'Clery's Glossary s. v. Cogaidh.
- P. 54, DRAC, W. dreic.
DROICHT: drochet bethad ('bridge of life') Sanctain's h. 4. gen. sg. droichitt, Senchas Mór, 124.
- P. 56, DEACH: cf. alt 7 dialt 7 recomarc a comreim, is and is comrag mbairdne, O'Dav. 65.
- P. 59, DEUTH: ise aithni in druith in corrcrechda dobeith ina édan (this is the means of recognizing the fool, the corrcrechda 'lump' to be in his forehead) O'Davoren, 69.
- P. 60, DERNA: gen. dernann, acc. pl. dolluid a fuil triana (n) dernanda ('their blood went through their palms') Trip. Eg. 15. a. 1.
- P. 63, As to the story of Macha, see O'Curry, Lectures, 527.
- P. 64, EMDHE, an emphatic 2d. sg. imperative like auchaide supra.
- P. 67, ÉGEM: arégi (gl. queritur), airégem (gl. querimonia).

CORMAC'S GLOSSARY

PRIMA LITTERA.

ADAM i.e. homo vel terrigena [.i. on talmuidecht 'from the earthiness' vel truncus .i. tamhan B].

ADOMNÁN [Adamnan B] i.e. homunculus.

A proper name—O'D. : a dimin. of the name Adam (disbegad anma Adaim, B) : doubtful whether a double dimin. (-án+án) or a compound with nán 'little' (a) = Lat. nānus, cf. perhaps the names Lomnanus, Lib. Arm. 16<sup>a</sup> 2, and Sescnanus, ibid. 9<sup>a</sup> 1, Flaithnán, gen. Flaithnáin—Chron. Scot. 274, Lachtnán, gen. Lachtnáin, ib. 304, LONGECNAN.—Ed.

ARD 'high or height', ab arduo [.i. onni is ard .i. collis .i. cnoc B].

Cognate with Lat. arduus and Zend eredhva.—Ed.

ADRAD 'adoration', ab adoratione [.i. on edurguidhe B].

M. Bret. azeuliff, W. addoli.—Ed.

ASGALT 'dearth', i.e. eis-geilt 'grasslessness', or as-colt 'foodlessness': [colt biad B].

This is ascalt in B and Chron. Scot. 214. As to the neg. prefix es- (Gaulish ex-, W. eh-), see Zeuss, 831. With geilt cf. oc geilt 'grazing' infra s. v. Serrach and gelid 'depascitur' Z. 432, Skr. girāmi, gildāmi deglutio. As to colt = πῶλος see Three Ir. Glossaries XXIX.—Ed.

ASGLAND OR ASGLANG 'a load on the shoulder' [?], i.e. huas-glaind 'over the shoulder'. Gland or glang i.e. a shoulder.

The meaning given by O'D. to asglang is a guess. Can as be O.Lat. ossum, Zend aṣta, Skr. asthi, Greek ἄστιον?—Ed.

ÁRAD 'a ladder', i.e. rith 'running', or riad 'going'; against á 'a hill'.
Á i.e. everything high or everything noble: i.e. á 'high'.

Aradh .i. dréimire 'ladder' O'Clery.—O'D. n. pl. ar it árid dogairter, ut dicitur scale vel caeli sunt sancti. Amra Col., Lebar na huidre.—Ed.

ADALTRACH 'adulterous', i.e. ab adulterio [.i. on adaltras B].

ADALTAIR 'adulterer', ab adultero.

ACAIS 'because', i.e. a causa [.i. on chuis B].

W. o achos, where achos, achaus seems = Lat. occasio.—Ed.

---

(a) Nan .i. beo ('little') ut dicitur nanus .i. abac ('dwarf') no lucharban ('pigmy', leprechaun), H. 2, 16, col. 120.

ALTROM 'nurture', id est ab eo quod est alo. [i. on brethir is alo ailim ata B].

B has Altram, which is explained 'nutritio', Z. 733, 743; gen. altrama.—Ed.

AICHER 'sharp', ab eo quod est acer i.e. fierce, or sharp, or strong.

Acher, Z. 928; W. egr, 'sharp' Br. égras 'verjuice'. Cognate with, but not borrowed from, acer with its long penult.—Ed.

AMOS i.e. am-fhos or an-fos, he who has no rest, but who moves from place to place.

B. adds i. o tigerna dialailiu 'from (one) lord to another'.—Ed. The meaning is that this word is compounded with am negative, and fos rest. The Four Masters use the word, spelt amhas, to signify a hireling soldier. In the Leabhar Breacc it translates the word satellites. It is now used in Munster to denote a bound or beagle.—O'D. From amos comes the diminutive amsán, of which the nom. pl. amsáin occurs, Féil. Prol. 152. I have also met amsaine and amsach—see Diunusach, infra.—Ed.

AR ['work of the plough'], ab eo quod est aro 'I plough'.

See Conair infra, p. 31. W. ar 'ploughed land'.—Ed.

ANNE [linne B] 'a circle', veteres [i. na sendaine B] enim ponebant an pro circo, unde dicitur annus [i. bliadain i. fa cuairt bis an bliadain B].

AIRCHES 'a trap or enclosure' i.e. ab arceo [i. on cumgach, B], i.e. because of its holding (a) whatsoever is put down (b) into it.

'A trap for catching wild hogs', H. 3, 18, p. 541.—O'D.

ANDSEIRG [Anserg B] 'greatly shrunk or wasted', i.e. difficult or painful is his state.

O'D.'s explanation of andseirg or anserg seems a guess. B. adds, no a ferg no a nasa.—Ed.

AIRGET 'silver' quasi argent i.e. ab argento.

This is a genuine Celtic word: cf. Argento-ratum, Argento-magus, and the rivername Argenteus: M. Bret. argant, Corn. arghans, arhans, W. ariant.—Ed.

ARCO FUIN DOM DIA, i.e. I pray, i.e. postulo veniam a deo vel gratias ago, vel I ask forgiveness a Deo post peccatum. Aliter arco [fuin] ab arceo finem Deo, i.e. I commend my end to God; quamvis primo peccavi, I ask, i.e. pardon from my God; arceo i.e. I bind.

The commencement of this article is translated from B—A being here corrupt. The glossographer's double explanation of fuin, from venia and from finis, shows that he really knew nothing about its meaning. O'D. cites a verse from Lebar na h-uidre, fo. 77, ascribed to Art Aenfhair [A. D. 220] son of Conn of the 100 Battles, in which the word occurs:

Arco fuin dom rig, ferr máin ná each máin:

Mo chorp úag in úaig, cona chloich chruaid cáin.

"I ask death (?) of my king, a treasure better than every treasure, My body perfect in a tomb, with its hard, fair stone".

Fuin also occurs infra, s.v. Fair, where it is clearly the opposite of 'sunrise'. Connected with fuin are fuined in the phrases fuined gréne 'sunset', Z. 432, 6 thurgabáil gréine

(a) Better 'because that it compresses'. B. has i. larsinni doimarg inni teit ind.—Ed.

(b) A. has focherd, read fochertur; O'D. 'driven'.

co funed (which reminds one of Skr. avanati) and the Old Welsh plural funid (gl. obitus i. occassus) Juvenius, p. 10. Fuin is probably borrowed from Lat. funus 'burial', 'death'. The verb arco 'I ask' (cf. W. arch 'a request', Lat. arc-esso, Skr. rch), is a good example of the old 1 pers. sg. pres. indic. act. in -u (-o), of which several examples are given in the Beitraege zur vergl. sprachf. III. 47, 48.—Ed.

ASTOL 'spear', i.e. ab hastula, i.e. a lance or a long spear.

B has Astul, and adds no assu-de a dul. Astal amra uas duillind i. alissiu amra H. 2. 16. col. 90. Astal i. slis no ga leabhair, O'Clery.—Ed.

ASCAID [Ascath B] i.e. 'a hero', unde asgaete [ascata B], i.e. heroic or championlike, from the terribleness of the hero, like a shade or like a phantom.

Ascada (gl. emuli) Milan, asoadaið (gl. aemulis), Z. 1064, seem to belong to this. So also aisscecht 'contention', which Ebel (Beitr. V. 13) brings from aith-sech—root sak 'to follow' (sequi).—Ed.

AN OR AM, a Gaelic negative: as there is nath 'science', and annath 'ignorance'; em 'swift', and ancim 'slow'; neri 'strength', and amneri 'weakness'.

An is the Skr. an- a-, Gr. ἀν, ἀ-, Lat. in-, Goth. un-. It occurs in several Old Celtic names: as An-drastá, An-calites, An-valonnácos, An-darta. The other particle am- (see Amos, supra), was identified by Siegfried with Skr. sámi 'half', ἡμι, sēmi—see Zeuss G.C. 829—and the Vedic nēma 'half' with Ir. nem- 'non'.—Ed.

ADAMRA 'admirable', ab admiratione [i. on ingantos B].

Hence adamrugur 'admiror', Z. 444.—Ed.

AURDAM 'an addition to a house' i.e. aur-doim, i.e. aur-tegdais 'attached house' i.e. side-house.

B. explains aurtegdais by fri tegdais anechtair 'against a house on the outside'. See the Four Masters A. D. 1070, where we read that the Gospel of Columcille was stolen from the western erdom of the church of Kells.—O'D. Aurdam seems = a Greek παράδομος.—Ed.

ALMSAN 'alms', quasi elimsan ab eleemoxya. Or quasi almusson (?) for high (a) is the voice of charity.

The son in almusson seems = Lat. sonus, Z. 969.—Ed.

ART, three things it means (b). Art, i.e. 'noble', unde dicitur fine airt or art fine 'a noble tribe'. Art, i.e. 'god', unde dicitur Eochaid find fuath n-airt i.e. 'Eochaid the Fair with the form of a god', i.e. from the comeliness of that man. Item Cúchulainn post mortem dixisse perhibetur domemaid art uasal 'a noble art, i.e. a noble god, was put to death'. Art i.e. a stone or a grave-flag, cujus diminutivum artéine i.e. a small stone, unde vel inde dixit Guaire Aidne:—

Dochélit [dochélit]	They will hide, [they will hide]
mór n-amra ind artéini	Much of marvel, the little stones ( c )
béte for lige Marcáin	That will be on the grave of Marcáin
maic Aeda maic Marcéini.	Son of Aed, son of Marcéine.

(a) 'loud' O'D. (b) 'are called' O'D. (c) 'The little stone will conceal great nobility' O'D.

Eochaid find fuath n-airt was son of Feidlimid Rechtmar and uncle of Art Aenfhír, King of Ireland, A. D. 220. The allusion to Cuchulainn is from a legend that that hero, who was slain A. D. 2, appeared to his friends after his death, and told them 'romemad art uasal', meaning himself. This legend will be found in the Book of Leinster (H. 2, 18) fol. 78b. Guaire Aidne, king of Connaught, died A. D. 662. The lines above quoted probably relate to Marcán, Chief of Hy-Many, slain A. D. 650.—O'D. As to art 'god', see Three Ir. Glossaries, XXXIII, and cf. the Old-Welsh name Art-mail (leg. Arthmail 'deiservus'?). As to art 'a stone', see Three Ir. Glossaries, XXVIII: art and anart are glossed by cruid 7 maoth, H. 2: 16. col. 88.—Ed.

ARG i.e. three things it means (a): arg i.e. 'drop', unde dicitur ru-arc i.e. ro-arg i.e. a great drop i.e. a great flowing of wet. Arg secondly, i.e. 'hero', unde dicitur argda i.e. heroic, cujus uxor arggeind [arggen R]. Argeind then (signifies) i.e. it is natural (gein) for an arg 'hero' to be with her, and it is good for him. Vel arg-cuin, i.e. from arg 'hero' and cuiniu 'woman'. Arg, moreover, i.e. 'famous', unde dicitur aircetul i.e. arg-cetul i.e. a poem (cetul) famous (arg) from the frequency with which it is sung in concert (b). It cannot be interpreted a 'poem of heroes' arg, because it is not for heroes tantum, i. e. only, that it is composed.

Arg 'drop' may have lost an initial p, and be radically connected with Lat. spargo and even the name of the Vedic rain-god Parjanya (also a word for 'raincloud'). Arg 'hero' may be the Greek ἄρχος, Skr. arha-s. Arg 'famous', is perhaps only an intensive prefix = ἀρχι—Ed.

ABB 'abbot' ab eo quod est πάππας, vel a nomine hebraico quod est abba 'pater'.

ATHAIR 'father': hoc ater primitus dicebatur, quasi pater.

ALT ('cliff' or 'height') ab allitudine.

W. allt 'cliff', Corn. als (gl. littus), Bret. aut (gl. ripa).—Ed.

ANA i.e. mater deorum hibernensium (c). It was well she nursed deos i.e. the gods: de cujus nomine dicitur ana i.e. plenty [and the] Da chích Anainne 'Two Paps of Ana' west of Luachair nominantur, ut fabulaverunt (d). Vel ana quod est annio vel aniud Graece [?] quod interpretatur 'dapes' [i. biad B].

Ana, or as she is most usually called Danann, was the mother of the three chieftains of the Tuatha dé Danann, Brian, Iuchar, and Iucharbu, who were accounted gods for their feats of necromancy. The "Two Paps", in the district of Luachair Deaghaidh in the County of Kerry, are two mountains, still so called, in the barony of Magunihy.—O'D. As to ana, God is said to be the well (topur) of the dne in Z. 1052 and in Z. 1041, (as a gloss on the Epist. ad Coloss. III, 5: avaritiam quas est simulacrorum servitus) am. fogníther ídíl sic fogníther donaib áníb 'as idols are served, sic is service done to the treasures'. For the connection between words signifying 'god' and 'wealth' cf. Lat.

(a) 'are called' O'D. (b) conchanar 'is recited' O'D.

(c) So in H. 3. 18. p. 635, col. 3: Iath n-anann i. Eiriu i. Anu mater deorum ut gentiles fingunt. The name of Anu re-occurs infra s. v. Buanann.—Ed.

(d) B reads: 'ut fabula fertur i. amail aderaít na scelaide' as the story-tellers say'.—Ed.

deus, divus and dives, Ops 'bona dea' and opes, in-ops, Slav. bogŭ 'god' and bogatŭ 'rich'. And see Schleicher, Beitr. IV, 359.—Ed.

ANRUTH nomen secundi gradus poetarum.

Re-occurs infra p. 6.—Ed.

AMRATH ('a funeral elegy') i.e. nem-rath 'non-wage' i.e. reward is not given after it, for it is after one's death it is composed. Aliter, there is omus or amos i.e. death, the am then is from amos. Amrath, then, is death-wage i.e. a reward after death, which is given by the family of him for whom it [?] is made (a). Sed hujus postremum non tam laudo [i. ni is firindige 7 ni moluim in dedenac B.]

AED i.e. fire. By inverting the noun aed it becomes dea, i.e. the goddess of fire, et quod Vestam illam deam esse ignis fabulaverunt, Vesta dea ignis dicitur i. e. aed.

Cognate with αιθος.—O'D. Also with Lat. aedes, Skr. edhas 'firewood', AS. ād, root IDH. Hence too the Gaulish tribe-name Aedui and in Welsh aidd 'warmth'.

AMNAS 'forgiveness' quasi amnes, ab eo quod est amnestia i.e. all-forgiveness or entire forgiveness.

AURSA [aurso B] 'a post or prop' i.e. airisiu 'rest', because the house rests on it. [In margine] Aursa i.e. or-sin i.e. one edge (or) to house, another to weather (sin = W. hin).

O'D renders "because one (post) is at the east, the other at the weather side of the house".—Ed. Aursa is now written ursa, and understood to mean a prop and the jamb of a door.—O'D. The dative sg.—isin ursain—occurs infra s. v. Nescóit.—Ed.

AITTIU 'recognition' [?] i.e. aith-detiū i.e. detiū iterum, it having been recognised [?] by another person prius.

A law-term denoting legal recognition, as when a son recognises or accepts the liabilities of his father, or when a landlord recognises a covenant made by his vassal or tenant—O'D. di detiū, di chomdetiū ..... di aititiū, Senchas Mór, 64, where it is rendered 'acknowledgment': so aititiū in the Cogad G. r. G. 54: the dat. sg. aititin, Senchas Mór, p. 140, is rendered 'control' [?] while do aititin, ib. p. 142, is rendered 'to be faithful'. The verb ro-aititnigstar 'acknowledged' ib. 156.—Ed.

ANART 'a linen cloth' i.e. in-irt i.e. irt 'death' ut dixit Moran mac Main, as he was in the house in which he was nursed [?] tig anail 'dath don dig irt' 'colour of the drink of irt' i.e. of the drink of death. Anart, then, (signifies) death-like for its paleness: it is like the hue of death, for there is nothing of redness therein, quasi exsanguis mortuus [i. amail nech marbh gan fuil B]

(a) nart gl. linteum occurs in Lib. Arm. 177 b. 1.—Ed. Moran, son of Moen, was chief judge to king Feradach Finnfechtnach in the first century. See Four Masters, A. D. 14.—O'D.

AUDACHT 'a dying testament' i.e. uath-fecht i.e. when one sets out on a journey (fecht) of (the) grave (uath), i.e. of death.

Occurs, spelt edoct and aidacht, in Lib. Arm. 18 b. 1.—Ed.

(a) A aide lógairrecht furri which O'D. renders by 'loud lamentation for it'. Lead lógairrecht furri?—Ed.

ANOMAIN i.e. a name of a poetical composition, i.e. án-shómáin 'noble profit' (i.e. a name of the compositions from their profits), i.e. because of the greatness of its reward and its rank; and it is the poem of the Ollam, unde dicitur 'the anomain sustains the ollam'.

Text somewhat doubtful. B has inloing ollam anomain 'the ollam sustains the anomain': cf. anomain cetharreich infra, s. v. Bót.—Ed.

ÁNRUTH nomen secundi gradus poetarum i.e. the rich stream—sruth—of beautiful praise (which flows) from him with the stream of treasures—áne—(which flows) to him in return.

The ánruth's number of stories was 175, Senchas Mór, p. 44. After the synod of Druim Ceta his retinue was reduced to twelve (xii. i cléir ind ánraid).—Ed.

ANAIR i.e. name of a poetical composition: it is the poem which the clé makes i.e. an-dír not satire (dír) but it is praise. Though this is now (applied) similarly to every kind of eulogy (a) it is more appropriate to the present species, for it is the ingenuity of the poets that invented these names to distinguish the various species, and it was not (the) subject matter (b) that was considered by them.—B inserts another etymology: Anair dono for reith in ree-so .i. aon a hiar .i. an aen tarmfortcend a forcend ocus is debricht a deach 7 a tarmfortcendaib 7 eitsechtaib deochraiges fria nath debrichta. 'Anair runs in this manner quasi aon a hiar 'its end is one', i.e. the termination at the end (of each line) is a monosyllable; and its metre is debricht, and (it is) by its terminations and jingles that it is distinguished from the nath debrichta'.

The examples of the metre called anair which are given in the Book of Ballymote, fol. 162, represent it as composed in lines of six syllables, whereas the examples of debricht are in lines of eight syllables. So that the assertion, that the metre of anair is debricht, seems to be a mistake, arising, perhaps, from an error of transcription.—O'D. Pictet, Nouvel Essai sur les inscriptions gauloises, p. 79, connects with anair the Gaulish name Anare-viscos, which he proposes to explain by 'carminum laudis gnarus'.—Ed.

ANFOBRACHT, the name for a man who is in a decline, and whom disease reduces, so that there is no fat nor juice in him, for the noun bracht signifies fat.

So in Senchas mór, pp. 124, 140, di anbobracht .i. in ben t-sirg cin súg nirt 'the woman in a decline without juice of strength'.—Ed. So, too, in O'Clery's Glossary and the Four Masters, A. D. 1114.—O'D. A has Anforbracht.—Ed.

ADART 'a pillow' quasi ad-irt, a property (adae) of death (irt), for sleep is accounted as death, and irt is a name for death, and death is a name for the sleep. It is natural to lie upon a pillow, and it is a sign of sleep, unde dicitur descaid chodulta freslige 'lying down is sleep's leaven' (c). (Aliter) Adart i.e. ath-ard 're-height' (d) because it is higher than the rest of the bed.

Adhart is still used in Kilkenny and Waterford for 'pillow' and ceann adhart for 'head of the bed'. Bás fri h-adhart or bás le adhart is used by Keating to

(a) 'laudatory poem'.—O'D.

(d) 'additional elevation'.—O'D.

(b) lit 'nature'.—Ed.

(c) 'beginning'.—O'D.

denote death on one's bed. Eirgis an ríg dia adhart fri maeth-eirgi na gréine glan-aile: robdar daine ag eirgi an aenacht dia n-adartaib 'the king rose (a) from his pillow at the soft rising of the bright-fair sun: men were at the same time rising from their pillows'. Book of Fermoy, fol. 52.—O'D.

AIRE 'the temple' [?] i.e. of the head, i.e. ar-áui (b) because it grows in front of the ear. Aire also is a name for everything high.

B has Ara i. ar áui i. fria ó anair. Are i. re uachtarach in duine ('the upper part of a man') A cech n-ardd 7 hf cech n-isel 'A' (means) everything high and I everything low.—O'D. Aire occurs in the acc. dual in the S. Gall incantation, Z. 926: dabir im du dá are 'put them round thy two aires': O'D's explanation 'temple' seems a guess. Can it be the cheek and (as Siegfried thought) connected with αυρεά? The dui explained by ó (i.e. cluas 'ear') is = Lith. ausis, the Latin auris.—Ed.

AITHLE 'an old cloak' [?] i. ath-fholae i.e. it is worse than a cloak (folae).

B has: is mesae cid indas fola.—Ed. aithle i. seanbhrat 'old garment' O'Clery.—O'D. But cf. aithle thened, infra s. v. Aithinne, and the adverbial phrases as a aithle sin 'thereafter', Senchas Mór, p. 302, and do aithle.—Ed.

AXAL or AXAIL 'the proper name of an angel', ab auxilio quod angeli hominibus praebent.

B adds: on fhurtacht dobeirsium do chach 'from the aid which he gives to every one'.—Ed. O'Donnell, Vit. Columbæ i. 35, tells us that this was the name of S. Columbkille's guardian angel.—O'D.

ARATHAR 'plough' ab aratro.

B adds: on trebad 'from the ploughing'. Arathair the gen. sg. occurs infra s. v. Clithar sét. Corn. aradar, W. aradr, M. Bret. arazr (leg. arazr?).—Ed. The word for 'plough' now used is céchia—arathar is everywhere forgotten.—O'D.

ANA i.e. small vessels which were at the wells under the strict laws, unde dicitur damaid [daimid B] ána for lindib 'they assign vessels to pools' (c); and it is of silver that they used to be oftenest; ut Mac dá Cherda dixit on Cnoc Rafann:

This great rath whereon I am (d)
Wherein is a little well with a bright cup (án),
Sweet was the voice of the wood of blackbirds,
Round the rath of Fiacha son of Moineche.

Now, for the drinking of weary men thereout they were left over them, at the wells, and it was by kings they were put at them (in order) to test their laws.

Mac dá cherda ['son of two arts'], called also Comgan, was a saint and poet of the Desies of Munster, of the middle of the 8th century, one of the eight celebrated students of Armagh. Cnoc Rafann is a parish and townland in the barony of Middlethird, County Tipperary, and the rath referred to is still to be seen about 2 miles N. of Cahir. It was the seat of Fiacha Muillethan, son of Eogan Mór, king of Munster A. D. 175, and of Moncha, daughter of Del, son of Dacrega, the Druid; and it remained in the possession of his descendants, the O'Sullivans, until the year 1192, when the English drove them from the plain of Cashel and erected within this rath a strong castle, of which only one small tower now remains. A silver cup lying at a well was a good test of the respect shown to the law if it remained undisturbed.—O'D. An, a fem. d-stem, has perhaps lost an initial p, and may be connected with the Skr. pānam 'a drinking-vessel'.—Ed.

(c) 'wells' O'D.

ATHGABÁIL 'lawful reprisal', because every one recovers (athgaib) his right through it. Aliter gabáil ('distress') the three cows which Assal first seized from Mog, son of Nuada: Athgabail then [was] the six cows [replevied] on the next day. Lege in the Fenchas Mór.

The passage in the Senchas Mór here referred to is printed at p. 64 of the volume of ancient laws published at Dublin in 1865.—Ed. Assal was the son of Conn of the 100 battles and held office under him as aithechfortha. Mog, son of Nuada, held a similar office under Coirpre, king of Ulster. A case had occurred between the two kings, which led to the seizure by Assal of three cows belonging to the king of Ulster's people. But they having been rescued by Mog (a), Assal seized six cows in reprisal on the following day. These proceedings are here referred to as the first case on record of legal reprisal or athgabáil.—O'D. See further Dr. Ferguson's paper in the Transactions of the R. I. Academy, in which many coincidences between the English and Brehon laws of distress and replevin are pointed out with much ingenuity and learning.—Ed.

AITHECH 'a champion' [?] i.e. aith 'keen' and oech 'foe'. Aithech, then, is a keen foe, and it is a name for a gallant hero only.

AITHCHES i.e. uxor ejus, quomodo láiches a laico [i. on tuata B]

Aithech is possibly = Skr. atyaças 'much-renowned'. In aithches, láiches the feminine termination is borrowed from the Latin -issa, Gr. -ισσα.—Ed. In O'D's supplement to O'Reilly aithech-tighe is explained 'the man or woman of the house'.—Ed.

AUNASC 'earring' i.e. nasc 'ring', ae 'of an ear', i.e. a gold ring which is round the fingers or in the ears of the sons of the nobles.

As to au, gen. ae v. supra s. v. Aire: nasc is cognate with Lat. nexus, necto.—Ed.

AIGEAN 'ocean' i. e. óg-fhaen 'perfectly flat' as if it is spread out.

B. reads aigen, but the W. eigiawn (OW. **eiciaun*) seems to show that A is here right. Benfey, I think, has compared a Skr. d-çayāna rept-keīmeroc, to which he refers ώκεανός. O'Clery has aighén i. fairge 'sea': faen=W. gwaen.—Ed.

AITTENN 'furze' i. e. aith-tenn or aith-linn, because it is sharp (aith) and lacerating (tenn). Unde dixit Mac Samain [or Maolodrain B]

Not dear (to me is) a sharpshrub

Which is on the side of the hedge.

Its foliage has defecated (?) me for ever (b):

Its wooden thorns (?) do not defend me.

The bard Mac Samain flourished in the middle of the eighth century, and was one of the eight celebrated students of Armagh. In H. 3, 18, p. 112, he is styled a Brehon, and the verses here cited are alluded to. In B these verses are given thus:—

Nibu inmain fid fuirne

sancan asas im thuirbe

adom chumben a dule

nim anaico a fidrube.

Not dear was a lowly [P] tree

Which here and there grows round Turvey.

Its leaves tear me:

Its wooden thorns do not defend me.

Turvey is near Dublin.—O'D. aittenn = W. eithin.—Ed.

(a) The cows escaped, and returned to their calves.—Ed.

(b) 'Its foliage for ever shelters me'. O'D. But is not romráin for rom-shráin?

AURDÚINE 'antefort' i.e. at the doors of the forts, which is made by the artizans (a).

Probably a παρατείσιμα.—Ed.

AIRBER 'a load carried in the arms' [?] : to the east (in front) of thee thou bearest it between thy two arms, for to the west of thee thou bearest the loads (aire) in general. Air then is everything eastern, ut est Airmuma 'East-Munster', 'Ormond'. But ir is everything that is furthest from thee, i.e. Irmuma 'West-Munster', the Munster that is furthest from thee, that is Irmuma. Et ut dicitur Ara airthir 'eastern Aran', for there are the three Arans there i.e. Ara airthir 'eastern Aran' is the nearest to Ireland. Ara irthir 'western Aran' is the nearest to the Ocean, i.e. is furthest from Ireland westwards. But this is the most western Ára in the world.

O'D.'s rendering of airber seems a guess: aire 'burden' occurs in Z. 584 line 37.—Ed.

AINE 'name of a place', a nomine Aine, daughter of Eogabail.

This place is a parish in the County Limerick, barony of Small County, now called Knockany, from a conspicuous hill, which was anciently called Druim Chollechoille 'hill of the hazelwood', and was in the ancient territory of Deise beag 'little Decies'. Aine was of the Tuath dé Danann race. See H. 3, 17, p. 781, and the Four Masters, A.D. 186.—O'D.

ABARTA [Abbartu B] 'benediction' i. a seventh of the person's food is taken (as a reward for the benediction). This is a lawful abarta 'price of benediction'. It is for his benediction alone that the one gives it to the other, not at all for its peculiar merit, but for his saying to the other 'I say the benediction': ar chobele [?] then is it given.

The word abarta signifies properly the pronouncing of a benediction, from abraim 'I speak or pronounce', and is transferred to denote the complimentary reward given for pronouncing a benediction or the fine imposed for not pronouncing it. In H. 3, 17, p. 408, in a lawtract mentioning the fines payable for neglect of various duties is the following: Im abartain i. im in nemabartain im nembendachad sechtmad biata in graid na derna in bendachad 'For abarta i.e. for the non-abarta i.e. for non-benediction (the fine is) a seventh of the feeding of the person, according to his rank, who did not make the benediction'. It was an ancient custom for workmen on completing any work and delivering it over finished to their employer to give it their blessing. This was the abarta, and if it was omitted, the workman was subject to a fine or loss of a portion of his hire, equal to a seventh part of his feeding or refection—the amount of the refection being settled by the Brehon law in proportion to the rank of the art or trade which he professed. In the same lawtract occurs the following: im abartain mná diaraile sechtmad lánbiata na mná na derna in bendachad 'for the abarta of one woman to another, the seventh part of the full refection of the woman who did not give the blessing'.—O'D.

AILGES 'a derogatory request' then, i.e. geis a request. It is for disgrace (ail) then only that this request is made and not for praise: the seventh part of the price of honour of him of whom the ailges is asked, this is the lawful ailges.

When a man was requested to perform something impossible, for the purpose of exposing him to ridicule or disgrace, he was entitled by the Brehon law to demand a fine or reparation equal to the seventh part of the price fixed by law as the price of his honour [lóg einig (a)], which varied according to his rank or degree.—O'D. Ailgeis is explained by ollgeis 'great prohibition', in O'D's supplement to O'Reilly, where also ailgeis in-dligthech 'an unlawful request' is cited.—Ed.

ATHABAE 'deadly nightshade' (quasi athabath from ath intensitive [?] and bath 'death').

Occurs infra s.v. Orc treith. A word tathabha which seems cognate is given in O'D's supplement and rendered by 'white lily root'.—Ed.

AIMINN 'delightful' ab eo quod est amœnum [i. aibind B.]

This word is now written aoibhinn.—O'D.

AIRCHINNECH 'an erenach': ἀρχός Graece excelsus Latine dicitur. Airchinnech then (signifies) 'noble head'.

After 'latine' B has, airchend óg usal cend comlan 'noble perfect head'. "Colgan's Irish etymology (ar 'over' and ceann 'a head') is no doubt the true one, as is evident from the corresponding Welsh arbennig". Todd, St. Patrick, pp. 162, 163. Airchinnech means 'princeps' in Z. 1046 gl. 14. Nau-airchinnech means 'naucerus' in Lib. Armach. 188 b. 2. In Middle Irish airchinnech is glossed by 'archidiaconus' (Ir. Glosses, p. 75, No. 449).—Ed.

AMBUAE i.e. not fundamental (or original): buae (signifies) everything fundamental (or original).

Buae is doubtless cognate with Skr. bhava 'origo', root bhū.—In O'D's supplement ambuae gen. ambui is glossed by deoraid 'advena' and by drochfer 'a bad man'.—Ed.

ADAE i.e. ad dee 'to God' i.e. due to God.

This word is explained 'glorious' in H. 2. 16 [col. 88] and said to be derived from the Greek: adae Graece i.e. gloriosus Latine vel adae ad dee i. convenit deo gloria.—O'D.

Ada is explained 'due', 'legally due' in O'D's supplement to O'Reilly.—Ed.

ALTAN 'razor' i.e. ail 'edge' and teinn 'sharp cutting', should it so happen.

Acc. sg. altain, Milan codex: W. ellyn, M. Bret. autenn.—Ed.

ADANN 'a rushlight', i.e. one rushlight, ut poeta

'A rushlight' (adann), a rushlight.

Should it happen in thy bright mansion,

For God's sake light it not quickly

For sake of quick talk that profits not'.

Ut dixit Colmán son of Lénine:

"As blackbirds to swans, an ounce to a mass,

Forms of peasant women to forms of queens,

Kings to Domnall, a murmur to a concert,

An adann to a candle, [so is] a sword to my sword!"

(a) W. enebwerth, O. Bret. oneppwerth. With cinech, cnep, which primarily mean 'face', cf. Skr. anika Zend ainika.—Ed.

S. Colmán Mac Lenine was the founder of the see of Cloyne and died 24 Nov. A. D. 604, aged about 80 years. He had been poet to Aed Caem king of Cashel about the middle of the 6th century. The verses here quoted were pronounced by him at the synod of Druim Ceta, according to the Book of Leinster fo. 8, where they are given with an interlineary gloss. By 'my sword' in the last verse, the poet probably means the bardic power of satire which he possessed, and which was more powerful than a sword.—O'D. I find in one of my transcripts from Lebar na h-uidre Colmán's quatrain, with a gloss, as follows:—

Táncatar farsein na filid isin n-airecht 7 dúan molta léo dó 7 aidbsi (i. corus cronain) ainm in chitil sin 7 ba céol derscaigthech hé ('thereafter came the poets into the assembly and with them a song of praise for him, and aidbsi was the name of that music, and it was a splendid music'), ut Colmán mac Lénéne dixit

Luin oc heolaib ' uingi o[c] dirnaib<sup>2</sup>
crotha ban n-æthech oc crothaib rigna rig ic Domnall dord ic aidbsi<sup>3</sup>
adand oc cainnill ' colc ' oc mo choile-se.

7 innóenecht dognitís in ceol-sin, 'and they used to make that music at one time' (i.e. in concert). With adann are connected adannadh 'the candlelighter in a church', O'D.'s supplement to O'Reilly, and adannaim 'I kindle'.—Ed.

A i.e. a wain or a car or a chariot, ut Fer Muman a quibusdam flebilibus audivit in aquilonali parte [i. mar docualaid fer muman don taoib tuaidhde o dainib truaga a(c) coine B.]

"Inn éssar dam do á" ? "Is thy car lent to me" ?
"Tó mani má mo á : "It will come unless broken (is) my car :
Ara taire mo á mo mó". Let my car come back early".
"Mani má do á tó". "Unless broken (is) thy car it will come".

O'D. renders this quatrain thus: "Will you lend me your car? I will if you do not break it. Will my car be returned soon? It shall if your car be not broken". But éssar is the third sg. passive of tasaim (a). The second tó is according to O'D. glossed by tiocfadh in an extract by Eugene Curry from a ms. belonging to "Wm. Monck Mara Esq". and by tiocfuidh in a ms. of the R. I. Academy No. 169, p. 229. It is the Welsh daw 'veniet'. Ara is the common conjunction Z. 679, which precedes the imperative, Z. 680. In the ms. last cited the first tó is glossed by béarad, but this seems wrong. Mó is = W. moch, which Siegfried equated with Lat. moz. A, for * aga, seems cognate with O. Norse ök vehiculum gen. akar.—Ed.

Fer Muman might be rendered 'Munsterman', but it seems rather to be a proper name, as he is called Fear Mumhan mac Echenach in a ms. quoted by Dr. O'Connor in the Stowe Catalogue, treating of the laws of Cormac mac Airt. In the ms. H. 3, 18, p. 637, two lines of his poetry are quoted to exemplify the meaning of nat [borrowed from Latin nates]: "Nat .i. tón, ut dixit Fear Mumhan:—

Asbéra fiach gblom grác The barebeaked raven will say grác, ac creim nat námat anocht Gnawing foemen's buttocks tonight.

1. deróil na luin i farrad na n-ela 'petty (are) the blackbirds in comparison with the swans'.
2. i. dirna ainm do mair moir 'dirna is a name for a great mass'.
3. i. deróil cach céol i farrad aidbsi 'petty (is) every music in comparison with aidbsi'.
4. i. deróil oenchainneil beo hi farrad cainle moire 'petty (is) one little candle in comparison with a large candle'.
5. i. claidib 'a sword'.
(a). I have not met this verb, but the verbal noun tasacht 'loan' gen. iasachto, iasachta is of common occurrence. Perhaps we should read éssair or tasair and regard it as a 2nd sg. deponential.—Ed.

Fragments of his poetry are given in H. 3, 17. The quatrain above cited is quoted in this ms., p. 662, to prove that mó means móch 'early'—O'D.

AITIRE 'hostage' i.e. between (iter) the two (dé) i.e. between two covenanters.

In Senchas Mór, p. 60, aitire is rendered 'guarantee': at p. 118 it is mis-spelt aitaire and rendered 'hostage'. Aitire cairde, ib. 192, is rendered 'hostage in a territorial matter'. At p. 232 slan n-aitire is glossed by in lanad n-eirci dlighid in t-aitiri i telgud aitiris air 'the full 'eric'-fine to which the hostage is entitled for casting hostageship upon him'.—Ed.

ANGEL 'angel' ab eo quod est angelus .i. bonus nuntius i.e. a good messenger, unde Scoti dicunt aingel-solas ('angel-bright') i.e. sunny i.e. joyous.

AIGRERE 'a judge' quasi aige réire 'chief of judgment' (riar) i.e. a brehon.

AIGNE 'a pleader' i.e. a man who pleads (aiges) a cause (ái) i.e. eloquent discourse [?] or a covenant.

B has 'fer aiges áí no fer gníes áí 'a man who makes a cause'.—O'D. the brehon or in t-aighne 'the pleader' accompanied a person taking athgabáil or withernam Senchas Mór p. 84. The phrases aigne tagra, aigne toruill occur ib. 294. As to ai see infra p. 16.—Ed.

AIRNDEL ['a deer-trap' ?] i.e. air-indel i.e. a noble setting is it.

O'D. conjectured airndel to be a birdtrap. Eugene Curry told me it was 'a set spear'. Mere guesses. Bir airndil 'the spear (veru) of a trap' is cited by O'D. Suppt. s. v. Bir. In lieu of indeal n-amra hí B has indel aire.—Ed.

AITHINNE [aithenne B], 'fire-brand' i.e. aith-tene or aithle thened 'remnant of fire'.

B adds: no aith-tene .i. tene aith ('sharp fire') no aith tenna .i. fuidle [leg. fuigle] na crann ('leavings of trees'): aithinne (gl. torris, gl. fax) Z. 726.—Ed.

APSTOL 'apostle' i.e. ab postulo, i.e. ad dominum postulo i.e. I summon (a).

AINDER i.e. a woman i.e. not a der, not a girl, der enim Graece (b) filia vel virgo vocatur.

Ainder, now ainnear, is still understood to mean a marriageable young woman.—O'D. The W. anner 'heifer' seems cognate.—Ed.

ANIDAN 'impure' [?] i.e. an a negative, idan however i.e. idon ab eo quod est idoneus i.e. faithful.

The nom. pl. m. of idan occurs in Z. 1060: bat idain fri cach réit (gl. in omnibus fidem bonam ostendentes) 'let them be faithful in every thing'. Anidan would therefore rather seem to be 'unfaithful'. O'Clery, however, explains it by neamglan.—Ed.

ADBA OTHNOE i.e. adba uath onae or uinde, uath 'clay' and ond [gen. uinde] 'a stone' i.e. a habitation (adba) of clay and stone, ut dixit (poeta).

Lia ('stone') is he (masculine)—lith rolass—

According to the structures of sages and histories.

Ond ('stone') is it (neuter) according to (the) nature of rock.

The clock ('stone') is she (feminine) iarrastair (?)

(a) tóchuirimm 'I send'.—O'D.

(b) Inserted from B. The alleged word 'dear' 'daughter', which appears in O'Clery and O'Reilly, and has misled Zeuss (G. C. p. 45). Pictet (Origy. II, 363), Max Müller and others, has perhaps originated in this imaginary Greek der.—Ed.

This quotation is evidently taken from some old work on the gender of nouns.—O'D. It must have been written when the existence of three genders (here distinguished by é, sí, ed, the Irish pronouns for he, she and it) was recognised in Irish. Compare Demi and Traeth infra. Lith rollass seems one of those chevilles or expletives which unfortunately occur so often in Irish verse. O'D. renders it by 'a fact which is evident'. For iarrastair B has iar saor-dataid, which O'D. renders 'when dressed by art'.—Ed.

AIGILLNE 'servitude' i.e. auco gillnae (a) i.e. when the man gave a sét taurclotha to another, i.e. the price of his honour on receiving cows from him, it is meet (auco) for him afterwards to yield servitude (gillne) to that man and to receive cows from him according to the custom of chieftainry. Though he desires to accept cows from another, he cannot, but (must) accept them from the man from whom he gets the seoit taurclotha. Now, although after accepting cows according to the custom of chieftainry from the vassals by the chiefs, there is the name of aigille to the vassals, yet this is improper, proprie autem aigille dicere to the men who receive seoit taurclotha though they do not give a reward for the mutual service of the chieftainry.

O'D. understood this passage thus: "Aigillne is a Brehon law term applied to one who places himself under the protection of another; and it is derived from augo, lawful, meet, or proper, and giallnae 'to do homage'. On this occasion the protegee having first received a certain number of séds, or cows, by way of subsidy or present from the protector, in token of the protector's superiority, pays him a certain tribute called séd taurclotha as the price of his protection. After this the protegee delivers pledges to the protector, and again receives séds from him as from his lord and chieftain. After this ceremony has been gone through, it is not in the protegee's power to take subsidy from any other at any time, except from the person to whom he has thus given the seoda taurclotha. The term aigillne [ms. aigille—Ed.] is sometimes applied to the chieftains [mss. célib 'vassals'.—Ed.] after they have received cows as tribute from the vassals, according to the custom called bés n-airchenda 'custom of chieftainry'. But this is a misnomer, for aigillne [ms. aigille—Ed.] is properly applied to those who give the seoit taurclotha in token of the superiority of the person to whom they are given, though they should not continue to pay the chief for his protection".

The word sét 'cow', which occurs so often in the article just translated and in the Brehon laws, seems to be the Breton saout 'le gros bétail particulièrement les bêtes à cornes'.—Ed.

Additional Articles from B.

[The following articles are found in B and the paper copies, but do not appear to have formed any part of the original work.—Ed.]

AISLINGE 'a vision' (b) i. lingid ass ('he leaps out of it') vel absque lingua cen abrað inte ('without speech in it').

So in H. 2. 16, col. 90, Aslinge .i. absque lingua .i. cen berla no tengaid.

ABAC i.e. ab aband ('river') 7 bac beg ('small') bec bis inaibnib é ('a small thing which is in rivers it is') no becc a á .i. a airde ('or small its á i.e. its height').

(a) A reads Aigillne .i. augo gillnae. B has Aigillne .i. augga giallne. O'Clery has Aicillne .i. oglachas.—Ed.
(b) 'dumb' O'D., who leaves lingid as untranslated.—Ed.

Abac now denotes a dwarf, but here it seems to mean a small river-fish, probably the breac an deamhain 'demon's trout'.—O'D. Reminds one of W. afanc said to be a crocodile.—Ed.

AICDĒ .i. ecdoe græce ædificium latine .i. cumtach ('a building') ['structure', 'article of manufacture', 'shrine'.]

Meiser aicdi ara deimne 'an aicde is measured by its firmness, i.e., by its strength quoad its thickness, O'Davoren. Three Ir. Gl. p. 80. nech diambi cuma eibirt ocus aicdi 'one whose word is as good as his deed' Senchas Mór 118. Bendachadh na h-aicdi 'the benediction of the work', ib. 132. nembennachadh doní in ben ar aicdi na mná eile 'the non-blessing which the woman makes on the other woman's work', ib. 152. aicdi b urluma ib. 188. Cognate with aiced 'implements' ib. 150, (leg. aiceda?) and perhaps, if initial p has been lost, with pa-n-go, πηγ-νυμ, etc. cf. aic, aice 'tying', 'bond', 'fastening', O'D. Suppt.—Ed.

ALCHUNG quasi armchong .i. congbaid arma ('it contains arms').

Alchung was conjectured by O'D to mean 'an armoury', by Curry 'a rack or hook for hanging up arms'.—Ed.

ALLUD .i. nos ('custom') no alad .i. a laude .i. on molad ('from the praise').

This is obscure. O'Clery has alladh .i. oirdhearcas 'fame', 'conspicuousness'.—Ed.

ALAD .i. il a dath .i. imda datha and ('many colours on him'), no alad .i. uile dath .i. fola-dath .i. dath fola fair sech inslán ('colour of blood on him compared with the healthy person').

O'Davoren (Three Ir. Gl. p. 48) glosses alad by examail 'various', 'different'. It means also 'speckled', 'parti-coloured'.—Ed.

AICCICHT .i. icht anaice ('children in nurture' (a)) ar is inace bis an deiscipal ac ind aiti ('for it is in nurture (a) that the disciple is with the tutor').

O'D renders aiccicht by 'tutorage'. But it seems another form of aicecht (gl. lectio) 'a lesson': cf. accipt 'a lesson' O'Don. Supp., ur-aicecht, and the low-Latin accepturium .i. lectionem, Trans. Philolog. Soc. 1860-61, p. 249.

AINCES ('doubt') quasi anceps .i. aincid a fis ort ('knowledge of it is a protection to thee').

O'D. translates 'a doubt of its knowledge is upon thee'. But aincid clearly means either 'protects' or 'protection': ances occurs in Senchas Mór p. 102 and in the phrase ances athgabála ib. 108. It is glossed by cuntabairt in H. 2. 16, col. 89.

ABRAS [.i.] abra .i. inailt ('bondmaid') feis .i. lamtorad ('hand-produce').
Abrás din .i. lamtorad inailte ('hand-produce of a bondmaid').

The glossographer means that abras 'yarnspinning' is compounded of the low Latin abra 'ancilla' and the Irish feis, which, with the meaning above given, I have not met elsewhere (b). It probably comes from the root VAX, Skr. vakṣh, whence also αἴξω, and Eng. I wax.—Ed. Ní dón abhras an chéadshnáithe is a common saying.—O'D.

ANNACH .i. an-dag non dagh non bonum, dagh hebraicé bonum interpretatur, droch hebraice malum interpretatur unde dicitur drochta .i. olc he ('bad it is') .i. seinlestar ('an old vessel').

(a) 'by him' O'D; but aice is glossed by altrum (O'Dav. p. 63) and by oldeamhain (O'Clery).—Ed.

(b) Except in the glossary in H. 2, 16, where I find Abras hebraice .i. abar fheis, Abra .i. inailt ut dicitur in libro mulierum abrae suae arindi foglennat feis lamtoruid.—Ed.

In a gloss to the prologue to the Féilire, l. 237 the gen. sg. annaig is glossed by feirge 'of anger'.—Ed.

AMOR ('a trough') .i. ime a or ['round it is its edge'] no ampur am ica diultad conach glan acht in inglan ('or am-pur, am for negation (shewing) that it is not clean but it is unclean'). pur .i. glan ('clean').

Possibly borrowed from amphora with change of gender and declension.—Ed.

ADNACAL ('sepulchre') .i. ad dliged ('law') 7 cal coimet ('keeping') 7 nai duine ('human being') .i. coimet dligthech in duine ('lawful keeping of the human being').

The Old-Irish form is adnacul, Z. 731,992, ad-ra-nact 'who was buried' Lib. Arm.—Ed.

ABALL ('appletree') [ .i. ab] Abellano oppido Campaniae no eba eill .i. eillned eba ('pollution of Eve') .i. in cetben ('the first woman') no aob oll ar met a toraid ('from the greatness of its fruit'). Uball ('an apple') eodem modo.

O'D renders aob oll by 'large produce', Curry by 'rich-great'. For cognates to aball and uball see Ebel, Beitr. II. 170.—Ed.

ACH acho [ἄχῳ] graece doleo latine .i. galar ('a disease').

Better explained in H. 2. 16. col. 90 by interiecht galair 'an interjection of disease'. Bret. ach fi! W. kach—Ed.

AC ('no') graece nego latine .i. diultad ('to deny').

The Greek word in view is oír.—O'D. acc itir 'not at all' O'Don. Gram. 327. acc ol siat, 'no'! say they, ib. 390. "Marbthar fochetóir Nóise 7 foad in ben letao" ol in rectaire. "Acc" or in rl. "Let Nóise be slain forthwith and let the woman sleep with thee", says the Steward. "No"! says the King, Longes mac n Uisnig, Book of Leinster.—Ed.

ALCHENG ab alligando .i. arma.

This is the same as ailchong already given.—O'D.

AITHRINNE .i. rinn aith ('sharp point') .i. tenga aith fri hair ('a sharp tongue for satire').

O'Clery explains aithrinn in the same way.—Ed.

ADNA .i. ais quod ad senes pertinent aes illi enim dicunt g. unde aetas latine.

The passage is evidently corrupt.—O'D. In H. 2. 16 col. 88 it runs as follows: Adnai ais .i. adsena .i. quod ad senes pertinet. Æiss graece illi enim dicunt eoas [ἔρας?] unde aetas Latine dicitur.—Ed.

AUCHAIDE .i. cluinnte ('heard') quasi aure accipe. unde est ni aucar .i. ni cluiner ('is not heard').

ANTICHRISTOS, graece quod est latine contrarius Christo, ante [ἀντί] enim graece contra latine significant.

AIRISTOTILÉS, aris .i. artis, tot [ταύτης] .i. hujus [Ms. hs.] tiles [τέλος] .i. fines [leg. finis.]

[The three next following articles are in B, but have been overlooked by O'Donovan]

ADBERTAIG .i. ab adversario .i. on adbirseoir.

Adbirseoir is now 'the devil'. Adbairt .i. ab adversario, H. 2. 16.—Ed.

ANAM 'soul' ab anima dicitur .i. ona suailechib ('from the virtues').

cf. anam-chara 'teacher', lit. 'soul-friend'.—Ed.

Ao quasi au ab aure .i. on cluais.

Ao (if not the same as au 'ear' in au-nasc supra) seems to be a verb in the 1 sg. pres. indic. from the root av, whence átw, étw-átw and the Latin au-di-o.—Ed.

[O'D. cites the following two articles from Mac Firbis' copy:—]

ACNAMACHT on focal is actualis ('from the word that is actualis') .i. proinn fir obra ('dinner of a workman').

In H. 2, 16 the gloss runs thus: Aicnabsath .i. aicce 7 sath .i. praind fir opra.—Ed.

AI .i. ebert (a saying) .i. ab aio .i. raidim ('I say').

So in H. 2. 16, col. 88, Ai ab aio .i. dlomaim. Here g has been lost between vowels. The root is AGH, whence Lat. ad-agium, dio, Greek ἡμί for ἡγ-μι, Skr. dha 'he spoke'. See Aigne supra p. 12.—Ed.

SECUNDA LITTERA.

BENDACHT ('a blessing') quasi benedicht a benedictione dicitur.

BUANANN nurse of the heroes, i.e. bé n-Anann (a) from their similarity to each other, for as the Ánu was mother of gods, sic Buanann erat mother of the heroes i.e. a good mother. Aliter Buan-ann [i. daghmatair 'good mother' B.] the buan i.e. is bón i.e. from bonum, as is said genither buan ó ambuan 'buan is born from ambuan' i.e. good from evil. The ann that is in Buanann denotes mater. It is this that is in Ana [Anand B] i.e. mater deorum. Buanann then (means) a good mother for teaching feats of arms to the heroes.

It is impossible to bring buan 'good' from the Latin bōnum with its short penult. Rather cf. W. buan 'swift', which seems the Skr. javana. For the change of meaning from 'swift' to 'good' cf. σπουδαῖος. As to Buanann, I would connect it with the Skr. bhāvana 'auctor', 'creator'.—Ed.

BRAN i.e. a raven, unde dicitur brandae i.e. ravenlike for blackness and destructiveness [?] and brandub i.e. a black raven, unde dicitur branorgain i.e. that which a raven plunders.

B adds: no brand .i. aithinde ['a firebrand', v. supra p. 12] 7 is aranduibe (b) diblinaib. 'and it is because of the blackness of them both'. W. Corn. bran 'crow.' M. Bret. bran (gl. cornix, corvus). Ebel compares Slav. vránŭ, Lith. várnas (corvus), varna (cornix).—Ed.

BÉIST 'a beast' i.e. a bestia.

M. Ir. péist, W. bwyst. The e in bestia must have been long by nature.—Ed.

BARC ('a barque or boat') i.e. à barca.

Gen. sg. lucht na bairci (leg. bairce) 'crew of the barque', Senchas Mór, 128, dat. bairc infra s.v. Baircne: 'barca, quae cuncta navis commercia ad littus portat' Isid. 19,1,19. Br. barc.—Ed.

BÉS ('a custom') ab eo quod est besus i.e. 'a custom'.

Gen. sg. bésa Z. 1049, n. pl. bési Z. 1049, acc. pl. bésu Z. 1066.

BRETH 'a decision' i.e. a relic (fuigell) for the breth is the relic of some one else, for some one else passed the breth before.

Breth gen. brithe 'judicium' Z. 82. B here has Breth .i. bret .i. fuidell ar is fudell nach aile in bret ar rosfuc nach aile remand in mbreth. The Gaulish vergo-bretus is of course cognate.—O'D renders fuigell by 'decision'.—Ed.

(a) Bé is glossed by 'ben' or 'muller', but this can hardly be its meaning here. Besides the transported shows that it is neuter.—Ed. (b) Ms. aranduib.—Ed.

BRÁTH [braath B] 'a judgment' i. Welsh, from that which is braut i.e. judex [leg. judicium] for it is with the Judge alone is that Day of the Judgment, i.e. Jesus Christ.

Bráth Z. 20, 1090, gen. brátha, an u-stem. In Gaulish we seem to have this word in Bratu-spantium 'val du jugement', as Pictet (Nouvel Essai, p. 59) translates it, and in bratu-de 'ex imperio' of the inscription of Nîmes (Beitr. II. 104). So in Oscan brateis 'imperii' (Beitr. v. 342) em-bratur 'imperator.' So the Sabellian inscription of Novelli (Kuhn's Zeitschrift XV. 241) T. Veti duno didet Herclo Jovio brat . . data ('T. Vettius donum dedit Herculi Jovio ex imperio data') seems to agree beautifully with the Gaulish Garta Bidillanoviakos dede matrebo namausikabo bratu-de ('G. B. dedit Matribus Nemausicis ex imperio') of the Nîmes inscription.

BRÁTHAIR 'brother' quasi fratair, for frater was corrupted into it. Or frater quasi frauter eo quod fraudat ter i.e. patrem et matrem et fratrem.

W. brawd pl. brodyr.

BACHALL 'a crozier' quasi bacul i.e. a baculo, vel bachall ut poeta dicitur:—

Iath is a name for a bell with its voice—
I will not conceal the pure knowledge—
bach is to rap (buain) at one's door yonder, bricht and bacc mean crozier (bachall).

This quatrain is not in B. From bachall comes bachlach (cf. sen-bachlach infra s. v. Prull, voc. eg. a bachlaig infra s. v. Munnu) = W. baglog 'shepherd' = Bret. baclek 'presbyter'. Iath 'a bell with its voice' is possibly cognate with airéw. Bach is explained by buain in O'Dav. p. 60. Bricht I have not met elsewhere with this meaning: bacc (= W. bach) means billhook, in Z. 1093: bacc boana finime (a) gl. ligo.

BÁDUD 'drowning' i.e. from báth i.e. sea.

W. boddi, Corn. bedhy, Bret. beuzi: βαδύς, βυδίω, Skr. root gáh from GVADH 'submergi', a-gádha 'very deep'.—Ed.

BATEN i.e. bath aitin i.e. 'sudden death' i.e. a muirtchenn ('morkin') that dies alone, for báth when it is short (timorta), means death.

Muirtchenn [like the English provincial word morkin and the Welsh burgun] is borrowed from the Latin morticinum 'carrion'. MacFirbis explains it by ni dogabh bás gan marbhadh 7 arambí drochghnuis mairbh 'what gets death without killing and on which is an ill countenance of death'—O'D. Timorta (timortas B) O'D conjectured to be de morte; but it is the past participle of timaircim, and literally means 'coarctatus', Z. 996.—Ed.

BAIRCNE [Barcne B] i.e. a she-cat, because it was first brought in a barque.

Explained by cat bán i.e. a white cat in H. 2, 16.—O'D. O'Davoren, p. 58, explains it by bairc-niad 'ship-hero', "from the ark of the son of Lamech he was first brought, or a strong ship-hero, which was brought from the barque of Bresal Brec." In this ship were the cait bronfinna duba, 'the cats whitebreasted, black', Senchas Mór, p. 152.—Ed.

BABLUAN [Bavluan B] i.e. nomen mulieris, quasi Babilon i.e. confusio i.e. confusion of the one tongue on the plain of Shenaar into many tongues.

(a) better buana Adnime: cf. bac no corran buana, Sench. Mór, p. 140.—Ed.

BABLOIR i.e. a name for Patrick.

i. fear morphlórach ('a very clamorous man'). blór i. guth no glór ('voice or speech'), O'Clery.—Ed.

BAB [Babb B] an interjection of intension, de nomine of the pig of Bress son of Elatha, for there was not in Ireland a pig more excellent. Babgiter, then, was its name.

Bress mac Elathan was a Fomorian by his father's side, and of the Tuatha dé Danann by his mother's side. He was monarch of Ireland according to the Book of Lecan, and all the ms. accounts of the Tuatha dé.—O'D. Bab reminds one of παπαί, papæ, but is hardly cognate.—Ed.

BROSSNAI ['a bundle of fuel'] i.e. briss-ní ['break-thing'] (is) that, (a name applied) to withered branches and to twigs (a) of trees, because it is broken (brister) by hand and an axe is not applied to it.

Understood in every part of Ireland where Irish is spoken and even in those countries where they speak English only.—O'D. brossna crínaig do tabairt diar ngorad, Trip. Life of Patrick.—Ed.

BOLL 'a bubble', quasi bull de nomine bull i.e. a bubble of water.

W. bwl pl. bylion, Bret. boul or bolod.—Ed.

BIROR 'watercress' i.e. bir a well or stream and hor i.e. hair (b). Biror then i.e. hair of a well or of a stream.

Biror [W. berwr, Corn. belor, Bret. béler] is now biolar.—O'D. See Ir. Glosses, p. 55, No. 184.—Ed.

BELLTAINE 'May-day' i.e. bil-tene i.e. lucky fire, i.e. two fires which Druids used to make with great incantations, and they used to bring the cattle [as a safeguard] against the diseases of each year to those fires [in marg.] they used to drive the cattle between them.

beltene indiu i. for cétdin 'May-day today, i.e. on a Wednesday', Southampton Psalter (Goidilica p. 44). Now bealltaine, a fem. id-stem.—Ed.

BRACCAILLE 'a glove': bracc i.e. 'hand' and cail 'a case' i.e. a glove (lamand).

W. breichell seems the same word, but is explained 'a place for the arm (brachium) by Pughe: cf. brac and bracand infra.—Ed.

BROCOIT 'bragget' i.e. a Welsh (word). Braccat [leg. bracaut], then, it is with the Britons: brac is a name for malt: braccut, however, (means) sain-linn i.e. goodly ale. Brocoit i.e. a goodly ale that is made from malt [and honey].

et mil 'and honey' are added by B. The W. bracaut, now bragawd, is said to be made of the wort of ale and mead fermented together. Brac now brag 'malt' is the Gaulish brace 'genus farris' cited by Pliny. See Diefenbach, Origines Europaeae, 265, where the subject is exhausted. The non-aspiration of the c and t of the Irish word shew that it is borrowed.—Ed. The word is used by the 4 Masters at A.D. 1107 ... co seasocait dabhach etir miodh agus brogoid 'with 60 vats both of mead and ale [bragget]'.—O'D.

(a) 'decayed brambles and withered branches'.—O'D.

(b) 'beard' (or mane) O'D.

BINIT 'rennet', i.e. benait i.e. it strikes (?) in milk till it is thick and coagulated.

Occurs often in medical mss. Still in use, pronounced binid.—O'D. Gael. binid f. 1. 'cheese-rennet or the bag that contains it. 2. the stomach.—Ed.

BRARACHT i.e. breth 'bringing forth' i.e. partus [i. torches B].

B has barath.—Ed.

BIÁIL 'hatchet' i.e. bith-aíl i.e. a durable edge.

bidil (gl. ecuris) Z. 1092 W. bwyell, Corn. bool. Ohg. bihal, bigil, bial. In Cormac's bith-aíl the bith is a common intensive prefix (possibly=bith, Gaulish bitu 'mundus').—Ed.

BARAD i.e. death.

cf. baire .i. bás infra s. v. Gaire.—Ed.

BOMLACHT i.e. cow and milk.

As to bó see infra. The mlacht is cognate with mulgeo, mulctus, ἡμέλω, Skr. mārjmi, mārjāmi.—Ed.

BUACHAIL 'herdsman' [from bó 'cow' and] cail 'a keeping' i.e. the keeper of the cows.

B. has buachail .i. buairfein 7 cail coimet 'a cowherd (is) he and cail 'keeping'. W. bugail, Corn. bugel (gl. pastor), Br. bugel. O'D. compares βουκόλος. If so, the -cail (**cali-s*) is the Skr. kal 'to drive on', Lat. cel in celer, celox.—Ed. Buachail now denotes a boy or youth without reference to any occupation.—O'D. cf. ἱπποβουκόλος and Skr. goyuga, Max Müller, Oxford Essays, 1856, p. 18.—Ed.

BUARACH 'a cow-spancel' (a) i.e. bó 'cow' and arach 'spancel'.

Still used to denote a spancel by which the hind-legs of a cow are tied while she is being milked.—O'D. ceangal bhios ar bhoin, O'Clery.—Ed.

BUARACH also i.e. bó-erge 'cow-rising' i.e. early in the morning, unde dicitur fescor imbuarach.

B, better, fescor 7 buarach 'evening and morning': focerd crann i (m) buaroch la gach fungaire 'a tree was brought early by every woodman', O'Davoren p. 57.—Ed.

BASC i.e. everything red. Basc then, when it is (a name) for a necklace, is a noun (b) and is properly applied to the draconic beads.

The allusion is to the dracontia or draconites mentioned by Pliny, H. N. XXXVII. 10, and Solinus c. 43, a kind of precious stone taken out of the brain of a dragon whilst alive.—O'D.

BRISC 'brittle' ab eo quod est priscus, for everything withered and everything old is brittle.

brisc = Br. breek or brusk 'fragile'. brisc is perhaps from **brud-ci* where brud= the Latin root frud in frustum (frudtum), O.N. brut in briota 'to break'. O'D. compares Swed. bryta. As to the vowel, brisc would agree better with O.N. britia 'zerstückeln'.—Ed.

Bó 'a cow'. nomen de sono vocis suae factum est. [i. ainm arnadenam dfoghar in gotha uodein B.]

(a) Recte spancel = Nhg. spannsel.—Ed.

(b) 'a name' O'D, but see Zeuss p. 972.

Cognate with Lat. bos.—O'D. stem bov, Gr. βοῦς and γαῖος ὁ ἐργάτης βοῦς, Skr. gau (stem gav), OHG. chuo, AS. cū, Eng. cow. These point to an Indo-European stem GVAV. The W. buwch, Bret. buoc'h or bioc'h, Corn. búch, búgh seem to come from **bavaccā*.—Ed.

BÓBAITH 'a murrain' i.e. bó-bath 'cow-death,' and bath (is) death. It is the bó-ár 'murrain'.

BOLG BELCHI [bélce B] i.e. bél-cheo 'mouth-vapour' i.e. a vapour which passes from its mouths.

bolg is a bag and bolg bélchi may be the fungus puffball now in Munster commonly called bolgán beice.—Cf. bélchi with A.S. bealcan 'eructare'.—O'D.

BLIND i.e. a dead man's spittle, unde dicitur bás mblinnach 'a frothing death'. Blindauga 'blind' in lingua Galleorum 'language of the foreigners'.

O'D compares Gr. βλέννα 'mucus', also βλέννος. In B we have Blinn i.e. snaith ruisc mairb ['thread of a dead man's eye'], unde dicitur blind i.e. dall no caech 'sightless or blind'. Blind-auga seems Old Norse: auga is O.N. for 'eye', A. S. edge, ége.—Ed.

BERIT 'a sow' i.e. it bears (berith) i.e. brithid [it brings forth ?]

B has birid.—Ed. O'Clery birid i.e. cráin i.e. muc beiriota, 'a sow, i.e. a breeding pig'.—O'D.

BENNTAIGE [Bentraigi B] 'Bantrymen' i.e. binit-rige 'rennet-kingdom' from the cheese-curds that the king of Cashel is entitled to from them (is) this. Vel a Benta patre eorum.

Benntraighe, now Bantry, an ancient territory in the County of Cork. According to Duaid Mac Fírbis the Benntraighe descend from Beanda son of Concobhar mac Nessa, one of the Érnaans of Munster. There is another Bantry in Leinster, lying between the rivers Barrow and Slaney, which, however, (from the mention of Cashel,) cannot be the territory intended by our author.—O'D.

BÓGE [Boige B] i.e. name for a cauldron of covetousness which was made by the artisans. This, then, is the form in which it is i.e. nine chains out of it, and it is not larger than the head of a large goblet: a hole at the end of every chain and nine artisans standing around it, the company singing the poem (a), with the point of the spear of each man through the hole of the chain that was next to him. And he that gave a donation to them, it was into this cauldron he put it; unde dicitur coire sainnte 'cauldron of covetousness'. This then was the legitimate contents of the cauldron, i.e. a brethnasc of pure gold, (weighing) twelve ounces.

See Three Irish Glossaries, pref. LVIII. note.—Ed.

BOGE also, is the name of a small vessel in which were five ounces of gold: it was for drinking ale out of; and it was given as a prize to a poet i.e. to an ollamh (b). Unde dicitur in the Bretha nemed (the laws of the privileged classes)—ballan baisse boge coic n-uinge bánóir 'a boge is a handvessel of five ounces of pure gold'.

(a) oc cantaiñ no o(c) cur na cléri A. = oc cur na cliara B., a deriv. from ollar 'poet,' W. cler f.—Ed.
(b) B has díleadaib 7 dollannaib 'to poets and to ollaves'.—Ed.

BRIAR i.e. a pin of one ounce of gold, ut est in the Bretha nemed: briar [derg B] dely briar is a n-uinge 'a red pin of one ounce'.

BRÁTHCHÆI [Bradcai B] i.e. brethcheo áei. Aliter, quod est verius, i.e. Cáei Caenbrethach, pupil of Fenius Farsaid. This is the disciple who went to the children of Israel to learn Hebrew, and he was the brehon at the expulsion of the sons of Miled. The reason that he is called Cáei Caen-brethach 'mild-judging' is because he passed sentences according to law, and therefore there are many instances in the language. Every time there is no king in the districts, it is a bráthchæi that serves on (a) them i.e. for (administering) local law (?) (b). When, however, there is a king, he is absolute ruler (?) as (seems) good to him.

A bráthchæi was a brehon elected to administer the laws in a territory during an interregnum. The only recorded instance of this is the appointment of Cuan O'Lochain, after the death of Maelsechlainn II in 1020.—O'D. In H. 2,16 col. 92, brathchæi is explained by breth ocai ainm aicepta belri.—Ed.

BRUINNECH [Bruindech B] 'a mother' because she nourishes infants on her breasts, i.e. suis mammillis [fora ciguib fodein B]

So O'Davoren (Three Ir. Gl. p. 56) who quotes nabí bruinnech balb i.e. his mother or the wife whom he took was not dumb', and at p. 61: ba hí a bruin(n)ech ro-oilestar mac de 'it was his mother that nursed God's son'.—Ed. So O'Clery.—O'D.

BALBH 'stammering', ab eo quod est balbus.

In balbh the bh is a v, so, though cognate with Lat. balbus (for **valvus*, **gualvus*, **guarvus*?), it is not borrowed from it.—Ed.

BÓTT i.e. fire, unde dicitur in the Anamain cetharreich 'the fire (bót) of Áine grandson of Lugaid which burns'.

So in H. 2,16, col. 90: Aod 7 tnu 7 smer 7 bott (.i. beo-ait) 7 tene quinque nomina ignis. Compare, perhaps, the Gaulish man's name Bottus.—Ed. 'The fire of O'Luigdech burns'.—O'D.

BUAS i.e. full knowledge of poetic art: because science (imbas) goes after poetic art, inde dicitur barr buaisse 'end (or top or crown) of poetical knowledge'.

A has Buas .i. soas nairchedail imais arindí doteit himais iarmbuas [leg. imbais iarmbuais] unde dicitur etc. B has buas .i. soes n-arcetail arinni, dothet imbais iarmbuais inde dicitur etc. I take imbais (see Imbas forosnai) to be an intensive of bas .i. fis: see O'Clery: feal-bhas .i. droich-fios. O'D renders barr by 'right'.—Ed.

BRÍ i.e. every malediction, ut est in the Bretha nemed: i.e. brí-amon smethraige [brimon smetrach B] i.e. the name of an operation which poets perform on a person who refuses them [aught]. He [the poet] grinds the person's ear-lobe, between his two fingers, and the person dies on whom he performs (this) operation. True is this, as this member is on a man outside, so is this man outside men. As this member is softer and smoother (c) quam alia membra, sic et hic homo.

(a) B has is brathchæi foguá etorra 'it is a brathchæi that serves among them'.—Ed.

(b) O'D translates "and hence there are many instances in the language of the appointment of a Brathchæi for the purpose of governing whenever it happened that there was no king in the territory".

(c) 'tenderer and softer'.—O'D.

BRIGIT i.e. a poetess, daughter of the Dagda. This is Brigit the female sage, or woman of wisdom, i.e. Brigit the goddess whom poets adored, because very great and very famous was her protecting care. It is therefore they call her goddess of poets by this name. Whose sisters were Brigit the female physician [woman of leechcraft,] Brigit the female smith [woman of smithwork]; from whose names with all Irishmen a goddess was called Brigit. Brigit, then, breo-aigit, breo-shaigit 'a fiery arrow'.

B. omits the absurd etymology of Brigit, which name is certainly (as Siegfried thought) connected with the O.Celtic goddess-name Brigantia and possibly with the Skr. Brhaspati and O.Norse Bragi. The name of the Dagda (as to whom see infra s.v. Ruadrofessa) Siegfried thought was borrowed from Lat. doctus, as augtor from auctor, leglóir from lector. But why not then Dogda? I would rather regard it as a genuine Celtic part. pass. meaning doctus, but to be connected with the root DAGH in δα-δαχῆ, δε-δι-δαχ-α.—Ed.

BEC 'little' quasi ec in Hebrew.

B has Bec quasi ec ebraicé, parvus interpretatur .i. dechned tosaig fil and 'a cutting-off the beginning is there', and the glossographer means that ec has lost b by aphaeresis. Becc is W. bach.—Ed.

BIDBA 'a guilty person', graece bi-θάνατος i.e. bis mortuus i.e. he deserves his death twice.

BIL from Bial i.e. an idol god, unde belline 'May day' i.e. fire of Bel.

A different etymology s. v. Belltaine, utrum horum?—O'D. In H. 2. 16 col. 93: Bil .i. obiel .i. dia idaltoicteg [P] saide conataithe tene ina anmair i taiti samraid dogres 7 doaightis cethrai eter in da thenid ('a fire was kindled in his name at the beginning of summer always, and cattle were driven between the two fires').—Ed.

BAIRE graece baronnes [barones B] fortes dicuntur. Or baire i.e. búire 'pride'.

Mercenarii sunt qui serviunt accepta mercede, iidem et barones Graeco nomine, quod sint fortes in laboribus: βαρὺς enim dicitur gravis quod sit fortis, Isidor. Orig. ix. 4. In H. 2. 16, col. 92, we have Baræ graece barones mercinari (i. lucht tuarastoil), fortes dicuntur. Broc fochracæ din in bari, unde dicitur bare buri. In Senchas Mór, p. 52, tre-baire is rendered 'three individuals'.—Ed. Báire is the pl. of bár [leg. báir?] 'a chieftain'.—O'D.

BIND 'sweet', 'melodious' i.e. a pindro i.e. from a harp.

B has 'a pinnro .i. ón cruit. H. 2. 16, 'a pindaro .i. cruit'.—Ed.

BRINDA [Brind B] i.e. a verbo frendo, for he (it?) does not speak clearly, vel a 'bruto eloquio.

O'D supposed this to be O'Clery's Brionn .i. brég 'a lie'; but it rather seems his brinn .i. brionglóide 'a vision'; cf. brinna 'a vision' Book of Lismore cited by O'D. Supp. to O'R.—Ed.

TERTIA LITTERA.

CORMAC i.e. corb-mac i.e. corb 'a chariot', Corbmac then (means) son of a chariot. Cormac Geltaí Gaeth of Leinster was the first so called, because he was born in a chariot. This, then, is the correct orthography of that name i.e. Corbmac i.e. so that a b be in the first syllable of that name Cormac i.e. b scribitur ut Corbmac.

Cormac G. G., grand-father of Cathaoir Mór, flourished in the first century.—O'D.

COIRBRE quasi coir-breo ['a just flame'], or Coirbre quasi corb-aire i.e. cuirb-peri (?) or driver (airai) of a chariot.

A common Irish name, now usually written Cairbre.—Ed.

CATHAL i.e. Welsh (is) this i.e. catell, i.e. cat 'battle' in the Welsh is cath in Scotica, the ell then is ail 'rock'. Cathal then i.e. ail catha 'rock of battle'.

A common Irish name. With Welsh Catell Zeuss, 96, compares the Gaulish name Catullus.—Ed.

COB i.e. victory. Cobthach [a man's name] victorious.

Glück, K. N. 45, connects the Gaulish names Cob-nertus, Cobenerdus, Ver-cobius. Cob i. caomh ('fair') no buaidh ('victory') O'Davoren.—Ed.

CLITHAR SÉT. Alii dicunt that it is a name for a cow in-calf, because she conceals (do-cel) her calf in her: quod non verum est; sed verius, vel aliter, Clithar-sét [clethar set B] i.e. a king-cow, for clithar is a name for 'king' in the Duil Feda Máir ['Book of the great wood'] and it is edad, 'e.' that ..... (a), A sét gabla, then, is the smallest, and is a name for a bull dairt (yearling) and a cow colpach (heifer), or for a bull colpach and a cow dairt. Samaisc is the second (kind of) sét. Laulgach ('a milch-cow') or an ox which works at the plough, (is) the third sét, and this is the rt-sét 'king-sét'. And this is the manner in which they are classified in the judgment of Caei Cáinbrethach: (one of) every three séts (should be) a sét gablae, another a samaisc, another a laulgach or a plough-ox. They are varied in their order until the mulct is completed (impud foraið bees corc cend na herca) (a). And these are the séts required to be given in Patrick's law, for its séts are half an ounce.

(a) is edad nutreit(h) B. A is here corrupt. O'D guesses 'from which it was taken'.—Ed.

From a ms. note of the late Eugene Curry I gather that he thought the rí-sét was the unit by reference to which an eric was calculated. Four seoit gabla = two samaisci = one rí-sét. Thus, to take his own illustration, suppose the fine was 3 cumhals or 21 cows: this might be made up thus:

10 rí-seoit	= 10 cows
16 samaisci	= 8 „
12 seoit gabla	= 3 „

The amount might obviously be made up in many other ways, e.g. 5 rí-seoit + 30 samaisci + 4 seoit gabla = 21 cows, and this power of varying the components is perhaps what Cormac refers to by the phrase impud foraið etc.—Ed.

CRUIMTHER i.e. the Gaelic of presbyter. In Welsh it is premler: prem 'worm' in the Welsh is cruim in the Gaelic. Cruimther, then, is not a correct change of presbyter: but it is a correct change of premler. The Britons, then, who were in attendance on Patrick when preaching were they who made the change, and it is primter that they changed; and accordingly the literati of the Britons explained it, i.e. as the worm is bare, sic decet presbyterum, who is bare of sin and quite naked of the world, etc. secundum eum qui dixit ego [autem] sum vermis [Ps. xxii.6: ataimse conad cruim me 7 nach duine B] etc.

Cf. Cruimther Fraech, an Irish saint, and Cruimtheris (= presbyterissa) one of S. Patrick's textrices et sacrorum linteorum confectrices (Colgan, Trias Thaum., p. 167), daughter of a British king (ib. p. 163).—O'D. I doubt if Cormac is right in deducing cruimther from premler. This leaves unexplained the vowel of the first syllable and the aspiration of the t. The gen. sg. of cruimther occurs in the Félire, April 29: Martra Germain cruimthir. In Old-Celtic cruimther would be cromitiros or crumitiros, which resembles the oghamic curimittirros, as transliterated in one of the Siegfried mss. The 'Crubthir Fintam' of the life of S. Kepi (Rees, Lives of the Cambro-British saints, pp. 184, 185) seems a blunder for Crumthir Fintain. With cruim 'worm', O.W. prem, now príð, Corn. prif, Bret. prev, cf. Skr. krmi, Zend kerema, Lith. kirmi-s.—Ed.

CERCENN i.e. a cycle of time, a circino i.e. from a pair of compasses.

Clooh f. W. clog m. 'a detached rock', clogán f. 'a large stone'. Onn its 'inexplicable (qy. 'obsolete' or 'primitive?') name, is perhaps in O.W. onn-presen (gl. foratorium).—Ed.

Caithiughudh is glossed by tathair 'reproach' in O'D.'s supplement to O'Reilly. So O'Davoren p. 67, who quotes arrobatar a tuicsi i n-ilur lanamnasa conach urusa a cathiugud oldas a molad ('for their ideas were that, in many marriages it is not easier to reproach than to praise them'). Compare the slang verb 'to chaff'.—Ed.

CÁINTE 'satirist' i.e. canis 'a dog', for the satirist has a dog's head in barking, and alike is the profession they follow.

Lat. caballus.—O'D. O. W. Caball Arthur's dog. O'Donovan compares doubtfully W. ceffyl, m., which seems = an Old Celtic * coppilos. Examples of both cap and pell (gen. pill) occur in Lebar na huidre (note on the Amra col.): ructhar i capp (i. i. carr) is ndiaid phill (i. eich) do [fh]race (i. do ben) a scail (i. a fir) 'thy wife, O man, is brought in a car behind a horse'.—Ed.

Caisel 'a stone-fort' seem, like O.W. castell pl. cestill, to be borrowed from Lat. castellum, though the single l of the Irish word raises some doubt. Hence caisleoir .i. fer deunmha caisil, O'Clery.—Ed.

CLÍ 'a poet of the third order,' he was so called from his resemblance to a house-post (clí) i.e. is besem in a cliad no donclet is besad na cleithe. B. It is strong at the floor, it is slender at the ridge, and straightly he covers (a) (and) is covered. Sic is a clí among the poets. Strong in visitation in his own territories, he is gentle in exterior territories. As the clí (post) is in the house from floor to ridge, so then is the dignity of this graed whereunto is the name of clí. [He covers] that which is below him: is covered by that which is higher. He is straight in the practices of his poetry.

Interlined in A:—"from ánruth to fochlacon: a clí then covers that which is lowest: he is covered (P) by that which is higher": with this agrees B: doeim dana in clí inni besid nisle doemar som onni besad nuaisliu is diriug am(b)esaib a dana, where note the forms besid-n and besad-n. The Clí had eighty stories. Senchas Már, p. 44. Anair was the name of his poetry, supra p. 6.—Ed.

CANA, then, a name of a grade of poets i.e. cantaid [caintid B] 'a chanter', because he recites (chanas) the productions of his art before kings and peoples. ut ipse est admoll i.e. admoltaig [admoltaid B] for he is the most lively [gresgem 'most continuous' (c)] for panegyric and storytelling, even before grades of poets (d).

CAINDELBRA 'a chandelier' quasi a candle on it (forrae) or candela forum [leg. candelabrum.—Ed.] i.e. a candle on it.

B has caill crithmon. creth mon i. mon cles 7 creth exi [leg. écsi] i. caill as a taet cless na uadh ind aircetail. O'D supposed caill to be for coill n. pl. of coll, but is it not caill 'a wood' ? crínmon (a) a derivation, like spíw, cerno, from the root kriP—Ed. The ancient Irish poets believed that there were fountains at the heads of the chief rivers of Ireland, over each of which grew nine hazels, that those hazels produced at certain times beautiful red nuts which fell on the surface of the water, that the salmon of the rivers came up and ate them, that the eating of them was the cause of the red spots on the salmon's belly, that whoever could catch and eat one of these salmon would be endued with the sublimest poetic intellect. Hence we often meet such phrases as these in ancient poems:—"Had I the nut of Science", "Had I eaten of the salmon of knowledge". See Dinnsenchas of Sinoinn in the Book of Lecan, fo. 240.—O'D.

CANOIN 'the canon', the canonical scripture, quasi cáin-on, for what it says is pure (cáin) and is truth.

W. coll 'hazelwood' m. collen f. coll-wydd = Br. kel-wez, Corn. colviden (gl. corillus) from an O.Celtic **coslos*: see Z. 1118, where the place-name Coslum is compared and the O.H. Germ. hasal. Coll has nothing, I think, to do with Lat. corylus, Gr. κόρυλος.—Ed.

Book of Fenagh.—O'D. O'Davoren explains it, pp. 66, 70, by uasal 'noble'. At p. 72 he cites caidh-dia dinífa co felmacaib 'a noble (rather 'pure') God who will come with disciples.' Caid (= an Old Celtic **cadi-s*), is probably from the same root as castus (= cad-tus) and καθ-υμός.—Ed.

CERNÍNE i.e. dishes. ut dixit Coirbre mac Etnai cen cholt for crip cerníne 'without food quickly on dishes', or 'on our dishes' with Bress mac Elathan.

The quotation is from a short poem said to have been the first satire composed in Ireland.—O'D. The satire is thus given in Lebar na huidre:—

Cen colt ar cráib cerníne	Without food quickly on dishes;
cen gert ferbba foranassa athírní	Without milk of cows ..... of calves;
cen adba fir fodruba disorchí	Without a man's habitation under (the) roof of darkness;
cen dfl dámi resi robsen brissi	Without paying storytellers; this was prosperity for Bress.

see infra s.v. Riss. Cerníne (cernene .i. mias B) is a diminutive of cern i.e. mias O'Dav. 63. colt 'food' = πόλος, puls, pultis : crip (which O'Clery s. v. Cerníne glosses by luath) seems cognate with κραιπνός, with which Curtius connects Goth. hlaupa (notwithstanding the undisplaced p) 'I leap', Ohg. hloufu 'I run'.—Ed.

CERNAS i.e. a lie and deception, quasi cermain feiss i.e. deceptive knowledge and art, unde dicitur in the Gaire Echach (a) 'cen nach cernnas' 'without any deception'.

In B this article is much fuller : Cernnas .i. breg 7 togais quasi cermain fis .i. fis 7 dan cermain lais, unde dicitur isin gaire echach Motri findne fomgellsad imailt neochach (b) ailedail gaire dia loifind form sging (c) scaoilter pain (d) la pugin puncern (e) lasiall (f) cen nac cernnas la da muic midísen goss (g) geisen (h) cen os mesed conach in a biu baa. et reliqua.—Ed.

CEITHERN i.e. a band of soldiers (i) [?], unde dicitur cethernach 'one of a band' cethern i.e. cath 'battle' and horn, i.e. orn 'to destroy' (orcaín) (j).

Hence Eng. kerne.—O'D. The Lat. caterva is perhaps radically connected.—Ed.

CAPLAT .i. nomen for (the) cendlá of Easter i.e. quasi capitolavium 'headwashing', i.e. because every one is tonsured then, and his head is washed

(a) "The name of a satirical poem on Eochaid mac Luchta, king of N. Munster in the first century" O'D. "Indeed! where is your authority"? incredulously asks Eugene Curry in margin.

(b) "My three cows grazed around Eochaid's house" O'D.

(c) dia loifind form scince .i. dá bhrat find ar mo leaba, Mac Fíris, 'two white mantles on my bed'.

in preparation for his anointment (a) on the Easter Sunday. Cend-lá, then, i.e. cena-lá, non de capite sed de cena Domini dicitur, i.e. cena-lae, i.e. the day of Christ's feast and his apostles about him.

Maunday Thursday.—O'D. W. dydd Iou cablyd, Corn. duyow hablys, duyow hamlos, Br. Iou gamblid.—Ed.

CÉRCHAILL 'a pillow' i.e. ciar-chail, 'head-protection' (b). Vel ab eo quod est cervical. Or the cer that is there is from cervus i.e. a wild deer, and it is of his hide that the case for the feathers is made, and to this case, and to every other case, is (the) name cail. Aliter it was named from cervix.

See Irish Glosses No. 979. The gen. sg. cercaille (comrad cennachercaille 'a pillow-conversation') occurs at the beginning of the Táin bó cuailgne, the dat. pl. cercaillib in Senchas Mór, p. 126.—Ed.

CENDAID 'tame' i.e. cen fid 'without a wood', i.e. without a wood he was nurtured; or he is gentle as he does not go into wood or wilderness: cui contrarius est allaid i.e. all-fid i.e. he is nurtured (allair) in wood (fid) and in wilderness.

CUIL 'a fly', a culice Latine.

Cuil, gen. cuilech, a c-stem, is like W. cylion 'flies' 'gnats', = cognate with, not borrowed from; Lat. culex.—Ed.

COIC, i.e. a secret, ut Néidi mac Adnai (dixit) Ní chualai coic nuin ol me no ol moin gair gair "thou didst not hear an evil secret of me (c), O short-lived Caier"!

See Gaire infra.—O'D. nuin is explained 'evil' in H. 3. 18 (a ms. in Trin. Coll. Dub.) p. 61. The form moin 'me' is very curious: cf. perhaps Lith. manèn, and consider the O.W. muin (gl. meus) infra s. v. Modebroth.—Ed.

CARTIT i.e. a pin i.e. (in the) Pictish language, i.e. a pin on which is put its shank.

No doubt a loanword, for **gartit*, and, like W. garthon 'goad' Corn. garthon (gl. stimulus), Br. garzon, from Ohg. gart, A.S. geard, Goth. gazds.—Ed.

COTH i.e. food: cothudh i.e. sustenance. unde dicitur mael-cothaid i.e. a man[?] that sustains, unde est, in the Dialogue of the Two Sages, for rem cothaid 'in the progress of sustenance'.

Mael-cothaidh became common in Ireland as the proper name of a man. The Dialogue of the two Sages is still extant in H. 2. 16 [ms. in T. C. D.] and is, perhaps, the oldest Irish composition now in existence. It is said to be a disputation which took place at Emania in Ulster between Ferceirtne the poet and Néidhe mac Adna.—O'D. With coth (gen. coid, Sench. Mór, p. 190) cf. par-éouat, Skr. pita 'bread', Goth. fōd-jan, 'feed', fōd-eins 'food'.—Ed.

(a) 'for their being purified'.—O'D.

(b) A and B have ciar chail i. ciar coimet, which O'D. renders "ciar-chail; ciar i.e. to keep". But this is nonsense: coimet here, as at caille supra, is the explanation of cail, and not of ciar, which I venture to put with Lat. cere-brum, and Goth. hruir-nel 'skull'. W. cern 'side of the head'. Bret. kern 'sommet de la tête' may also be connected.—Ed.

(c) 'I have not heard an evil secret'.—O'D.

CIMB i.e. silver. It was from the silver that was given (as tribute) to the Fomorians it received (lit. merited) its appellation. Cimb then, (has been) a name for every (kind of) tribute thenceforward, although it was the name (but) for silver prius; because it was so frequently given in great quantity (a) to the Fomorians. Unde dicitur in the Bretha nemed: cimb [cimm B] uim olas n-uim i puincerni puinc 'a tribute of bronze since I placed the bronze [?] in the notched balance'.

cimb is perhaps 'ransom-money' rather than 'tribute': cf. cimbid (gl. vinctus) Z. 1004, cimbith supra. p. 30, cimbidi (gl. custodias) Lib. Arm. 189, and the Gaulish Cimbri (gl. latrones), with which Cimberius is probably connected.—Ed.

COICENG 'an equal yoke' [?] i.e. com-chuing, because it is an equal yoke on both sides.

COING i.e. com-ching 'going together'. [?]

COIMMESS ..... [?] i.e. equal power on each side.

CUMLACHTAIG [cumlachtaid B] i.e. nomen for a young pig when he goes from his sty (as a cru B = á cru A) to suck, and seeks his dam to suck her teats (b), quasi cum lacte ambulans. Unde dicitur cumlachtach (is) the man, i.e. munificent, kindly, who gives something to every one. Sic porca suum suo largitur lac.

So O'Davoren p. 62: 'Comlachtaidh, a name for a sucking-pig, i.e. he follows after his milk (lacht) i.e. after his mother, i.e. he remembers his milk'.—Ed.

CLAIRIU i. division, inde est leniud clairenn i.e. prevention [?] of division and distribution.

B reads leiniud clairend i. tairmesc etc. 'confusion of division, &c.—Ed.

CRUFHECHTA a carrion-crow.

Perhaps a poetical name meaning corvus (crú) praelii (fechta) fecht = O. W. gweith. O'Davoren, p. 63, has cruechta i. bodba, in the plural.—Ed.

CUL 'a chariot', ut dixit Cúchulainn

Cul a chariot—hardy was the order—
In which I used to go with Conchobar;
And néit was a name for the battle,
Which I used to gain for Cathbu's son.

CUL i.e. a chariot, unde est culgaire 'the creaking of a chariot'.

cul = O. Slav. kolo: cf. Gr. κὺλις, A.S. hveól, 'wheel' O.N. hiól. See Culmaire. infra.—Ed.

CUPAR (caubar B) i.e. an old bird [a kite?].

Perhaps W. bar-cud.—Ed.

CULIAN i.e. culén 'pup' i.e. a dog (cú) that follows (lenas) every one.

W. colwyn m.—Ed.

(a) Literally, 'for its frequency and for its quantity (with it which) it was given to the Fomori'. B has doberthe i. cis do fomorib 'it was given in tribute to the F'.—Ed.

(b) O'D 'when he goes to suck and the dam refuses to let him suck her teats'.

COINFODORNE i.e. otters i.e. fodobarnai i.e. subaqueous. Dobar is a word common to Gaelic and Welsh. dobur i.e. 'water', unde dicitur dobar-chú and in the Welsh it is called doborci.

The modern Welsh words are dwfr 'water', dyfrgi or dwrgi 'otter': Corn. doferghi (gl. lutrius), Bret. dour-gi and also ki-dour, literally 'waterdog'—Ed. dobharchú still living in Donegal, obsolete in every other part of Ireland. Explained madra uisge 'waterdog' by O'Clery.—O'D.

CÁISE 'cheese' ab eo quod est cāseus, unde Vergilius: Pinguis et ingrate premeretur caseus urbi.

B. adds i. gruth indsin. W. cāws, Corn. caus (gl. caseus), Br. kaouz.—Ed.

CAIRT 'parchment' i.e. a carta: carta enim in qua nondum scriptor quisquam scripsit in se. Carta then i.e. 'parchment' i.e. for parchment (membrum) is it a name.

CRUM DUMA ['dunghill']. 'maggot-mound' [?] i.e. 'dung', unde dicitur cin chon crumduma 'the crime of a dunghill dog'.

crum was supposed by O'Davoren, p. 63 and O'Donovan to be the same as cruim 'vermis', supra p. 28, and duma to be duma 'tumulus'. I would rather compare crum with κολ-ώνη cul-men, hol-m and duma with Skr. dhūma, Lat. fūmus, fūmus (cf. κοπ-ρός with καπ-ρός). cf. W. tomen-dail. Bret. bern-teil.—Ed.

CERBALL i.e. cerr-bél 'wry-mouthed', his mouth on his jaw. Cerball then i.e. cer for focher, fochuir ball or bell 'he waged war' [bell] from bellum 'war'. Cerball, then, means a warlike champion. Inde poeta.

Cerball was a leader on his expedition:
Not very slow were his two hands:
He slew Cormac,—great the shame—
Nine score hundreds five times.

This quatrain is, according to E. Curry, taken from a poem by Gilla na Naemh O'Duinn, who died in 1160. No part of the article is in B and it is probably an interpolation.—Ed.

CEL 'heaven' [occurs supra, p. 36.]

CEL 'death' and every thing of terror.

The root seems cal in Lat. celare, domi-cilium, καλῖα, Ohg. helan. As to the O. Norse Hel gen. Heljar, our hell. see Grimm D.M. 289.—Ed.

CIL i. partial or everything oblique: unde lethchil 'half biased'.

CASTOIT 'chastity' from castitas, [occurs supra p. 35].

CARTOIT i.e. entire devotedness: it is a name for love. [occurs supra, p. 35].

CICHT i.e. 'a carver'.

Explained in H. 3. 18 thus: cicht i. geibire i. rindaire 'a carver or engraver'.—O'D.

O'Davoren, p. 63 has cicht i. geibiach, which seems cognate.—Ed.

CLOINN 'a sword', i.e. because it overcomes (clóides) every injustice.

CULMAIRE i.e. a chariot-builder.

See cul supra, p. 39.

CUISNIT (a) i.e. cosnait i.e. cosnam dála 'disputation in a court'. Or cos na dála 'foot, or bar, or tribune, of the Court', on which the pleader stands: and it is at it or from it he pleads and it is on it he stands. Hence the pleader (dai) is not to be unsteady.

Cuisin from which this word is obviously derived, is explained by O'D. (Supp. to O'R.) 'to sue', 'to follow'. He refers to Welsh Laws p. 401, art. 9. O'Davoren, p. 71, has cuisnet i. *cuisn*7ens [i.e. cuis 'causa' nitens] in tugait taithnemach 'the brilliant cause'.—Ed.

COLOMNA AIS OR ÁISSE 'columns of age' i.e. times (stages of human life), viz., infancy, boyhood, puberty, adolescence, old age, decrepitude.

The word in A, óclachus, which O'D. renders 'adolescence', is oglachass (leg. óglachas) in B, which seems better, óclachas (cf. óclachdi gl. juvenilia Z. 822) being a derivative from óc 'young', and óglachas from óg 'integer' 'perfectus' Z. 28.—Ed.

COIRE 'a caldron' i.e. cói úire 'passage of the raw': úr (is) everything raw i.e. raw flesh.

Not in B. Siegfried compared coire with A.S. hver 'lebes' 'cacabus', Eng. ewer.—Ed.

COIRE BRECCÁIN 'Breccán's caldron' i.e. a great whirlpool which is between Ireland and Scotland to the north, in the meeting of the various seas, viz., the sea which encompasses Ireland at the north-west, and the sea which encompasses Scotland at the north-east, and the sea to the south between Ireland and Scotland. They whirl round (b) like moulding compasses (c), each of them taking the place (d) of the other, like the paddles (e) ... of a millwheel, until they are sucked (f) into the depths so that the caldron remains with its mouth wide open; and it would suck (g) even the whole of Ireland into its yawning gullet. It vomits iterum that draught up, so that its thunderous eructation and its bursting and its roaring are heard among the clouds, like the steam-boiling of a caldron on the fire (h).

Now Breccán son of Main, son of Niall of the Nine Hostages, had fifty currachs trading between Ireland and Scotland, until they fell at one time into the caldron there, and there came from it not one, or, not even tidings of destruction (i); and their fate was not known, until Lugaid, the Blind Poet, came to Bangor, and his people went to the strand of Inver Béce, and found a bare small skull there, and they

(b) Fo-s-ce-d iaram immaisech (= Foscerd iaram immaisech, B) literally: 'It (the caldron) puts them (the seas) under in turns': See focertam 'submittimus', fucertar 'demittitur' Z. 845.

(c) Fochosmailius luathrinne: luathrinne H. 3. 17. p. 664. O'D. [transcript of Brehon laws] 949, a moulding pair of compasses used by iron or brass-founders.—O'D.

(d) Lit. "and each of them is put into another's tomb", tuamm late Lat. and Sp. tumba Dies, E. W. i. 414.—Ed.

(e) Orceil, nom. sg. oircel, Senchas Már, p. 124. I do not know the meaning of tairrechtae, in B tairrechtae.—Ed.

(f) A co suidet, B 7 suigthe: both seem corrupt: Read co ruigetar.—Ed.

(g) 'It would swallow Eire wholly into its vast mouth'.—O'D.

(h) B reads fo cosmuileas ngaluigedar coire mbis for tein.—Ed.

(i) Orne, later oirgne. O'D. cites a proverb nithe oirgne cen scinling 'no destruction without an escaping'.

brought it to Lugaid, and asked him whose was the head; and he said to them: "Put the end of the poet's wand upon it". This was done, et dixit Lugaid the Poet: "The tempestuous water, the waters of [leg. or] the whirlpool (a) destroyed Breccán. This is the head of Breccán's dog; and it is little of great", said he, "for Breccán was drowned with his people in that whirlpool."

After the description of the whirlpool B inserts the following: Breccan din cendaige an do huibh neill .i. curach accendach iter eirind 7 albain dochuireadar iaram forsan choire ni shin 7 rotasluit uile imale 7 niterna cidh sciula orcne as, 'Breccan, then, a noble merchant of the Hy Néill. [had] fifty curraghs trading between Ireland and Scotland. They fell afterwards on that caldron, and it swallowed them (ro-ta-sluighit) all together, and not even news of (their) destruction escaped from it". To this, and not to the Maelstrom, Giraldus Cambrensis appears to refer in Top. Hib. It was situate between the Irish coast and the island of Rathlin, (Reeves, Columba 29 note: the Corrivrekin of Scott's Lord of the Isles and of Leyden's ballad lies between Jura and Scarba.—Ed.

Inver Béce is the ancient name of Drogheda, according to the Book of Lismore, p. 185.—O'D.

CUMAL ['a she-slave'] i.e. a woman that is grinding at a quern; for this was the business of bondswomen before the mills were made.

See Cuan O'Lochain's poem on the beautiful Ciarnaid, the cumhal or bondmaid of king Cormac mac Airt, and on the erection of the first mill in Meath near the hill of Tara. The best copy is in H. 3.3.—O'D.

CREPSCUIL ['evening twilight'] .i. crepuscuil, ab eo quod est crepusculum i.e. dubia lux i.e. nomen for vespers [evening time], ut dixit Colmán mac Léine:

Rop tánaise triúin crepscuil      'It was at the second (hour) of strong twilight

cerd promtha Petair apstail (b)      The ... of trial of Apostle Peter (c)

COTUD 'a whetstone' i.e. everything hard [?], ab eo quod est colis i.e. a stone (lie) i.e. a whetstone on which iron weapons are ground.

Cotud B = cadut A. cotut .i. a cote .i. lie for cid H. 2. 16. col. 97.—Ed.

CEINTICUL [cintecal B:] i.e. Welsh was corrupted there, i.e. cenical, [cainecal B]: it is to this then is the name of this thing among the Britons i.e. to wool (d) whereof they make a blanket (e), unde dicitur "thou hast made a cenntical [cintecol B] of it" etc.

This is the Middle Welsh kenhughel (Laws, i. 308), the Old Welsh form of which was probably some form like contecul (**con-tegulum*?). All the other Welsh words cited in this Glossary are Old Welsh.—Ed.

CETICOL i.e. cét 'chewing', tícol i.e. raw dough.

(a) B has Dobais dotrethan ardaí mba breccan wisce no chaire.

(b) This, substituting crepscuil for crepscuil, is the reading of B.—Ed.

(c) "Second only to triúin vespers (black twilight, strong twilight), was the mode of trial of Peter the Apostle."

This has reference to Peter's denial of Christ, before the crowing of the cock.—O'D.

(d) do olaind cilless B 'of coarse wool'.—Ed.

(e) 'winnowing sheets', 'coarse blankets'.—O'D.

Not in B. O'D. translates cét by 'first', which would be cét. The passage seems hopelessly obscure.—Ed.

COICETUL i.e. a singing together.

Qy. 'harmony'? W. cynganedd.—Ed.

CUISIL 'counsel' i.e. that is Welsh, and Latin was corrupted there: quasi consil, ab eo quod est consilium. Inde dicitur "it is from, or by, thy cuisil ['advice'] it was done".

W. cysyl, Corn. cusul, cusyl, Bret. kuzul.—Ed.

Usually written currach, and now applied to a marsh or fen where shrubs grow. Anciently it also meant a race-course. It was also applied in this sense to Cuirrech chinn Eitigh near Roscommon. See 4 Masters, A.D. 1234, 1397.—O'D. In chaillech reided Currech 'the nun that used to run (over the) Curragh' occurs in Broccán's hymn in praise of Brigit, l. 97, and here, according to Dr. Todd (*Lib. Probably Cormac mac Airt, king of Ireland in the 3rd century, who was believed to have been converted to Christianity.—O'D. The quotation is from a quatrain cited in H. 3. 18. p. 66: Peccad buan ollbrath cach bí. Nirbo flaith im cri com cro. im doenacht a maic de bí. Cid tú bud rig ní bo ro; and the fact that this quatrain begins with a word borrowed from Latin renders it unlikely that it was composed in the third century.—Ed.

Vide supra s.v. Brigit.—O'D. If the Dagdae was a god (and in H. 2. 16, col. 99 the glossographer explains the word by dagh-dia 'good god') Cera may come from the root KAR, and be connected with the Latin cerus 'creator', Ceres etc.—Ed.

From a poem attributed to S. Cíaran of Cluain-mac-nois, who died at the age of 33, Sept. 9, A. D. 549. It is fabled that his death was caused by the prayers of the other saints of Ireland, who envied him his fame for sanctity and miracle-working. The poem was composed to counteract the effect of their prayers, or at least to complain of those who wished to cut short his life before he had produced fruit worthy of his ministry.—O'D.

QUARTA LITTERA.

DOMNALL i.e. doman-nuall i.e. the celebrity (nuall) of the world (domain) about him. Or Domnall i.e. doman-uáill i.e. pride of (the) world about him.

Domn is from the same root as the Latin dominus, [Skr. damana], and the last syllable all (a common termination of the proper names of men) is the adjective all 'great', 'mighty', 'noble'.—O'D., identified by Siegfried with the Skr. arya. The domn is possibly = Gaulish Dubnus (Glück K.N. 68, O. Welsh Dubn) with which Glück connects the Goth. diup 'deep'. But I would rather follow Siegfried in referring it, with Dumno Domnos in Dumno-riz, Verjugo-dumnus, Δομνοκλειος and the O. Ir. coimdemnacht (gl. dominatus), condemnedar (gl. dominatur), to dominus, damana.—Ed.

DIARMAIT a man's name, i.e. di-airmit, there is no airmit i.e. injunction upon him.

di is the privative particle, which Glück sees in the Gaulish Di-ablintres. From airmit comes a verb which occurs in the Tripartite Life, and is curiously mistranslated in Mr. Skene's Chronicles of the Picts and Scots, p. 17.—Ed.

DUTHCERN [Duithcernd B, 'niggardly' 'churlish'] i. di-shuithcern, 'not suith-cern i.e. not suith i.e. not sochla.

Sochla is said to mean 'good' in O'D. Supp. Here O'D. guesses it to be 'happy'.—In B suith-cern is glossed by tiodlaicthe 'given'. O'Clery explains doithchearnas by dochearnas i. dothiodhnacal no droicheineach.—Ed.

DISS [Dis B] 'puny', 'weak' ab eo quod est dispectus i.e. feeble, insignificant.

• Dis i. dearoil, O'Clery.—Ed.

DENMNE [deinme B] i.e. di- for negation, i.e. di-ainmne 'without patience'.

O'Clery has Deinmne i. luath ('swift') no deithbhreach ('hasty'): ainmne Z. 1042, (gl. patientiam) Z. 1045.—Ed.

DISCREHT i. discretus locus [i. log discreitech B].

a hiding place?—O'D.

DOTCHAID [leg. Dothchaid ?] i. dí-thacaid 'without riches or prosperity'.

Re-occurs infra. B has dotced i. di-toiced: dodchad 'infelicitas' Z. 606.—Ed.

DIUMUSACH ['haughty'] i.e. di-amusach 'he brings not a soldier (amus) to (do) anything, but seeks to achieve [?] it alone.

Diummusach i. di-ammusach B. diummussag (gl. superbus) Z. 1051.—Ed. Hence the name Dempsey.—O'D.

DIUTHACH or DIUTHANN nomen doloris which is produced by rubbing thy two thighs in travelling.

After this article B has Dairmitiu i. diairmitiu i. nemairmitiu.—Ed.

DÁL i. 'a division', inde dicitur Dál Ríata and Dál nAraide.

So Beda, Eccl. Hist. lib. i. c. i.—O'D. Hence the verb fo-dlat 'discernunt' Z. 33, where he compares the W. daut (?) W. dol, a dale.—Ed.

DABACH ['a tub'] i.e. dé-oach 'two-eared', i.e. two ears (handles) upon it, for there used to be no handles on vessels at first.

cf. caile dabha (gl. famula) and dabach (gl. caba), Ir. Glosses, Nos. 158, 277.—Ed.

DOMAN [Dommun B] 'the world' i. dé-oman 'double fear' i.e. fear of death and of hell. Doman i.e. dimain 'vain', from its transitoriness. Doman (quasi) deman for its covetousness. Doman i.e. de-main, two wealths are ... through it (a) i.e. heaven and earth.

DÍRE 'a fine' i. dí-aire 'two distinctions' (?) to nobles for their nobility, or digalre 'compensation' (b) i. di-er rithe (c) 'two ..... that were given to nobles for their nobility.

O'D reads di erridhe, and translates these words "two payments made": dire is the W. dirwy f.—Ed.

DÍGAL ['vengeance'] i.e. nem-gal 'non-crying' i.e. the crying ceases [anad, anad B] of every one for whom is wrought revenge [digabail 'diminution' B] of wretchedness (d): di at one time is negation, at another, augmentation (e). Aliter diagal i.e. lamentation with the one party and weeping (gol) from the other. Diagal then i.e. dé-gul 'a double cry'.

digal is the Welsh dial 'vengeance'. The word gal, gol, gul 'cry', 'wail' is from the root GAL, GAR, Skr. grī, (Beitr. V. 223). The word translated 'of wretchedness'—aprainde—seems the gen. sg. of a deriv. from apprinn which is thus explained in H. 2. 16, col. 89: græce aporea (ἀπορία) i. egestas latine dommatu i. is dometu na dernad. O'Clery, too, has aprainn i. olc ('evil'), aprainn i. truagh ('wretched'), dioghal aprainne i. dioghal truagh. O'Donovan read a phrainde, translating 'of his dinner'.—Ed.

DIE i. e. a day; inde dicitur olc die i.e. a bad day: die, then, from dies [leg. deus], for it is from gods (déib) that the pagans used to name their days, ut est dies Jovis, dies Veneris. Die also (means) lamentation, ut Colman mac hui Cluasaig dixit:—

A heart without sorrow is not good;
Dead-sick is every one who is weeping (f):
(For) the son whom they rejected to the west of Cliu,
(I am) in grief for Cuimine.

(a) O'D omits to translate conagair trit, for which B has alcotar trit.—Ed.

(b) digalre in Z. 742 is explained 'defectus morbi' 'sanitas' sed qu.—Ed.

(c) di-er rithe, B.

(d) 'Diagal digestion' i. nem-gal, the allaying of the appetite of everyone who digests his dinner'.—O'D.

(e) di cach la cein is diultad alaill is aidblugad B.—Ed.

(f) B has Nímaith cridhe ce (n) chíe mairb téim coich be a díe inna roimdatair iarcliu óa beo tar cummeniu.—Ed.
The words coit fús tar cuminiu, interlined in A, mean 'which is a wilderness after Cuimine'.—O'D.

See Todd Lib. Hymn. 71 et seq.—Ed. Cuimine was the poet's fosterson.—O'D. Die 'day' is written dia by O'Clery. W. diau 'days'.—Ed.

DETHBIR [Deitber B] 'lawful' i. e. di-ath-bir: di- 'not' across the ath- for cath ('battle'): bir 'a word', there will not be logomachy about it (a).

dedbir Z. 606,—deithbhir i. dligtheach, O'Clery.—Ed.

DINIM [dinnim B] i. di-shnim 'without fatigue', i.e. there is no fatigue about it.

'untiredness' guesses O'D. O'Reilly glosses dinnim by dereoil 'feeble', which makes one think of W. dinwyf.—Ed. Snimh means either 'sadness' or 'spinning' (cf. νήσις, for σνήσις?)

DÁSÓCHT [dasacht B] 'madness' i. dí-socht i. e. is not silent. Or dasocht i. e. di-osacht, it is not at rest, but [going] from place to place, both as to motion and speaking.

Dásacht 'insania', Z. 771, dásachtach 'insanus', Z. 777.—Ed.

Doss i.e. a name of a grade of poets i.e. from his resemblance to a bush (doss). The fochloc is a doss in the second year, i.e. (there are) four leaves upon him: the doss has four (to accompany him on his visitation) in the territory.

doss was the name of a poet of the third order.—O'D. He had 50 stories, Senchas Mór, 45.—Ed.

DIBURDUD [Diburtud B] i.e. dibrú aited 'expulsion of vengeance' (b), i.e. the end of the eric (is) this, i.e. fosterage on friendship [?] so that there be no evil-mind [ill-feeling] afterwards.

Similar glosses occur in H. 2.16 col. 101: Diubrudath i. dibru aited broc debta. Dibrutud dibru aited. niargairi in mbroc debta. Diburudud, translated 'compensation', occurs in Senchas Mór pp. 230, 232: cf. the verb diubraitir 'full satisfaction is made', O'D.'s supp. to O'R. Cinadus, translated 'friendship', seems a derivative from cin gen. cinad 'fault' 'crime'.—Ed.

DOBRITH i. dobur and ith i.e. water and corn: this is (the) allowance of people of repentance and penitence.

O'D guesses 'gruel' or 'pottage'. O'Davoren p. 79, also explains dobrith as a compound of dobur and ith. 'Or, he says, 'bir 'water' in the British and ith 'corn' in the Gaelic. And it is to this that the author's mind was directed (when he said) that it was not easier for him to be a week (living) on corn and on water than to be fasting two (days) till night every month of the three months'.—Ed.

DOBUR, i.e. two things it signifies (c): dobur first, is water, unde dicitur dobarchú i.e. water-dog, i.e. an otter. Dobar also everything dark (d) i.e. everything opaque: do- a negative and pur from [Lat.] purus i.e. transparent. Dobur then i.e. di-phur i.e. impure i.e. impure or opaque.

DEÓL 'twilight', i.e. dé-dhúal i. belonging (dúal) to night and belonging (dúal) to day, i.e. so that it is light mixed of darkness and of light.

(a) O'D translates the particle aith as if it was áth 'a ford' which of course makes the passage greater nonsense than it is.—Ed.

(b) O'D read dibru aited i. dibru aidiud, and translates 'the rendering of full satisfaction'.—Ed.

(c) fordingair 'so-called'.—O'D.

(d) In O'Davoren's glossary, p. 73, s. v. Dubh, docha should doubtless be dorcha.—Ed.

Dedbl, i.e. dia-dhual i.e. two goodly distributions to God, actual and theoretic (corporal and spiritual works).

huan cetnu dedol ind laithi (gl. a primo crepusculo) Milan, remdedoldae (gl. antelucanus) Z. 731, remdedólte Z. 84.—Ed.

DROCH i. everything bad: ut est droch-ben 'a bad woman' or drochfher 'a bad man'.

Drag i. teine ('fire') i. fearg ('anger'), O'Clery.—O'D.

DREND 'a quarrel', unde dicitur drennach 'quarrelsome': drenn also is 'rough', unde dicitur aindrend i.e. a mountain.

So O'Davoren, p. 73: drenn i. debaid ut est nis dring drenga 'he did not fight fights', whence it would seem that there was a second form dreng: cf. Asglan and Asglang supra.—Ed. Drenn 'rough' frequently enters into topographical names.—O'D.

DEL [Deil B] i. a cow's teat, unde dicitur in the Bretha nemed 'until there are to him two milks of teats' (a), aliter dalta ('alumnus') dádel i.e. son of two cows.

'fostered on the milk of two cows' O'D. del = Gr. Σηλή, Ohg. tila. Hence apparently delech 'a milch cow' Senchas Mór, 64 and cf. dedel 'a calf', infra p. 61.—Deala i. sine no ballán ('a teat or a milkpail') O'Clery.—Ed.

DELIUGUD 'distinction' 'separation' i.e. deliugud of the (one) thing from another, as teats which are named delai [dela B] are separated. (Or) deliugud i.e. de-ailecad 'two divisions' [?]

DITHREB 'a wilderness' i.e. to be without a house (treb) or without an inhabitant [trebaide A, trebad 'ploughing' B] there.

B adds cia roderacht nunc 'though great bareness now': deracht 'to strip' O'D. supp. to O'R. cf. δέπω, Skr. dri 'findere', Goth. ga-tair-a, Eng. to tear.—Ed.

DROICHET 'a bridge' i.e. every one passes over (doroichet) it from one side to the other of the water or the trench. Droichet, again, i.e. droich-shét, i.e. a straight road, for droch is everything straight i.e. unstraightness is not fitting for it, so that it be not slippery. Or droch-shét a bad road, from its badness.

DESHRUITH [desruith B] 'insignificant' [?] i.e. di-sruith, not a sruith 'senior', dignified person'.

(a) 'until he is to get the milk of two teats'.—O'D.

(b) 'there were people'.—O'D.

B adds no dessruith i. brethem ('a judge'), unde dicitur ambrethaib neimeth ('in the Bretha Nemed') derrith (leg. desrith?) fial filidh ('a generous judge to a poet'): sruith is the O. Welsh strut, pl. strutiu Juvencus, p. 6.—Ed.

DEME i. teime, i.e. teim [tem B] is everything [dark or everything] black, unde dicitur temen i.e. darkness (a). Deme then for the darkness of night.

From deimh 'tenebrosus'.—Ed. Cognate with Eng. [and A. S.] dim.—O'D.=O.N. dimmr (dimma tenebrescere).—Ed.

DEMESS 'a pair of shears' i.e. mess déde 'edge of two things there i.e. two knives with it. Or demas i.e. dé-em-as 'two handles from it' [i.e.] from its two knives (b). Or mes i.e. 'edge', ut dicitur Mes-gegra.

Manx jeuish.—Ed. Mesgegra [Messgedra B] was a hero of Leinster, slain by Conall Cernach.—O'D.

DOMMAE 'poor' (c) i.e. de-sommae 'unwealthy'.

Hence dommetu 'poverty' Z. 272: cf. sommas 'dives' Z. 727, and Lib. Armach. 18a, 2.—Ed.

DUBACH 'sorrowful', i.e. di-shubach 'uncheerful', i.e. dí for negation, dé, or du or do for negation.

DUILBIR 'cheerless' i.e. dí for negation.

Still in use: opposite of suilbhir 'cheerful'.—O'D.

DULBAIR 'not eloquent' i.e. do-labair 'ill-spoken', di-shulbair not sulbair 'eloquent', not so-labair.

Sulbair, whence the verb sulbairigim 'bene loquor' Z. 833, 586 = O. W. helabar.—Ed.

DIMSE 'ugliness' [?] i.e. di-maisse.

Dimsi is the reading of B. cf. dimess 'contemptio' Z. 832. The diuire of A is obviously wrong.—Ed.

DOTHCHAID 'poor' [?] i. do-sothchaid i.e. not sothchedach, 'not wealthy'.

A here is quite corrupt: cf. dothchaid supra p. 49: cf. the adjectives sothchedach, dothchedach, Senchas Mór, p. 40.—Ed.

DONÆ [Dona B] 'wretched' i.e. dí-áne i.e. to be without áne 'wealth'.

is uad rochinset B. Corco-laighdhe is a territory in the S.W. of the county of Cork, extending from Bandon to Crookhaven and to the river of Kenmare.—O'D.

DUARFHINE, a name for the poets, i.e. tribe of duars, duar, then, is a word. Duar-fine, then, the tribe who are for arranging, i.e. words. Duar also, is a name for a quatrain, ut dicitur in the Bretha nemed 'cia duar donesa nath', i.e. the quatrain that is most excellent for the panegyric. [no is aidercae B].

(a) unde dicitur temel ? temen B.—Ed. (b) O'D read de-scín for deg-scín. (c) 'Scanty' or 'scarce'.—O'D.

A (and O'D follows A in this) puts this article under Dairfine. B., however, has the distinct article Duarfine.—Ed.

DIAN-CÉCHT a name for the sage of the leechcraft of Ireland, i.e. dia na-cecht, 'god of the powers': cecht then is a name for every power. Diancécht i.e. deus salutis i.e. of health. Diancecht then is the god of health, ut dixit Néde mac Adnai cechtsam dercca aithacenmairm ailcne (a) 'we have mastered eyes with a pebble's rebound'.—ailcne i.e. a small splinter which flew [?] from the stone and struck his eye so that he was blind. He spoke of its power upon him. Non ut imperiti dicunt cecht som, i.e. caech-som 'it blinded'.

The name of Dian-cécht occurs in the S. Gall incantations, Z. 926. As to Néde mac Adnai's blinding, see Three Irish Glossaries, pp. xxxix, xl.—Ed.

DÉACH ['a general name for a combination of two or more syllables up to octosyllables', 'a syllable'] i. de-fuach i. e. de-focul 'of a word' fuach a word i.e. meeting in a word [?] i.e. syllable with syllable. The déach is least. For though a syllable is called déach, this is not ..... but it is called déach because it is under the déach, or is a déach's foundation, and it is from that (words) grow to the end of bricht wherein are i.e. eight syllables, as is said in Latin unus non est numerus, sed ab eo crescunt numeri (b). Now the poets of the Gael reckon eight déachs, and a monosyllable (cos) is that dialt, i.e. because there is no joint (alt=artus) in it, and it is not divided. Recomarc is the second déach, i.e. from meeting with another, i.e. a syllable with a syllable, ut Cormac. Iarcomarc is the third déach, i.e. an after-meeting, after the first meeting, ut Cormacán. Fíles the fourth déach (c) because it folds (filles); if four be put round a tree downwards or round anything else, it is in a filled ('turn') that the quaternity folds round it (d), i.e. two hither and two thither, not uneven is that burden (ere), for there is no odd syllable (e) outside its two halves (f), ut est Mur-chert-ach-án. Not so the déach which is after it i.e. Clænre the fifth déach. It is called clænré, because it is divided unevenly [clæn 'obliquus'] though it is put round a thing, for heavier and more are three than are two; for there are five syllables in a clænré, as is fian-am-ail-ech-ar. The sixth déach is luibenchosach: luib i.e. luibne is the finger of the hand, and the cos of the fingers from them upwards, i.e. the elbow and the hand (g), as far as the joint of the shoulder; and it is to this in a human being's body that the [sixth] déach is compared. Six joints from the end (h) of the finger to the joint of the shoulder. Six syllables also are in a luibenchossach, ut est fian-am-ail-ech-ar-ad. Claidemnus, the seventh déach, i.e. claidem manus, i.e.

(a) This is the reading of B. O'D's version is "the flying of the stone exerted its power over my eye".—Ed.

(b) B translates this: ni numir a haon acht is nadh fhasait na numrecha.—Ed.

(c) B reads: ainm an cethrama deich 'name of the fourth deach'.—Ed.

(d) "It folds equally about it, i.e. two on one side and two on the other: there is no unevenness in the number".—O'D.

(e) lit. "syllable of superfluity" (forcriith, forcraid).—Ed.

(f) 'In either division'.—O'D.

(g) "the radius and the palm".—O'D.

(h) ind = O.W. hinn (gl. limite), Juvenius, p. 26, Goth. andais 'end'.—Ed.

of the hand, i.e. claidem is all from the end of the finger to the joint, that is between the shoulderblade and the maethán: seven joints, then, are therein: seven syllables in a claidemnus: ut est fian-am-ail-ech-ar-ad-ard. Bricht is the eighth déach, because it is exalted (bríghther); for thereof is made a nath: this, then, is the most excellent of them, that in which a nath is composed darinné ellcithir nadellaing nath [?]. Eight joints, then, are from the end of the finger to the retaking of the maethán into the shoulderblade. Eight syllables also are in a bricht, ut est fian-am-ail-ech-ar-ad-ar-dae.

O'D's version of the first two sentences of the article is: "Deach, a metrical foot, i.e. de-fhuach, i.e. the meeting of words, for fuach means a word. Deach is the smallest division of a word; it is a technical name for a syllable, not because it is a syllable, but because it is the materies of which words grow from the dissyllabic to the octosyllabic".—Ed. Déach in H. 3, 18, p. 634, col. 4, is so written, and explained as dé-fuach i. comrac da sillab i. traig 7 gip lín sillabh conrisidh and iarsin is deech (sic) a ainm beos, "i.e. a meeting of two syllables, i.e. a foot; and whatever be the number of syllables it attains to afterwards, déach is still its name."—Ed.

DELIDIND [Delidin B, delind A] 'inversion of letters', i.e. separation (deiliugud) from the end (ind), ut est ref, i.e. a delidind of fer (a).

DELG i.e. del 'a wand' in its straightness, unless it be 'death'.

cf. deil i. eclasc, O'Don. Supp. to O'R. deil i. dealughadh 'separation' ib.—Ed.

DEMI [Deme B] i.e. everything neuter with the Latiner is deme with the Gaelic poet.

v. supra s.v. Adba Othnoe and infra s.v. Traeth.—Ed.

DOIDUINE, i.e. dag-duine 'a good man', ut Néde mac Adnai said innse glam do doiduinu 'hard (to make) a satire on a good man'. Da, then, is everything good in the Welsh, ut dicitur gruc da, i.e. a good woman.

Doedune i. dechduine occurs in H. 3. 18. p. 69, col. 2: doi 'good' is, like dioc dívus, from the root div.—Ed.

DRUCHTA DEA, i.e. corn and milk, ut Scoti dicunt druchta dea Dromma Ceta 'the goodly [?] dews of Druim Ceta'.

Druim Ceata, a place on the river Roe, near Newtown Limavady in the Co. of Derry, where was held, A. D. 590, a convention at which S. Columb-cille presided.—O'D. déa—O'Clery writes drichtha déa—is the gen. pl. of dia 'god', and = Lat. dívo-m.—Ed.

DERB-LOMA ('a churn') i.e. de urbaigh doniter í ('by cutting [?] it is made') no di-sherb .i. ni serb ammbi inti ('not bitter what is in it').

Loma is the gen. sg. of loim 'milk'. Derb is written dearbħ by O'Clery, and explained by cuinneog (=W. cunnog 'milkpail') no ballán. He illustrates the word by the phrase m-hó-sa re hó na dearbħa 'my ear at the ear (handle) of the churn'.—Ed.

DISCIR .i. dis a coir ('little its justice') [dis] .i. bec ('little').

DUL .i. cainte ('a satirist') dofulachta é ara doilge ('unendurable is he for his harshness').

So O'Clery: Dul .i. cainteóir no fer aoire ('man of satire') 7 as dofhulang é da bhrigh sin.—Ed.

DULEBAD .i. dola fid vel quasi de lebad .i. de levitaté .i. ar etroma ('for (its) lightness').

Same as the modern duileabhair 'foliage'.—O'D.

DUAIRC ('sad') .i. doairesina .i. ni hail la nech cid a descin ('one does not like at all to be seen') no diserc é ('or he is unamiable').

A living word: opposite to suairc.—O'D.

DOSS .i. fili ('poet'), quasi duass ('a gift') .i. tinscra ('a reward') .i. tinde argaid ('a ring of silver').

Duasach 'bountiful', O'D. Gr. 340. O'Clery explains Tionnscrea by coibhche, 'buying'; but it may also mean 'a reward' or 'payment'. In H. 2. 16: Duas .i. δῶς græce tinscra .i. tinde argit 7 escra ('a ring of silver and a vessel'). The meaning of the glossographer seems to be that a doss or poet was so called from the duas or gift that was made to him.—Ed.

DALL ('blind'), a talpa no di-sell .i. cen tsuile ('without eyes') quia est sell .i. suil ('an eye').

Mac Firis glosses talpa by pest dall.—O'D. Manx doal, W. dall. The Ir. sell 'eye' seems cognate with W. syllu 'to observe', Br. sellout, sellet.—Ed.

DAL .i. a dalin hebraico sithula .i. sithlad (a) in lenda dognither aga dail ('the filtering of the ale which is made in its distribution').

DAM a verbo domo .i. taiberim no ardam fria gabail.

I do not understand this: taiberim is dono not domo (arin taibrid 'ut detis' Z. 441 taibre, toibre 'da' 'des' Z. 998 1050, 1051). (Perhaps the glossographer meant dam 'an ox', which is certainly cognate with domo, δάμαλις, Skr. damya etc. ar-dhamh is now 'a plough'): dáimhim, damhaim, 'I yield', 'grant', 'concede', dámtha 'concession' dámthain 'to concede', O'D.'s suppt., may be connected with dam.—Ed.

DOCHO interpretatur puto unde doig dicitur.

docho (like arco supra) is an example of the old vocalic ending of the 1 pers. present indic. active (see Beitræge zur vergl. sprachf. III. 47, 48). It is cognate with δορέω. Doig may here be the 3rd sg. pres. indic., but in Z. 85 it is an adj. 'verisimilis', compar. dochu Z. 284. Doich a verbo docho puto H. 2. 16. col. 100.—Ed. Docho and doigh are still living words, for 'likely' 'probable': is doigh liom 'I think' or 'I am of opinion'.—O'D.

DERCAINED .i. dicredim ('disbelief') .i. im fagbail fochraicee ('as to obtaining reward').

Evidently a religious term to denote despair.—O'D. Read derchóined, and cf. derchóiniud 'desperatio' Z. 41.—Ed.

DEBAID ('a fight') .i. dede baothi aci no dede buith oei ('two follies it has, or two parties to be in it').

DESS ('right hand', 'south') quasi des a dextera.

Ir. des, Z. 58, 147, =Skr. daksha: W. deheu, Corn. dyghow, Br. dehou=Goth. taihsvó, Ohg. zesawa, δεξιά.—Ed.

DÉR ('a tear') a graeco dero cado, quia cadunt lacrymae.

dér f. gen. dére, Manx jeir, is from **dacr*=W. dagr, M. Bret. dazrou, δάκρυ, lacruma, dacruma, Goth. tagr, Eng. tear.—Ed.

DESCAID ('lees') .i. caid iat 7 suabais, quia fit [ms. fid] des gach suabais. Descaid .i. daoscainraigidh (a) na daine ebait é (i.e. caidh ..... are they and pleasant, for des is everything pleasant. Descaid i.e. it debases the people who drink it').

DUILE .i. duilio [δουλεύω] .i. servio .i. fogantaide [leg. fogantaigi, H. 3. 18, p. 69 col. 3].

So in H. 2. 16., col. 100: Duli, duleo graece. servio latine duli din fognamthide. Here are two more verbs with the vocalic ending in the 1st sg. pres. indic. act. In Old Irish mss. they would have been written duiliu and fogantaigi. They belong to the i-conjugation, like atchiu 'I see', airmiu 'I reckon', atluindlu 'I call to', báigi 'I fight', conairiu 'I call', gaibiu 'I take', guidiu 'I pray', ibiu 'I drink', tibiu 'I smile', etc.—Ed.

DALB .i. brég ('a falsehood') a dolo .i. on ceilg.

dalbh in O'Clery, who has also the derivative dalbhda .i. doilbthi .i. draoidheacht 'magic'.—O'D. The Skr. dalbha, Gr. δόλος, O.N. tál are cognate.—Ed.

DESCUD imorro [Ms. u] cind .i. des do cud ('pleasant to a head') .i. don chind iatside ('to the head are they') quia fit cud .i. cend ('head') ut dicitur falcud ('headwashing').

Another form of descaid supra, and should come immediately after that article.—O'D. falcud seems merely bad spelling for folcud=W. golchi 'lavare'.—Ed.

DEUTH .i. oinmit ('an oaf') quasi diraith cen fiach fair ina chintaib ('suretyless' without a debt on him for his crimes').

acht aithgin ('save restitution') adds H. 3. 18, p. 69 col. 3. sef yw drud dyn ynyf (oinmit), Welsh Laws, cited by Pughe s. v. Drud.—Ed.

DRUTH .i. merdreach ('a harlot') .i. dir aod iside .i. a losgrad bad dír quia fit aodh .i. tine ('dír-aedh is she, i. e. to burn her were right (dír), because aedh is 'fire').

(a) Ms. daoscainraigidh, but in H. 3. 18, p. 69, col. 3, daoscainrigid: cf. doiscari (gl. vilitatem) Z. 743.—Ed.

See Diez, Etym. Wört. i. 159. s. v. Drudo. See also Mertrech infra. O'Davoren p. 75 has Druth .i. droch duine 'malus homo'. As to aed v. supra p. 5, and add M. Bret. oaz 'jealousy'.—Ed.

DROIGEN ('blackthorn') .i. trog-aon ('wretched one') aon is trogmaire do cranduib ar imad a delg ('one of the most miserable of trees because of (the) abundance of its thorns').

Cf. W. draen.—O'D. Corn. drain (gl. spina), Manx drine: in Zeuss 738 draigen glosses pirus (leg. prunus?).—Ed.

DRIS ('brambles') .i. der-uis .i. deroil ('small') 7 uis ('use' (a)) inde dicitur dreaan ('a wren') .i. der 7 en .i. en bec deroil no drui en .i. en doni failsine ('der' 'small', and én 'bird' i.e. a little small bird, or drui-én 'a druid-bird' i.e. a bird that makes prophecy').

Driss (gl. vepres) Z. 139 [pl. drissi, Milan] Corn. dreisan.—O'D. pl. Corn. dreis (gl. vepres), O. Welsh drisi (gl. tribulis, gl. spinis, gl. dumos). Hence O. Ir. dristenach 'dumetum' Z. 777. O'Davoren p. 79, explains Drisiuc as 'he who is a bramble (dris) for tearing and who is a dog (cú) for churlishness or for shamelessness'.—Ed.

As to the dredn, W. dryw, in the life of S. Moling preserved in Marsh's Library (Dublin) 3. 1. 4. fol. 70, the wren is called "magus avium eo quod aliquibus praebet augurium".—O'D.

DERNA ('the palm of the hand') .i. eodem modo [scil. from der 'small'] no dí-r-ni .i. ní diriuch no reidh ('a thing straight or smooth') ut dicitur ní reidi derna ('a thing smoother than a palm').

DILMUIN .i. dele muin .i. deligud ('a separation') cin ní for a muin ('without any thing on his back, muin') no di lanamain .i. cin mnái aige ('without a wife with him').

Zeuss 25, 733, 739 explains dilmin, dilmain by 'licitus' [?]: O'Clery by dileas 'proprius', 'justus': the derivative dilmaine means 'rightful forfeiture' Senchas Mór, pp. 210, 258. O'Davoren pp. 73, 79 explains dilmuin by dilis 'rightful' and quotes ar it dilmuine air a reir bretheman 'for they are dilmuine according to a brehon's sentence' and nach duine dobeir a geall in dilmuine, which he explains by nech dilmuiniges a geall tarceann neich 7 donio aithrige 'whoever forfeits his pledge for any one and who pays security'.—Ed.

DELG ('a pin'). i. delseacc no deleg ex quo legid [leg. ligat] duas partes togae.

DUBAD ('blackening') dybos [?] graece .i. niger.

A derivative from the adj. dub (W. du) an u-stem. The oghamic Duſtano on the Killeen Cormac inscription, seems to represent a primeval Celtic Dubutanós gen. sg. of the u-stem Dubu-tanus 'Black-thin': cf. dub-glas (gl. caeruleus).—Ed.

DILI ('a flood') .i. diluvium .i. puratum .i. scris no glanad an talman ('scraping or cleansing (b) of the earth').

gen. sg. dilenn, Note to Féilire, Dec. 11.—Ed.

DRAI ('an enchanter') .i. dorua ái .i. aircetal ar is tria dan dognisium a brechta ('i.e. poetry, for it is through his art that he makes his incantations').

This word (now draoi) is to be separated from drui 'a druid' gen. druid, and (I think) to be identified with the A.S. drý 'magus'.—Ed.

(a) 'growth'.—O'D.

(b) "rinsing or washing".—O'D.

DITHO graece pauper latine unde dithachtach dicitur.

Read, perhaps, dithachta, and cf. dúth (gl. detrimentum)? Z. 26.—Ed.

DAG .i. maith ('good') DROCH .i. ole ('bad') unde dicitur droch do drochaib dag do dagaib ('bad to the bad and good to the good').

DROCH din .i. roth carpuir ('wheel of a chariot').

Perhaps Gr. ροχός, if this be for σπορός: droch óir ('a hoop of gold'?) occurs in Lib. Arm. 17 b. 1.—Ed.

DICMAIRC ['theft'] .i. cin athcomarc ('without asking').

Read Dichmairc as in Senchas Mór, pp. 166, 172. Diochmairc .i. goid ('theft') O'Clery.—Ed.

DIBADH .i. adbulbas ('an enormous death').

In all genealogical books, this word is used in the sense of extinction, to become extinct, or to die without issue, which is evidently the idea intended to be expressed by adbul-bhás.—O'D. Diobhadh .i. bás.—O'Clery. Dibath .i. adbul bás .i. iarsinn na facuib nech dia éis ('because it leaves not any one after it'), H. 3. 18. p. 68, col. 3: fai-thi cen dibad, Colmán's Hymn, 44. Is diba (see Gaire infra) W. difa, cognate with dibadh?—Ed.

DEDEL .i. laogh bó ('a cow's calf').

Dedhel .i. láogh bó.—O'Clery. Perhaps a reduplicated form: cf. del supra p. 52, and Goth. daddja lacto.—Ed.

DUILLÉN .i. gai ('javelin') ut dixit fer muman

Is dana drech doimine	Bold is Doimin's face
iter ocu erigthi	Amongst warriors arising,
is asithbrug suidigt(h)i	Seated in a fairy court,
leigthi duillén deiligthe.	He casts a cleaving javelin.

Duilleann .i. ga, O'Clery.—Ed.

DALLBACH .i. dallfuach.

'a blind word': perhaps it means a decision by lot? Daldbach .i. airbere tre chuibhdíus 7 ní fes cia da ndentar .i. dallfuach, H. 3. 18. p. 69, col. 2.—Ed.

DER .i. adbal ('great') ut est dermar .i. adbalmor ('very big', 'immense').

Used as a prefix.—O'D. See Zeuss 834, where dermár glosses enormis, immensum.—Ed.

DAIF .i. deogh ('drink').

O'Clery agrees, and adds as an example ro ól a dhaif .i. do íbh a dhigh 'he drank his drink'.—O'D.

DER .i. ingen ('a girl').

v. supra s. v. Ainder. If the word is really Irish, it might be referred to the root dhá 'to drink', 'suck', whence del, delech, dedel. But it is impossible to connect it with duh, whence duhitar, ḡvyaríp, daughter.—Ed.

DOE .i. duine ('a human being').

cf. Doiduine supra, and qy. if this gloss has not originated in a misunderstanding of that word. Skr. dhava-s would be dó in Irish, as lava 'hair' is ló.—Ed.

DORBLUS ('darkness') .i. dobar-lux ('darkness-light') .i. etarscarad lai 7 aidh-qui ('separation of day and night').

Seems to mean diluculum, or the twilight of dawn: as to dobar see dobur .i. cach ndoirche supra, p. 53.—Ed.

DLUG .i. acobar ('a desire').

Dlugh .i. acobar, H. 2. 16. col. 100. The word occurs in a quatrain attributed to Colum cille in H. 3. 11. p. 80: Nóebrí gréine glan, As caoime cach dlug, Atach n-amra dam, Ar slúag ndemna ndub ('The holy, pure King of the sun, who is more loveable than any desire, an admirable prayer for me against a host of black demons').—Ed.

DOBRACH .i. fiuchaide ('moist') ut est fer muman anduain an merligh ('in the Poem of the Robber').

Ulcha dobrach andomnach	A beard moist on Sunday,
a luan a mairt mac meirnech(a)	On Monday, on Tuesday he is a mariner [?]
fo bratach senrech sroiglech (b)	Under sheets prosperous, flowing [?]
sruamach maignech mil meirlech	With great hosts [?] is the plundering hero.

Dobhrach is an adj. from dobhur 'water'.—O'D. The first line of the quatrain and part of the second are correctly rendered. O'D's translation of the remainder is mere guesswork.—Ed.

DAM hebraice damae enim tacens interpretatur.

H. 2. 15 adds: ut dicitur fer fordaim.—O'D. fer for dami eo quod tacet H. 2. 16, col. 99.—Ed.

DIAMAIN .i. di-anim ('without blemish') [.i. neamhainmheach, O'Clery].

So O'Davoren, 76, 'Diamuin .i. glan 'pure' ut est diamuin tortach torbach 'pure, fruitful profitable', and it says in (another place) diamuin fri slan i. e. he is pure to pay eric to her.'—Ed.

DIAMAIN .i. idan ('faithful') .i. main diada ('godly wealth').

dimáin .i. idhan .i. máin diadha, H. 3. 18. p. 68. col. 3.—Ed.

DEACH .i. de fuach .i. comruc da sillab conristar conad deach ainm gach sillaiðe iarsin ('the union of two syllables that are reached (c), so that deach is the name of every syllable after that').

I suspect that something has been dropt after 'da sillab'. See citation from H. 3. 18 p. 634, supra s. v. Déach. O'D reads conristar and, and translates "the union of two syllables is reckoned in it" (and).

DUIS .i. dusma graece mirabilis latine.

O'D supposes that 'dusma' is meant for θauμαστός. The Irish word is explained uasal 'noble' by O'Davoren p. 76, who quotes barc co n-duisib ingantaib i. co seduib uaislib ('a barque) with noble treasures'; but this seems a blunder, for uaislib here obviously translates ingantaib the dat. pl. of inganta 'admirable', and moreover, O'Clery has duis .i. sed ('a treasure'), or-dhuisse .i. seoid ordha 'golden treasures'.—Ed.

(a) feirnech H. 3. 18, p. 635, col. i.—Ed.

(b) Sernech soimlech, ibid.—Ed.

(c) 'turned', O'D.

QUINTA LITTERA.

EMAIN 'Emania' i.e. eo-muin i.e. eo 'pin' and muin 'neck': eo-muin, then, i.e. a pin behind or across a neck i.e. a brooch (a). Thus was the outline of the fort described by the woman (Queen Macha), when she was sitting (b) she took her pin from her garment to measure around her with her pin. Further, then, the pin extended from her eastwards before her than when returning behind her. Therefore the fort is uneven.

B adds: No em ab ema [αμα] id est sanguine quia ema sanguis est (c). Uin i.e. unus quia sanguis unius hominis [effusus est] in tempore conditionis e[j]us. The superstition here referred to, as to the need of immolating a human being to insure the stability of a building, is still current in India. See further Three Irish Glossaries pref. xli, note: see too Irish Nennius, Additional Notes, p. xxiv, for Johannes Malalas' legend of the foundation of Antioch by Seleucus Nicator.—Ed. The ruin of the fort of Emhain, now called the Navan fort, is about two miles W. of Armagh.—O'D.

EMUIN [Emon B] 'twins', i.e. é a negative. Emuin, then, is é-oen i.e. not one but two [lelab 'children' B] are born there; and the poets afterwards inserted muin (the letter m) in the middle of it to avoid error [?], for to them emoen or emon was finer than e-oen. Aliter Emon i.e. é- a negative and mon: the mon, then, is μόνος in the Greek, the μόνος is unus [isin latin 'in the Latin' B]. Emon, then, non unus sed duo [.i. ni hoen ni acht da ní B].

These latter etymologies possibly produced the legend of Macha, daughter of Sainred mac Imbaith, bearing twins at Emain Machae. See H. 2. 18, p. 80 l. c. 1. With emuin (= O'Clery's eamhain .i. dá ní 'two things') are connected emnatar (gl. geminantur) Z. 671 and eamhnadh .i. dubladh, O'Clery: eamain is also 'jugum' O'D. Supp. I would connect Skr. yama 'twin', yama-m 'a pair'.—Ed.

ECMACHT ['impotent'] i.e. é-cumachta, for he is not in power.

écmacht (gl. nequam) Z. 34, 195, seems to mean 'slight' infra s. v. Eces.—Ed.

ELIUGUD [Eligud B] i.e. é-lugud 'non-lessening' i.e. it is not less at all.

'No remission, so that there is no remission of it at all'. Still used [spelt eiliughadh] to mean claiming debt or right of any kind.—O'D.

EISIRT [Esirt B] i.e. eis a negative, idem quod non, and fert a grave. Eis-fert, then, he is not entitled to a tomb.

See Coairt supra: Eissirt is probably a pauper.—O'D.

(a) 'Eo-muin then is the pin of the neck'.—O'D.

(b) The passage interlined in A means 'examining her garment, she measured around her'.—Ed.

(c) MS. sanguineus.

ERBALL 'a tail' i.e. iar-ball, the member of the end of the animal.

Erball [Manx arbyl] is still the word for a tail, but it is incorrectly pronounced riubal, or rubal or eriobal. It enters largely into the topographical names, under the anglicized forms of warble, rubble, etc.—O'D. ball = φαλλός (Siegfried).—Ed.

ELGON i.e. eol-guin, who was wounded (gontæ) is known (eol) to him.

Cognizance or knowledge of crime: committing crime with malice prepense.—O'D. who translates 'it is known to him whom he wounds'. Elguin occurs infra p. 68 and also in Senchas Mór p. 262, where it is rendered 'cognizance'.—Ed.

EDEN [edenn B] 'ivy' quasi heder, ab eo quod est hedera [i.e. edind B.]

Still the common word for 'ivy' in most parts of Ireland. Cluain eidnech, the name of a famous monastery in Queen's Co., is translated latibulum hederosum in the life of S. Fintan.—O'D. W. eidew, Br. ilió or élió, M. Bret. ilyeauenn, where note the change of d to l and cf. salur i. siur 'a sister', Duil Laithne.—Ed.

ELG i.e. Ireland.

B adds no ordrioc 'or noble'. So O'Clery: Ealg i. oirdheire.—Ed. Elg or Inis ealga, signifying the noble island, was the third name given to Ireland according to Keating.—O'D.

ESSÍNE [Essen B] 'an unfledged bird' i.e. ess- and én 'bird': ess- is a negative, quod non én-cadacht i.e. it has not got feathers. Essíne then, (is) not a feathered bird but callow.

EMDHE i. discovered, or to see or look.

Einde no Eimdae i. findta no deicci, B. See infra p. 69.—Ed.

EDEL 'a prayer or supplication'; ut dixit Cumine the Tall

My three Brans, [my three Brans]
To God send up a prayer (edel):
Bran of the Three Plains, Bran of Leinster, Bran the Fair, near Femen.

So O'Clery.—O'D. Has the W. adolwg 'to beseech', from at-aul-uc, adolwyn ib. any thing to do with this, or is edel cognate with Lat. peto, root PAT?—Ed.

ESSEM ('a rope or strap') i.e. ess 'an ox' and semh a brace (corait); so the essem is a brace uniting one yoke (cuing) to the other, or to the ox or to the oxen.

The word (corait) which I have rendered 'brace', O'D translates 'a yoke or strap that bound one ox to another in ploughing'. Ess is = the W. ych pl. ychain, = Eng. ox pl. oxen: Skr. ukshan. The semh (saim B) is perhaps cognate with ὀμός, Skr. samam, Goth. samana 'zusammen'.—O'Clery has Eisimh i. gach ni bhios a g-coraíod na a bh-focair a cheile.—Ed.

ESRECHT (Esrícht B) i.e. not bound by law.

ni thaircilla (taircella B) recht is inaccurately rendered, but I cannot correct the rendering. The word seems only accidentally similar to esrechtaid (gl. exlex) Z. 766. O'Clery has Eisreacht i. dilleachda.—In O'D's Suppt. eisrecht gen. eisrechta is explained by 'a toy', 'a little cat, dog or pet of any kind', and so in Senchas Mór pp. 124, 138, 156.—Ed. O'D explained it as 'any thing or persons not recognised by law'.

ETARCE [Etarche B] i.e.  $\gamma\eta$  græce terra interpretatur latine. Etarce, then, is lower land ( $\gamma\eta$ ) between (etur) two higher lands (a) i.e. between two ridges. Etarce i.e. etrige hollows [?] in the earth.

Etarce is now written eitre, and used in Kilkenny, Waterford, etc. to signify a furrow.—O'D. The ce (cé) in etarce seems identical with the cé in bith-ché, Manx kee 'the earth' and is perhaps = the Old Celtic ceva 'a cow': cf. Skr. go 'cow' and 'the earth'.—Ed.

ESPAE [Esba B] 'idleness' i.e. eis-beo, there is no life in it, or there was not (ní ba) anything at all, quasi es-ba. Esba, again i.e. es- a bá, its goodness is es- (the negative particle).

esbas Milan 58. espach 'idle' Preface to Fiacc's hymn. Easba i. diomhaoineas, O'Clery.—Ed.

EDAM 'eating' i.e. edo I eat, i.e. I use victuals. Edam then (is applied) to the use of victuals (b) and to the comminution of every food that man consumes. Not egham ut imperiti dicunt.

The confusion between dh and gh must have set in when this gloss was written.—Ed.

ESCONN i.e. Escann i. e. esc 'water', and cann the name of the vessel. Escann, then, a name of a vessel (c) that is (used) in distributing (d) water, with its handle through its middle.

Esconn is probably borrowed from spondeum. The esc here cited seems cognate with the O.W. uisc now wysg 'a stream'.—Ed.

ESCANN also, i. e. sescann with the Britons, and canna nominatur.

The Old Welsh sescann 'a reed' here cited, now hesgen 'a sedge', 'a rush', is an interesting example of the preservation in Welsh, to a comparatively recent period, of the s in anlaut. So in Juvencus segeticion now hygedigion, sermain Lib. Land. p. 273, now hirfaen, 'a long stone', Su (gl. deus) gloss on Fiacc's hymn, now Hu.—Ed.

EIRGE [Erge B] i.e. to rise, a verbo erigo.

So O'Clery: Eirghe i. comhghabhail i. comhthoghghail. Hence es-irge 'resurrection'. Here in B follows the article Esceth i. nepscith 'non-slackness', which in H. 2. 16, col. 105 is Esced i. escith i. niscith ar aurlataid 'not slackness in obedience'. This seems escaid (gl. impiger) Lib. Hymn. ed. Todd, p. 15.—Ed.

ESSAD 'disease' i.e. es-síd i. ní-síd 'not peace': for this is peace there, the health everlasting (e).

So O'Clery: Easadh i. galar. Essad may perhaps be from the neg. part. es and **sad* = Skr. sádh 'perfect'. O'Clery has also Essdoth i. slainte ('health').—Ed.

ENBRET (Enbroth B) i.e. en 'water' and bret (broth B) 'corn' i.e. corn (is) brandh ut Nortmannica lingua est.

O'D conjectures that enbroth is 'gruel'.—Ed.

ENGLAS i.e. green water.

Still used to denote 'milk-and-water', but generally pronounced eanglais. Ní bh-fuair me le n-ól acht eanglais liath is well understood in most parts of Ireland.—O'D.

(a) B has eter da talmáin, a good example of the acc. dual of an n-stem.—Ed.

(b) airbert bith 'mastication'.—O'D.

(c) 'filling'.—O'D.

(d) This is from B, which reads Esconn i. escand i. esc nisce 7 cand nomen ind lestair. Escand din [slam lestair etc.—Ed.]

(e) 'for peace is health everlasting'.—O'D.

ENBRUITHE i.e. en 'water', i.e. water of bruithe, i.e. of flesh (feola B).

Still the living word for 'broth': bainfidh mise canbhruithe asta, arsa Tadhg ó Coinniallain leis na h-easbagoibh.—O'D.

EOGAN [Eogen B] i.e. eugen i.e. graece: εὖ bonus or bonum latine dicitur, gen, however, is from γένεσις: γένεσις autem generatio est. Eo-gen then is bonageneratio.

EOGANACHT i.e. offspring (icht) race or progeny which sprung from Eogan.

ETHUR [Ethor B] 'a ferryboat' i.e. eth-ur i.e. it goes (ethaid) from brink (ur) to brink (of the river — na haba B).

ethar (gl. stlata) Z. 743. im ethur bis oc imorcor a purt i port 'for a ferryboat that is passing from bank to bank'.—Senchas Mór, p. 126. Eathar i. artrach iomchair, O'Clery.—Ed.

ETARPORT quasi eter-bert, i.e. between two burdens. Elarbert (a) a name for fortune among the druids.

ba ingnad lium etarport 'a marvel to me was (the) luck'—in one of the poems prefixed to the Milan codex, is an old example of this word.—Ed.

ENBARR ('froth') i.e. én 'water' [and barr cacumen, spuma]. Enbarr, then, i.e. froth (úan) that is on the water: inde dicitur gelither énbarr 'whiter than foam'.

Badds: enbarr din uan tuinde 'froth of a wave'. (uan = W. ewyn, Bret. éon 'écume').—Ed.

ENECLANN [B, Enechlann A] ('compensation (b) for one's honour) i.e. because it is fixed (clantar) for a person's honour (enech), whatsoever is due of live property or dead property, which his hand (retaliating) does not contest with him (i.e. take from him). The full price of every one's honour according to (his) rank is what he is entitled to.

O'D's version of the first sentence is "i.e. what is ordained (by law) for a man's honour, of living property or dead property, less by what his own hand (by retaliation) disputes with (deducts from) him": eneclann dligidh 'lawful honourprice', Senchas Mór, p. 232: is fo deithberes a n-einecluinne 'it is according to the difference of their honourprice', ibid. p. 60. Eneaclann i. eraic, O'Clery.—Ed.

ENECH-RUICE i.e. enech-rú-cian i.e. far (cian) from the face (inchaib dat. pl. of enech) is seen its rú i.e. its blushing. enech [-ruice], then, is a face-blood-reddening, as is "Son of thy mother, son of thy sister, dependent fellow, itinerant fellow"! Where this (satire) does not apply (c), a seventh of the price of honour is the compensation for it.

cach gres cach enechruice is for cintaib treisi atá 'every attack, every (verbal) insult is among (the) offences of three days' (stay)', Senchas Mór, 162.—Ed.

ENECH-GRISS, it is at the beginning of the tongue-trespass, it has a right to be: in some cases it is at the end. It is the beginning of the eric of the tongue-trespass, as thus:

Any property stolen out of thy land
Assure thou not thy sanctuary or protection.

(a) This is the reading of B.—Ed.

(b) 'damages' O'D.

(c) ní na díta dítes (A) — ní nad bídtí dítes B. O'D's version is clearly not literal, but I do not venture to alter it.—Ed.

Enechgris occurs in Senchas Mór, 232, translated '(a body) fine for causing a person to blush'. O'D's translation is not accurate. The expression ainech gres occurs in one of the Milan poems (Goidilica, p. 19). Ainech, enech means 'face' (Skr. anika) or 'honour' and gris seems from the following gloss to mean a 'judgment' or 'decision': Gris a crisi επις graece judicium latine, H. 2. 16. col. 114.—Ed.

ERC i.e. heaven.

So O'Davoren p. 81, and see infra s. v. Ebron. Pictet (Kuhn's Zeitschrift, iv. 355) has compared with this word the Skr. arka 'ray', 'sun'.—Ed.

ERCNE i.e. bá a uad [bai uadh B] i.e. cows which are given one for his uad ('poetical composition').

EBRON i.e. iron, ut est in the Bretha nemed: ebron im a muinither meirg 'iron about which rust corrodes' i.e. about which rust comes and eats.

So O'Davoren, who writes Ebrón, and gives the mutilated quotation gle fo earc n-ebron, which O'Donovan informed me was 'swear by heaven (that thou wilt not receive as a pledge) iron (about which rust corrodes)'.—Ed.

ETAN, daughter of Diancécht, a poetess [?] de cujus nomine dicitur elan i.e. a poetical composition.

See Tbre infra. As to Diancécht v. supra, p. 56.—Ed.

ÉCES ('a poet') i.e. écmacht-ces i.e. écmacht a ches 'slight his trouble' (a) i.e. to compose in four divisions of (the) science of poetry.

EPSCOP fina in the Sea-Laws, i.e. a vessel for measuring wine among (apud) the merchants of the Norsemen (b) and Franks. Aliter Epscop i. eipi ['a grain'] for ['upon'], cai ['a road'] abba 'pater', cai cum grano (c). [Aliter], Epscop, i.e. from episcopus.

Epscop fina is probably the true reading: cf. Corn. escop gl. lefiste i.e. lepista, and the Crimean Gothic schkop 'calicem', σκήφος, scyphus: cf. also esbicul infra p. 69.—Ed.

éc, now éag, occurs s. v. Audacht supra p. 5, and is probably cognate with W. angew, Corn. ancow, Br. ankou, M. Br. anguou.—Ed.

EGAL .i. gin gal aige ('without valour in him').

This is the O.Ir. ecal 'timid', [i. cen gail, H. 2. 16, col. 101] n. pl. m. ecil, Z. 483.—Ed.

ERB quia (h)erbis pascitur.

O'Clery explains this by fearbóg .i. cenel fiadha 'a kind of deer'.—O'D.

ERMED .i. med tomáis ('a scale of measuring') quia aridas res metitur.

eirmed .i. tomus, H. 3. 18. p. 70, col. 1.—Ed.

ETSRUTH .i. eter-shod .i. soud methonach ind láí ('the middle meal of the day').

So in H. 2. 16, col. 108: Etrud .i. etar suth .i. etar madin 7 fescur. suth .i. torad. no edrud .i. rith etir media die.—Ed.

EITHEACH ('a lie') quasi aithech .i. donither a aithe for nech ('vengeance for it is wrought upon one').

Ethuch (sic) i coitcenn 'lying in general' Senchas Mór, p. 56: thug tu d' eitheach 'thou liest' is still a living phrase.—O'D.

ELIT ('a doe') .i. ait ele togas di ('she selects another place').

Now eilid.—O'D. acc. sg. in n-elit, Lib. Arm. 18 b 1: cf. W. elain f. 'hind', 'fawn'.—Ed.

ELUD .i. eluo [ἐλύω, ελύω] .i. desero .i. dergim.

Still the common word for 'elopement' or 'going off stealthily'.—O'D. Elunth graec a verbo elbo .i. dessero, H. 2. 16, col. 102.—Ed.

EDAN ['forehead'] frons no etend no etinn.

ETACH ('rayment') .i. e toga quia tegit.

étach n. gen. étig is frequent in Zeuss. Manx eaddagh.—Ed.

ESBAITH ('want') dicitur a nomine hebraico essabaith .i. meror.

Esbaid pref. to Fiacc's hymn. esbuid fied, Senchas Mór, p. 122. Hence the adj. esbadach ib. 126.—Ed.

ELADA .i. ecloga .i. gobar-comrád ('a goat-conversation'), ego (aíť) graece caper latine logo (λόγος) graece sermo latine ar a doirchi 7 ar a dotuigsi is umi aderar gobar-comrad ríe ('for its obscurity and its unintelligibility therefore is it called goat-conversation').

elada means science of any kind.—O'D.

ESNAD .i. ni nath ('not nath') aocht [?] is duchand ar ba hesnad ainm in chuil dignitis na fianæ umanbfulacht fianæ ('but it is duchand, for esnad was the name of the music which the Fians [champions] used to make around their fulacht fianæ').

So O'Davoren, p. 81: Easna .i. abhran ('song') ut est cach aon diambí esna ('every one who will have song') .i. canfas cobinn ('who will sing sweetly'), and O'Clery: Easnadh .i. ceol .i. amhran no binneas. O'D renders duchand by 'warnoise'.—Ed.

ERRACH ('spring') .i. urughad ['freshening'] ondi is ver ['from ver'] quia dicitur vernatur .i. uraighid.

ESBICUL .i. ol bic as ('a drink of little from it').

A small drinking-vessel.—O'D. for espicul (see infra, s. v. Escrae), and this for **escipul*, borrowed from the Lat. scyphulus as escop, supra p. 67, from scyphus.—Ed.

ESCRA core mbis ag dail uisci ('a caldron which is for distributing water').

So O'Clery, who adds: easc .i. uisge.—Ed.

ESC .i. uisce ('water').

v. supra p. 65, s.v. Esconn and infra p. 92, s.v. Iasc.—Ed.

ENDE .i. fomnæ nobidh domenmæ ('anxiety which is on the mind').

seems a mistake for emde or émde, supra p. 64. Thus in H. 3. 18. p. 70. col. 1. émde .i. fomnæ nobidh do menma ut dictum est A maic ní maith in dogni, Indredh tíre muscraigi (a), Émdhe na tairsit occa Dub-tíre dá glas fota ('O son, not good what thou dost, to plunder the land of Muskerry: beware that warriors do not come to the black lands of long Tír-dá-glas').—O'Clery, however, has Enne .i. fech no fionn.—Ed.

ESCAND din .i. lestar bis ag dal usge isescand la brethnæ unde candæ nominatur ('a vessel which is for distributing water is escand with the Britons, unde canna nominatur').

v. Esconn supra p. 65.—Ed.

ESCRÆ .i. ab aes 7 ærea [leg. es 'water' 7 ære?] .i. uma ('copper') dailem no un. dailem.

Estre is a vessel of some kind (escra fina, Senchas Mór 202). In H. 2. 16, col. 106, ess is said to be aqua 'quia estuat .i. fervet', and espicul and esconn are referred to ess.—Ed.

ESSE ab esoce .i. piscis.

O'Clery explains ess by long 'ship', and quotes the following: ni dheachaidh don ess tresun muir ruaidh acht an ess umhaidhe 'no vessel passed through the Red Sea but the copper vessel'.—O'D. But esse is not ess.—Ed.

EDON ('to wit') quasi idon .i. scyendum ut dicitur imchaisin inedon. idon nomen scyens no edon unde andum (sic) contrarium videns.

imchaisin (leg. imchaisiu) in-edon seems to mean 'to consider knowingly or heedfully'. edon, which is always contracted thus 'i.' in Zeuss, occurs written at full in Lib. Armach. 18a. 2.—Ed. Edhon is still in common use for 'viz'. 'to wit' or 'i.e.'.—O'D.

ESCA ('moon') .i. aosca ar atat aosca ili and o aon co trichait ('for there are many ages (aea) therein from one to thirty').

Escas (gen. escas) is neuter in O. Ir. see Z. 247. Hence neph-escaide (gl. σκορμήνη) Z. 830. The Manx cayst shews the usual charge of sc to st.—Ed.

ES .i. ecc ('death') unde eslene ('a shroud') 7 clog estechtæ ('bell of death', 'passing-bell').

eslene is still the common word for a shroud.—O'D. The glossographer evidently regarded it as a compound of es 'death' (ess .i. bás, O'Clery) and lène or léine (gl. camisa). Estechtæ is the O. Ir. étsechta, gen. sg. of étsecht.—Ed.

EMON ab ema [αἷμα] 7 uno. Emon din unius sanguinis no emon graece (a) nostris interpretatur non unus no emon ema [qy. ἄμα] graece juga manum [qy. ζυγόν, ζεύγος, μόνον] ar is dis doib a cuingg ('for they are two in one yoke').

EMUIN airchidail ('poetical compositions' b) ar it cosmaili andilethcomarc unde anemuin dicitur .i. ni hemuin acht is cethairreach ('for their two semidistichs are alike, unde anemuin i.e. not twins (emuin) but it is quadruple').

So in H. 12. 76, col. 103: Emon airchitel ar it cosmaili adaethcomarc unde anamain dicitur .i. ni emon acht is ceatarreig.—Ed.

(a) The glossographer supposes a Greek ἄμωρος.—Ed.

(b) a 'poetical composition'.—O'D.

SEXTA LITTERA.

FLAITH i.e. fo-laith 'a good lord': i.e. flaith a champion [? fochla]. Flaith also means two things [more] i.e. beer and milk, ut est in the Senchas Mór: [p. 64] 'flaith [laith B] find for tellraig' 'white milk on (the) ground' i.e. the cows' milk on the earth.

see Fochla infra, p. 80. O'Clery has Flaith i. tighearna 'lord' and Flaith i. cuirm no lionn: cf. flaith (gl. dominium, dominus) Z. 6, 261. Slav. vladiti regere.—Ed.

FÍNE ('a vine') ab eo quod est vinea, [on finemuin B] for the u consonant with the Latiner is fern ('f') in the Gaelic, ut est vir i.e. fer, visio i.e. fiss, vila i.e. fit, virtus i.e. firt, quamvis hoc non per singula currat.

Fit and firt are loans. Fer (W. gwr) and fiss are cognates.—Ed.

FÍN also ab eo quod est vinum.

FEBIUS [Feirius B] i.e. fiar-shea i.e. of the feri (?) of the tree.

'verjuice', perhaps: Mid. Bret. verius.—Ed.

FIM (a) i.e. drink.

So O'Clery: Fim i. deoch. Fim i. fion. dodáileadh fim a creithir i. do daileadh fin a cuach no as corn. And see infra p. 80.—Ed.

FELL i.e. a steed, unde capell ('cart-horse') nominatur.

So in H. 2. 16, col. 109, fell i. equus unde felle dicitur du i rabatar eich ('a place wherein were steeds'): n. pl. fill: cf. faris 'equi', Ducange cited by Diez s. v. Haras.—Ed.

FELC i.e. 'butts of stakes'; unde dicitur forólltar findoirbed [forrollatar finnaired B] fele fill 'horses leaped over butts of white stakes' (b).

FLESC i.e. wet.

W. gwlych 'moisture' m., an O. Celtic **vlisco-s*.—Ed.

FITHAL i.e. nomen judicis. Fithal also, a cow's calf.

Fithal was a judge to king Cormac mac Airt.—O'D. cf. W. gwedyd 'to say'. Fithal 'a calf' is perhaps borrowed from vitulus.—Ed.

FERR, three things it means i.e. ferb 'a cow' in the first place: ut est in Senchas Mór [p. 64] teora ferba fira i.e. three white cows. Ferb, also, a blotch which is put on the face of a man after a satire or after a false judgment, ut est gel fir nat ferba forbertatar for a inchaib iarom ('the gel (?) of a man (a)

(a) So B. A has Fín.—Ed.

(b) 'Over the firm white stakes' O'D.

(c) 'Fair is the man'.—O'D. The Irish passage is thus given in B: gel fir ferba nad forbrethar for iarnincaib.—Ed.

on whose face blotches have not grown afterwards"). Ferb also i.e. a word, ut est rofess it [is B] fás in fenechas i condalg [coinnilg B] ferb ndé 'It is known that the Fenechas is void in comparison with the words of God'.

So in a note on the Amra Choluimchille: FAIG FERB FITHIR ..... bid dana ferb ic sluind trí rét .i. ferb briathar, ut dicitur 'mad iar ferbaib fíramraib berlai bías bain' no 'is fás fenechas ic ferbaib dé'. Bid dana ferb bolc ut dicitur 'turbait ferba fora gruadaib iar cílbrethaib' .i. iar cloenbret(h)aib. Bid dana ferb [bó] ut dicitur 'teora ferba fira dofnacht' .i. rosimmaig Assal ar Mcg Nuadhat'. O'Davoren also, s. v. Clíath p. 64, glosses clíath ferba by imad briathar in filed 'the poet's abundance of words'.—Ed.

FIR i.e. 'white', ut Fachtna son of Sencha dixit: fordomdiur trí dirnu di argut airiu ar teora fira ferba fon aenerc nécosce iter lathi Lúgba li sula sochar (a) 'I have a right to three dirnas of silver in addition for three white (fira) cows, for each shapely cow (b) between the scales of Lugba (c), beautiful to the eye, profitable'. This, then, was the appearance of the iuchna [?] cows of Echaid Echbél from Scotland, which Cúruí captured (from the Ulstermen) i.e. white (fira) cows, with red ears.

B adds: Dotidís din na bai-sin echdi echbeil for ingeilt a haird-echdai echbeil a halbai a crích dalriattoi co mbitis i seimniu ulad toroxal iarom curi ar ultaib. 7 rl. 'these cows, then, of Echaid Echbél used to come to graze from Ard Echdai Echbél from Scotland, into (the) province of Dalriada, and they used to be in Seimne Ulad. Cúroi, however, carried them off by force from the Ulstermen'.—O'D. Fachtna mac Senchath is mentioned in the Senchas Mór pp. 18, 22, as an author of judgments.—Ed.

FERENN [Firend B] i.e. a garter which is around a man's [niad 'a hero's', B] calf, in cujus vicem crechtair id crechta im cholpa fer (d). Now, whatever was the fitting property [?] of any one, it is thereof they used to make the garters, verbi gratia, a garter of gold around a king's leg. Ferenn also is a name for the girdle that is round the man, unde dicitur tachmaic snechta ferna fer i.e. the snow reached to men's girdles.

Ferenn or firenn seems radically connected with M. H. G. wieren 'umflechten', Ohg. wiara 'corona', perhaps Fr. guirlande. The word indle, which I have doubtfully rendered 'property', O'D translates 'girdle'. In B the passage is: amail nobit indili comadais caich is di din dognitis na feirniu. In O'D's supplement to O'R., indle is glossed by tormach 'augmentum', and is also said to mean 'cattle of any kind'. In Senchas Mór, p. 184 indle is 'cattle'. The phrase adapart teora leth-indli 'he gave three half-indles' occurs in Líb. Armach. 17 b 1.—Ed.

FOCHLOCON [Fochlac B] nomen of a grade of poets, so called from his likeness to a fochlocan ('brooklime'): two leaves on it the first year, two (on attendance) on him, the fochloc, in the territory.

B has ara cosmailius fricois fochlacain. See Clí and Doss supra: tricha la fochluc 'thirty (stories) with a fochloc', Senchas Mór p. 46.—Ed.

(a) B has Fortomdiur trí dirna do argat arm ar teora ferba fira fonoen nero neosoc iter laithi lugba li sula sochar.—Ed.

(b) ere: Pictet (Kuhn's Zeitschrift iv. 365) compares the Welsh adjective erch 'darkbrown'.—Ed.

(c) Lugh mac Ethlenn.—O'D.

(d) O'D has left this untranslated. Perhaps crechtair (crechtirid B) is a bandage and crechta the gen. sg. of crecht (W. creith) a sore.—Ed.

FRECRE ('an answer') i.e. fri-cach-re to every re (i.e.) that which gives information to every thing (rél).

frecre, frecrea n. Z. 269, Z. 1028. dat. sg. frecreu Z. 1054. nom. pl. frecrea Z. 1053, from frith and gaire.—Ed.

FOGAL ('trespass') i.e. fo hol i.e. under covert, not openly the foghal is committed.
" foghail gen. foghla 'spoliatio' O'Don. Suppt.—Ed.

FOLA BRITH i.e. the worn wool (foloe) of the good (bái) cloak (bruit).

Qy. Not in B.—As to Fola (i. brat, O'Clery) see Aithle supra, p. 7.—Ed.

FOLOMAN or folman [Foilmen B] a name for a bare worn cloak (a) quasi folom fhind i.e. without fiur (wool) upon it.

B has 'quasi follumman'.—Foilmen i. drochbhrat, O'Clery. The word may, like Skr. varman 'armour', come from the root vri.—Ed.

FOCHONNAD [Fochnod B] 'firewood' i.e. fo-chon(n)ad: blazing wood which is put in (or under) a fire. Geltine also is a name of this firewood. Inde dicitur geltine gile (giliu B) fochonnad 'geltine is brighter than fochonnad': it is not its flame: et de eo dictum est grian in gaim geltine 'the sun of the winter is firewood'.

With fo-chonnad cf. condud, supra, p. 44: with geltine M. Bret. guelteff 'trabes'.—Ed.

FÉDILMID [Feldimith B] i. fedil-maith i.e. enduring or everlasting good.

a man's name, now rendered 'Felix'.—O'D. Fedelmid Lib. Arm. 16 b. 1, gen. sg. Feidilmedo ib. 16 a. 2, Fedelmedo ib. 16 C. 1. Fedelmitheo ib. 16 c. 2: feidhil i. ionnraic O'Clery.—Ed.

FESCOR [Fescer B] 'evening' quasi fescer i.e. vescer hoc est vesper i.e.

FEISS AIDCHE 'a night's supper' (i.e.) of food, ab eo quod est vescor.

FÍS ('a vision') i.e. a visione.

So O'Clery: fis i. taidhbhai: n. pl. fai, Z. 1041, gl. 29.—Ed.

FUAL i.e. bual 'water', inde dicitur dochotar ar n-asai [dochuatar ar nasa B] hi fual i.e. imbual 'our sandals went into the water'.

Fual now means 'urine'. So in one of the St. Gall incantations, Z. 926, argalar fuail 'contra morbum urinae', thúal (= do fhual) 'urinam tuam'.—O'D. O'Davoren p. 92 glosses fual by salchur 'filth'.—Ed.

FOTHRUCUD [fothrucad B] 'bathing' quasi othrucud (othrucad B), i.e. for sick persons (othrachaib) i.e. for lepers it is oftenest. Sed melius fo-thraicit [fotruicit B]: i.e. when a person laves his feet and his hands this is indlot (i.e. lotum 'washing', i.e. washing the extremities): fothrucud, then, is fo-throciit i.e. trochit i.e. body, i.e. the whole body under (fo) it (scil. the water).

gen. pl. fothairethe 'balnearum' Z. 893 dat. pl. fothairethib Z. 594: fothrugud Broccán's hymn, 38, should be fothrucud, M. Bret. gouzronquet, now korronka. The second element of fo-thrucud is cognate with the W. trochi 'to immerse', troch-fa 'a bathing-place'.—Ed.

(a) aithli (aithli B) bruit: cf. aithle thened a. v. Aithinne and qy. translate "the leavings of a garment".—Ed.

For i.e. Cnámchaill, ut [inde B] dixit Grúibne the poet to Core son of Lugaid in a fess (a) fo Foi, i.e. he was [was he?] acquainted with Cnamchoill. Item Mogh Ruith peribit quod Roth Fail perveniet dicens "to the king of fair Thurles after Foi", i.e. after Cnamcholl.

Cnamhchoill, now Cleghile, is 2 miles E. of the town of Tipperary. Its exact situation is laid down in the Bk. of Lismore. Mogh Ruith was the most distinguished druid in Ireland in the 3rd century. He lived at Óilean Dairbre in Kerry, in the reign of Cormac mac Airt. See Forbas Droma Damhghaire in the Book of Lismore.—O'D.

FELMAC ['a learned person'] i. mac a hiad no a huad 'son of his science'?

fealmhac (i.) duine foghlumtha [leg. mac. foglama?] O'Clery.—O'D. So O'Davoren p. 86 fealmac i. mac séasa 7 mac uadh i. aircetal.—Ed.

FÉLE i.e. poetry or a poet: inde dicitur filidecht i.e. poetry.

FILI 'a poet' i. poison (b) in satire and splendour (c) in praise fili also fial-shui i.e. a sage of poetry.

In B this and the two preceding articles stand thus: Felmac i. mac uad. fel i. ái. fele i. ecess, unde dicitur filidecht i. eosi. Fili i. fi anaoras 7 li ammolad 7 brecht a fuacras in file. O'Clery has fel i. éigsi.—Ed.

FOGAMUR [Fogamar B] it is a name for the last month in the autumn, i.e. fo, ga i.e. wind (gaeth), and mur 'abundance' (d) ut est in the Bretha nemed Imbera fogamur i.e. fogkemur i.e. fo-gemur dag-gemur 'wheat-crop'. Dagh i.e. wheat. Inde dicitur triar dag three (consecrated) wafers, (or) sacarbaic i.e. sacer and pit i.e. of food. ut dicitur:

A bit of food. I ate (e) yesterday
Certainly is cause of repentance:
Impure my body, much my transgression [?]
Pure (is) He whom I have received.

The latter part is omitted in B, which has only Fogamar i. don mis dedenaig rohainmniged i. quasi fogaimiur i. fota mis ngaim.—Ed.

FOT i. vigilant, an-bhfót 'not vigilant': ut dicitur

Every one is watchful, vigilant,
Though far the warriors march.

From that comes fót faitech 'vigilant' and anfót anfaitech 'not vigilant'.

FAATH [Fath B] i. learning, unde dicitur faitsine 'prophecy'.

fath i. foghlaím filaidhechta, O'Davoren p. 85. Fáth i. foghlaím, O'Clery: cf. Zend vat (the t assimilated) 'to know', 'to understand', Justi, and perhaps Lat. vātes.—Ed.

FEMEN i.e. Fe and Men, the two king-oxen of the oxen of Ireland. It is at this place they were. Hence it is (so) called. Cirbe (is the) nomen of the place in which they used to be chewing their cud (cír).

Femen the ancient name of the plain comprising the barony of Iffa and Offa East in the S.E. of the Co. of Tipperary.—O'D. See Edel supra: cír gen. círe 'cud' is the Manx keel, W. cil: and cf. the Bret. das-kiria 'ruminer'.—Ed.

(a) B has Ní/fe.—Ed. (b) 'bitter'.—O'D. (c) li 'sweet', 'smooth'.—O'D.
(d) 'fogam 'little winter', i.e. the wind and the sea swelling'.—O'D. (e) "The fullm eal I took".—O'D.

FLIUCHUD [Flechuð B] i.e. fiuch-shuth 'wet weather' for its softness: suth i.e. weather (sin).

FÁIR i.e. the rising of the sun in (the) morning, ab eo quod est jubar [i. dellrad B] unde Columb cille dixit Dia lim fri fuin dia lim fri fáir 'God be with me at sunset, God be with me at sunrise (fri fáir).

Fáir (i. turgbhail gréine no éirghe greine, O'Clery) = W. gwawr 'dawn', Bret. gour-leuen, guere louen 'morning-star'. As to fuin, which is glossed in B by folach, v. supra s.v. Arco fuin and cf. the verb fuinim i. críochnaighim no sguirim 'I end or cease', O'Clery.—Ed.

FÉ ab eo quod est ve i.e. vae, for with the Gaels it is usual for f to answer to the v (or to be in place of the v) consonant ut praediximus [scil. sub v. Fine]. Fé, then, is a wand of aspen [? fidaite] and gloomy [? fidad] the thing which served with the Gaels for measuring bodies and graves, and this wand was always in the cemeteries of the heathen, and it was a horror to every one to take it in his hand, and every thing that was odious [?] to them they marked on it in Ogham. Inde dicitur:

Sorrowful to me to be in life

After the king of the Gaels and Galls:

Sad is my eye, withered my clay (a)

Since the fé was measured on Flann.

Aliter, a rod of aspen was used by the Gaels for the measuring of the bodies, and the graves in which they were interred, and this wand was always in the cemeteries of the heathen, and it was a horror to every one taking it in his hand, and every thing that was odious [?] with the men was struck with it, unde [in] proverbium venit fé fris "a fé to it"! for as the wand was odious cui nomen est fé, sic et alia res cui comparatur. For it was the aspen which the wand used to be, and it is odious. Therefore says Morann in the Briathar Ogham aercaid fid edath, i.e. the reproach which attached to the rod cui nomen est fé.

This is a reference to the vestal [sic. qy. virgular?] Ogham of Morann, at the end of the Ogham tract, in H. 3, 18. If the Flann mentioned in the quatrain was Flann Sinna [airdrí of Ireland] it could not have been written [or quoted by] Cormac mac Cuillennáin.—O'D. for king Flann died A. D. 914, and Cormac was slain eleven years before. O'Davoren p. 84, explains Fee by mors, but O'Clery, following Cormac, by slat tomhais áighe 'a rod for measuring a grave'.—Ed.

FÍDHELL [Fithcill B]. i. féth-ciall, fáth-ciall i.e. it requires sense (ciall) and fáth ('learning') in playing it. Or fuath-cell, i. fuath cille 'likeness of a church', in the first place, the fidhell is four-cornered, its squares are right-angled, and black and white are on it, and, moreover, it is different people that in turn (b) win the game. Sic et ecclesia per singula per iii. terrae partes iii. evangelis pasta (c). It is straight in the morals and points of the Scripture (a) et nigri [.i. dub B] et albi [.i. gel B] i.e. boni et mali, habitant in ecclesia.

(a) B has: eregan deg-ollam de and gives the quatrain at the end of the article.—Ed.

(b) cach la fecht, cf. cach la céin (gl. modo) Z. 1017, 1018.—Ed.

(c) B glosses this by: is marsin a neclais is easud cothri rann eundradach in betha o soscelais "So is it in the Church, satisfying the four different parts of the world with gospels", which is not accurate.—Ed.

FRAIG ('a roof') .i. against (fri) ice (aig) i.e. against cold.

So O'Clery. dat. sg. isin fraighidh Book of Lismore, 156 cited by O'Don. Supt. aig (gl. cristallus) Z. 60, W. ia, O.N. jökull, Eng. icle in ic-icle.—Ed.

FOLASAI [folassa B] 'shoe', i.e. because it supports (foloing) a person's foot. Aliter fol i.e. quasi sol .i. bonnbach i.e. bonnbuach, i.e. it is between the sole and the earth. Fol then quasi sol, ab eo quod est solum latine. Fol i.e. a cenn-fo-chrus ('change of initial') i.e. f pro s.

folasa .i. broga 'shoes' O'Clery.—O'D.

FUITHIR .i. fo-thír, he who gives land (tír) to a stranger.

B reads: Fuidir .i. fo thir .i. inti dobeir tír fo na deoraig anechtair is do is ainm fuidir. The word occurs in the Senchas Mór, pp. 52, 84, 104, 124, 138, daer-fuidir ib. pp. 90, 106; but the meaning does not appear.—Ed. O'Clery has Fuidhir .i. fadhaor ('slave') .i. fear tuarastail ('a hireling').—O'D.

FASACH .i. fo-so-sech, i.e. the brehon produces a precedent for every case on which he adjudicates i.e. a case similar to another; and he afterwards repeats the sentence which wise brehons had passed upon it. Fassach then is fo thechaid [?] for it is the old case (made) present. Or he follows (b) a good old judgment for the present case.

B adds: no fasach .i. fes fuach .i. foach focal .i. fis-focal insin 'Or fasach i.e. fes-fhuach fuach i.e. a word i.e. knowledge-word. Fassach is explained by O'D as a 'precedent', and it is so rendered in the Senchas Mór p. 18, where it is said that the Brehon delivered judgment in public a roscadaib ocus fasaigib 'from commentaries and precedents'. In the same book, however, p. 228, fasaigib is rendered by 'maxims' and the context supports this version.—Ed.

FERN i.e. everything good, an iarn belre or iarm-bélre (obsolete or primitive word) this

A, corruptly, Fiern. O'Clery has Fearn .i. maith. cognate either with ferr 'better', Skr. varīyas comparative of uru-s = εὐρύς or with fern .i. fēi 'vir', Duil Laithne.—Ed.

'Technically, the four fields nearest the house', O'D. Suppt.—Ed.

FUINE i. fó inde hé i. maith ('good').

O'D leaves this untranslated: we should probably read Fuinne: fuine means 'baking' in Scotland, and O'Clery has Fuine i. bearbhadh nó bruith. See, too, O'Don. Suppt.—Ed.

FEC ('a spade') quasi pec quia pingit terram.

A living word in N. Leinster, anglicised fack.—O'D. Borrowed from, or cognate with, Lat. vanga.—Ed. Mac Firbis glosses pingo by delbaim nó tairingim nó sgaoilim 'I shape, draw or loosen'.—O'D.

FUAT ('bier') i. fuath e la cach no foad na (b) collæ bis ('hateful (is) it to every one, or the bodies' sleep is it (c)').

Fuad i. cróchar(r). O'Clery.—O'D.

FEMEN i. foeman graece quasi campus i. magh ('a field').

The glossographer seems to have confounded ποιμήν with λειμών. See article Femen, supra p. 74.—Ed.

FACHELL ('wages') i. focheill in gillæ dia tabar bis a meit no fon ngellad mbis a comall ('according to (fó) the sense (ciall) of the gillie to whom it is given, it is in amount. Or according to (fó) the promise (gellad) is its fulfilment').

O'Clery explains foicheall by formáil no luach saothair dogheibh duine ar son a oibre sa ló 'hire or wages which a person gets for his work in the day'.—O'D. ben bis for foichill 'a woman who is on hire': Senchas Mór p. 160, in gilla turusa (the messenger) bis for foichill ibid. in deoraid bis i foichill 'the stranger who is on hire' ibid. i. 190—O'Clery has also faichill i. tuarastal go bfaichlibh i. go dtuarastlaibh: cin faichill 'without wages' occurs in Senchas Mór, 190. Manx faill.—Ed.

FELL ('treachery') i. a verbo fello i. brego nec(h) ('I deceive some one') fallo eodem (e).

Fell ocus fingal 'treachery and fratricide' Senchas Mór, p. 56. The glossographer's fello seems a blunder for φηλώ. If so, the Irish brego (O. Ir. brécu) is another example of the 1st sg. pres. indic. act. ending vocally of which I have spoken under Arco, Docho and Duille. But perhaps fello is the low Latin substantive meaning 'perfidus' 'rebellis'. The acc. sg. bréc mendacium, now bréag, is in Z. 23.—Ed.

FAGA i. figa ['poison-spear'] i. drochgai ('evil-spear').

FERT ['a tomb'] .i. adnacu [Firt 'a miracle'] a virtute (b).

ferte f. 'tomb' was an Old Ir. form: fertæ martyrum Lib. Arm. 6 b. 2. du ferti martur (gl. ad sargifagum martyrum) Lib. Arm. 21 b. 2. ad ferti virorum feec, ibid. 3 b. 1. fert .i. ulaid cumdachta, O'Dav. cf., perhaps, Skr. vriti 'hedge' and Latin urtum 'a grave'.—O'Clery has feart .i. uag, and feart .i. fearann.—Ed.

FÍR ('true') quasi vír a vero latine.

Manx feer, W. Corn. and Br. gwir.—Ed.

FEDAN a foedere on accomal ('from the league').

MacFirbis glosses fædus by coimhchengal no osadh.—O'D. Fedan (gen. na fedhna, Cogad Gaedhel etc. 40) is not translated by O'D. It means also 'a yoke', 'team': cf. arathar cona fedain techta ('a plough with its proper team') O'D. Suppt. daim na daimet firu na fedna forail 'oxen that suffer neither men nor yokes upon them', ib.—Ed.

FIAM .i. lorg ('a track').

So O'Clery: Fiamh .i. lorg. The word may have lost a g and be connected with Goth. *vig-*s, Lat. via, etc.—Ed.

FANG .i. fiach ('a raven').

So O'Clery.—O'D: cf. W. gwancio 'to gorge', 'to glut'.—Ed.

FUAL ('urine') quasi fuil ('blood') ar a dath ('for its colour') no quasi bual .i. uisce ('water').

FUIL ('blood') quasi fluib a fluvio ar is cosmail silit immalle ('for both drop (c) alike'). No a fulmine .i. ontsaignen ('from the lightning') ar it cosmaili (d) im tes (e) 7 im deirgi datha ('for they are alike as to heat and as to redness of colour').

FIADNISE ('witness') .i. fiad nass .i. fiada ronass ('God has bound').

Cognate with Eng. witness.—O'D. In H. 2. 16, col. 108 this gloss runs thus: Fiadnaisi .i. fiadæ ronass incor. In Old-Irish fiadnisso is a neuter io-stem, Z. 53, 823, Manx feanish.—Ed.

FIADMUIN ('hares') .i. fiadmila bid i muine ('wild animals that are in a brake').

(a) Fó is the Skr. vasu 'good'.—Ed.

(c) 'flow'.—O'D.

(d) MS. cosmailius.

(b) Hence also Corn. barthus and marthus, Bret. berzui.—Ed.

(e) MS. dath.

FIRSI .i. nert ('strength') ut dicitur ferr firafirsi ('better is truth than strength').

So O'Clery.—O'D. O'Davoren p. 87: Firsi .i. nert.—Ed.

FERG .i. laech ('a hero'). unde dicitur comaid ferg foebar ['a hero keeps (?) an edge'].

So in O'Davoren p. 84: cf. perhaps vargus 'latrunculus', Sidon. Apoll. Epist. VI. 4, cited Dief. Orig. p. 434.

FELL .i. ech ('a horse') unde dicitur cap fell ('a car-horse').

v. supra p. 71.—Ed.

FAL .i. ri ('a king').

Fal .i. ri no muir ('king or sea') O'Davoren, p. 85: cf. Lat. valeo, validus.—O'Clery writes Fál, with a long a, and explains it by rí 'king' and iomad 'abundance'.—Ed.

FIM .i. deog ('a drink').

FIM .i. fin ('wine') unde dicitur dodaile[d] fim i crethir ('wine was distributed in a cup').

FETHAL .i. corn cumdaig (a) argoid ('a goblet with a silver mounting').

So O'Clery: Feathal .i. corn cumhdaigh airgid.—O'D.

FOCHLA an tuaiscert ('the north').

Cf. W. gogledd.—Ed.

FAITSI an desscert ('the south').

Perhaps from fa-desi, where desi = W. deheu.—Ed.

FOCHLA nomen do suide na flatha ('name for the champion's seat').

So O'Clery: Fochla fo .i. suidhe flatha no tighearna. And Faitsi was the name for the charioteer's seat—obviously because the charioteer sat on the right, or south, side, while the champion sat on the left or north (fochla).—Ed.

FIANNACHTACH (a man's name) .i. fian-gnimach ('hero-deedful') gnim fian lais ('the Fians' deed with him').

Anciently a man's name; still preserved in the surname O'Fiannachtaigh, anglicè Finaghty or Finnerty.—O'D.

FORBASACH (a man's name) .i. sudiges bes foruib no cacht.

O'D's version ('sitting around them or a siege') is clearly wrong. I would translate 'he who places a tribute (bás .i. cíos, O'Clery) on them, or a tax'.—Ed. From forbais 'a siege'.—O'D.

FOTHATH .i. fothugadh ('founding') unde dicitur rofothath flaith for raigni ruad ('a chieftainship was founded on mighty Raigni').

So O'Clery: Fotha .i. fundameint. Fothughadh .i. cumhdach no tionnsgnamh 'founding or commencing'.—O'D. fotha m. Z. 999, rob-fothiged 'fundati estis' ib.—Ed.

FICHT .i. feig ('sharp').

I would fain read ferg 'anger' instead of feig, Z. 994, and then identify ficht with the Welsh gwyth 'wrath'.—Ed.

FOI .i. flaith ('a chief') unde dicit (a) Cuchuimne

Manibad airmitiu nÍe	"Unless there is honour of evil nip indemain fochlach foe	Not unsafe is a seated chieftain :
beith dam for crocann ngamnain	For me to be on a yearling calf's skin
itig garbhain bid gnoe	In Garván's house is delightful (b).

foi is written fo by O'Clery, who explains it flaith, tighearna no ri 'a chief, lord or king'.—O'D. Fo is a different word. Foi seems cognate with olhíor 'rudder', which Becker spells with the digamma (Il. 19, 43 : Od. 12, 218, and Benfey refers to the root vi. cf. W. rhwyf 'king', Cornish ruifanes 'queen' which are connected with rémus : cf. also the secondary with the primary meanings of guberno and κυβερνάω.—Ed.

FOTHOND .i. muclaithe ('a sow in heat'?) iarsindi bis fo thuind amail in cerndubhan ('because it is under a wave, like the cerndubhán') ut dixit fer muman

Rucht fothuind fithend foi

FULUTH ['wealth'] .i. luth foi .i. utmall ('motion under it, i.e. it is unquiet' (c)).

Spelt folud in Senchas Mór, 242, and = W. golud, O. Corn. wolut in woludoc (gl. dives).—Ed.

FEICI ['ridgepole'] quasi feighe ['illumination'] iarsindi imfuilnges soillsi dond tegh ('because it sustains light for the house').

O'Reilly guesses feici to be 'a chandelier'. But O'Clery has feige .i. mullach tighe no dunaidh. In H. 2. 16 we have feice tige quasi fege quia praestat lucem domui : feighe (leg. féighe) is a derivative from the adjective féig (clarus, illuminatus) Z. 994.—Ed.

FUIRIM ['a gift?'] .i. ellach aisti ['a present for a poem?'].

fuirim .i. tabair(t). ut est fuirsin samaisc ar dian co ndroncaire 'he gave a heifer for a dian with a strong caldron', O'Davoren, p. 85.—Ed.

FENELACH .i. ellach ercai ['gift of an eric?']

FERDOMAN .i. domna fir ('the materies of a man').

.i. mac becc 'a little boy' Mac Fírbis—O'D. fear domain .i. mac bithbhenach 'a boy who is an habitual trespasser', O'D's Suppt.—Ed.

FAINDELACH .i. oinmitt ('an oaf').

fáinnealach .i. oinmid, O'Clery.—O'D. cf. W. gwaened 'headlong'. Faennelach is wrongly feanelach in O'Davoren p. 86. The phrases fuenleadaigh fine and athgabail fuenleadaig are cited in O'Don. Suppt.—Ed.

FEUTHAL .i. eugasg ('form').

O'Clery feathal .i. éccosg no cuma 'face or form'.—O'D. O'Davoren has feathal .i. comartha no minn : feathla .i. egusc no comartha. Perhaps we should read fedhal and compare the W. gweidd f. 'aspect', 'form'.—Ed.

(a) M B. dictur.

(b) 'Were it not in thy heroic respect, I would not be in Embain, seat of chiefs. I being on the skin of a yearling calf at Garbhan's house; it would be mockery'.—O'D. gnoc = gnaoi .i. aoidhinn, O'Clery.—Ed.

(c) 'agility in it, i.e. noble'.—O'D. But utmall Z. 252, 562 is inquietus, mobilis, and the glossographer alludes to the instability of riches.—Ed.

SEPTIMA LITTERA.

GLOIR ('glory') .i. a gloria .i. glúair ['speech'? 'voice'?] from the greatness of the talk.

O'D has ".i. glúair from the greatness of the glory", which does not make sense. Cf. the Gaelic glóir 'lingua', 'sermo'. Ir. glórach 'noisy' (a)—Ed.

GALAR ('disease') quasi calor.

A neuter o-stem, Z. 249-800. Connected by Pictet (Kuhn's Zeitschrift v. 338) with the Skr. root jri. Welsh galar is 'mourning', 'grief'.—Ed.

GAM ['November'] ab eo quod est γάμος ['a wedding'] graece inde etiam graece mulier nominatur .i. a woman, unde bigamus vel trigamus dicitur.

B here varies: Gam quasi gamos isin greic nouimber un. veti. mulieres dnt. .i. mi gam on. The glossographer seems to mean that the month gam (November), like the Attic month γαμηλιών (latter half of Jan. and beginning of Feb.), took its name from γάμος, because that was the fashionable time for the ancients (veteres) to marry (mulieres ducere). See quotation under next article for an example of gam. O'Clery explains gamh by geimhreadh 'winter'.—Ed.

GAIMRED ['winter (b)] quasi gaim rith ['course of gam'], et inde Colmán mac hui Clúasaig dixit in the elegy of Cumine the Tall, son of Fiachna:—

Descendant of Coirpre, descendant of Core,

He is a sage, is noble, is illustrious.

Alas (he is) a corse in the month Gam!

Not lamentable (c), however—not to death (has he gone).

i.e. in heaven he has arrived.

Mí gam here certainly means the month of November, for S. Cumine Fota died on the 12th November, A. D. 661.—O'D.

GELISTAR (gelestar B) i.e. name for a ford (d) of water in which are cattle in heat (e), and they bite a mouthful from every division of land (ferann) which is about it, and a circle of stakes is made around it, if the ford (f) is between neighbours, so that cattle may not eat the cornfields. The

(a) The noun occurs in O'Davoren: Blor .i. glor 'a voice,' ut est blor cumi ('voice of grief'), and it says in another place blor con domhinne 'the howl of hounds (is) unsweetness'.—Ed.

(b) 'The month of November'.—O'D.

(c) liach .i. doilig H. 3. 18. 527. cf. Z. 579, ba wisse hirmaigde erru ba liach anepellu 'It is right to pray for them, lamentable is their destruction'. O'D translates liach by 'cause of grief'.—Ed.

'pool'.—O'D.

(e) uibell (B uibell) = W. u/ei 'a spark'.

(f) 'pool'.—O'D.

grazing which is made in the ford (a) is what is called gelistar. And every neighbour is entitled to a common road to it, if it is without a road, [varia lectio] or to it, if it be without a passage (bél).

O'D translates the last sentence thus: "And every neighbour is entitled to make a common road if it be surrounded by land without passages".—Ed.

GABUR ('a goat') with ailm (b) [the letter a] quasi caper, for it is that was corrupted therein. Gobur with ond (b) [the letter o] is a nomen for a horse, and it is a Welsh (word) that was corrupted therein. Gour then [in Welsh, goor B, leg. guaur?] is every thing bright. Inde dicitur gobur. [goar B] to the white horse, etc. Gobur [goor B] also (became) a name for any horse, whatsoever his colour might be, so as that a small part of him were white, from the most remarkable colour nominatur. [var. lec.] Gobur [goor B] is his nomen, for it is the most remarkable nominatur.

B adds: rotuill in fili gaidhelach .b. fris ar tucait mbindessa ar rop aille leo gobar quam goor. unde gobar nominatur 'the Gaelic poet added a b to it, for sake of euphony, for they thought gobur finer quam goor. Unde' &c. Gabur is said to be ainm do gréin ('a name for the sun') in H. 4. 22, p. 61a, and grraig ngabor nglas 'a herd of grey horses' occurs in Seirglige Conculainn. O'Clery has gabhar no gobhar i. each 'a steed'.—Ed.

GILLDAE ('a pupil') like to a leech (gil): it is its custom to suck: it is also the custom of the gilldae (gillae B) to suck instruction from his tutor's tongue, ut dicitur in the Breitha nemed: toglen [doglen B] gil tengaid 'gil stuck to tongue'.

A here erroneously explains gel or gil by the adj. glan 'clean'. This explanation does not occur in B. Gel or gil 'leech' is now obsolete in Ireland; but in the Highlands, gealtholl (c) means 'a leech', and cf. W. gel, Corn. ghel (gl. sanguissuga).—Ed.

GAILENG then was (first) said to Cormac, son of Tadhg, son of Cian, i.e. he made a feast for his father, i.e. for Tadhg, grandson of Oilill, and he had a hundred of every kind of animal (at the feast), except badgers only. Cormac went to the badger-warren. It was tedious to him to wait to destroy it, so he invited (them) out on the truth of his father Tadhg's honour (d). Then the badgers came out, and Cormac killed a hundred of them, and displayed (them) at the feast (e). Then Tadhg's heart loathed them, and he said what he (Cormac) had done, and he named his son hoc nomine, i.e. Cormac Gaelang [Gaileng B] i.e. Dung-Honour, unde Galenga nominatur. Gaileng, i. gai lang, falsehood and treachery, i.e. without purchase. Gaileng, i.e. gail-sheng, valour-paltry, i.e., one of the two is paltrily valourous.

See the foregoing story told at greater length from ms. H. 3. 18, p. 42, in Three Irish Glossaries, pp. XLII-XLV: gae or gai 'dung' seems cognate with Skr. gu, gavati, Zend gu cacare.—Ed.

GEM 'a gem' i.e. a gemma [.i. ond lic logmair 'from the precious stone' B].

W. gem, pl. gemu (rud-emeu).—Ed.

(a) 'pool'.—O'D.

(b) So B.

(c) Mr. Norris (Cornish Drama II 367) quotes a Gaelic giol f.—Ed.

(d) cotaccart amach for fra einich a athar .i. taidg B. The reading in A: cotacharistat is wrong.—Ed.

(e) B here again is much better: dollotar sum in brúice no-e-marb dana cormac oed [leg. cét] dib 7 do dusarfen [leg. do-das-aspen ?] oc in field.—Ed.

GRAD ('a grade') .i. a gradu.

niurt grád hiruphin 'to the virtue of the ranks of Cherubim,' Patrick's hymn: grádh eclaise, gradh sechta, O'D. Suppt. æclis uii. grádich, Lib. Arm. 170, b. 2. As the a is long, grád is probably not borrowed from grádus.—Ed.

GLANG i.e. shoulder: inde asglang [asclang B].

B adds: os gualuinn mbis 'what is over a shoulder', v. supra p. 1, s. v. Asglang.—Ed.

GNÍD i.e. a voice, inde dicitur gnídgál.

GEL ('white') ab eo quod est gelu [.i. ón reod 'from the frost', B].

GIABUR [giabair B] i.e. a harlot.

O'Clery has giabhair .i. meirdreach.—Ed.

GOL i.e. a tear, unde golgaire 'loud weeping'.

So O'Davoren, p. 94, and v. supra s. v. Dígal.—Ed.

GALL i.e. a pillar-stone, i.e. nis comathig combatar selba co cobrandaib gall 'they are not neighbours till (their) properties are (provided) with boundaries [?] of pillar-stones' (a). Gall, then, means four things, i.e. first, gall, a pillar-stone, ut praediximus: it is so called because it was the Gaill that first fixed them in Ireland. Gall next, a name for nobles of France, i.e. tribus Galliae, and they were so called from candor corporis, γάλα [enim] Graece lac Latine dicitur, unde Galli, i.e. milky ones (b). Sic, then, gall is nomen for a swan: inde Fer Muman dixit:

cocholl chos ngall gemin brain

'the covering of swan's legs is a raven's skin'.

gall, then, a name for a cock, i.e. gallus, i.e. from galea capitis he is named. [B adds: a cathbarr a cind 'from the crest of his head']

1°. gall 'a pillar-stone' seems at first sight cognate with O.Fr. gal, which Diez, E.W. II, 304, connects with W. calen 'whetstone.' The double l, however, = rr, points to an Indo-European ry or rs: so cf. perhaps Zend zarsh-tva, 'a stone'. O'Clery s. v. makes the dat. pl. gaillechaib. 2°. The etymology of Gall from γάλα is taken from Isidore, par. 104. "Galli a corporis candore nuncupati sunt: γάλα enim graece lac dicitur." 3° gall 'swan' and 4° gall 'cock' (if the latter word is not a loan from gallus) are for **garlus*, and both from the root GAR 'to call' 'praise'; cf. swan from the root SVAN 'sonare', and cf. hano with the Latin cano and perhaps κῶ-κν-ος.—Ed.

GRASTICUM [Grazagum B] i.e. graziacum, i.e. Patrick's (mode of) thanksgiving, quod Scoti corrupte dicunt (c): sic autem dici debet (d) .i. grasagum [grassaigim B] do duin .i. gratias deo agimus (e)

The word is found seven times in Lib. Armach. 7 a. 1, once spelt gratzacham and six times grazacham: Et venit Daire post hæc ut honoraret sanctum Patricium, portans secum eneum mirabilem transmarinum metritas ternas ('three firkins') capientem;

(a) O'D reads: nis cínlaig comathig coméda selbh co mbatar coiccorice co comrandaib gall, and translates 'neighbouring herds of cattle are not amenable until boundaries are divided by pillar-stones'.—Ed.

(b) indastai 'of the milk'.—O'D.

(c) B translates: is ris adraist scotici trasailned.—Ed.

(d) B translates: is marzin is coir zin do rad.—Ed.

(e) B translates: bermaist buide n-allaigti do dia. But H. 2.16, col. 113, has 'Grat(s)icum gratias ago' in the singular.—Ed.

dixitque Daire ad sanctum "Ecce, hic eneus sit tecum"; et ait sanctus Patricius "grazacham". Reversusque Daire ad domum suam dixit "Stultus homo est qui nihil boni praeter grazacham tantum pro aeneo mirabili metritarum trium"; additque Daire, dicens servis suis "ite, reportate nobis eneam nostrum". Exierunt et dixerunt Patricio "portabimus aeneum". Nihilominus et illa vice sanctus Patricius dixit "gratzacham, portate", et portaverunt. The form is an Old Welsh loan from the Latin gratias-ago 1st person singular (like datolaham 'lego', mergidhaham 'evanesco' Z. 498) and not, as Cormac supposes, a plural, which would have been grazagun. The present Welsh would be gresaaf 'I welcome', from gresau: duiu 'God' (now duw) is a fine Old Welsh form = Skr. déva, Lat. deus, divus, Ir. dia. Hence duiuitit, Juvencus.—Ed.

GÉD ('a goose') nomen de sono factum, gág, gag.

W. gwydd, Corn. guidh, Br. gwéz, Ir. Glosses, No. 388: Manx guiy. An Old-Irish goss = (h)anser, Gr. χην, Obg. gans, occurs supra, p. 37 s. v. Cermnas.—Ed.

GAMUIN ['a year-old calf'] i.e. in the month of Gam (November), after samuin (Hallowtide, Nov. 1), unde dicitur gamnach ['a milking-cow, with a year-old calf'] i. e. gam-shinech ['gam-dugged'], because there is milk in the month of Gam, i.e. in winter.

Gamain B. Gaelic gamhainn, Manx gavin. In Senchas Mór, p. 185, bó cona gamaind is rendered 'a cow with its hide'.—Ed.

GRONN or GORN ('firebrand') i. gai-orn i. e. a dart of destruction, i. e. a firebrand, ut Gruibne dixit, welcoming Core or Cormac, immicuiretar gruinn (or guirn) gair &c. "let firebrands (and) shouts be put round him"! (a) gronn reminds one of the Gaulish Grannos, which Siegfried connected with Skr. ghrini 'sun': gor-n (gorn i. aithinné teineadh, O'Clery) seems (like goraim 'I warm') a derivative from gor 'fire', which is cognate with Skr. ghar-ma 'calor'.—The Gr. γρονός, γρονός and Ovid's Gryneus should be remembered.—Ed.

GLUSS i. e. light, as in the Bretha nemed: dofet óc iarnglus ('a youth excels by his light') i. e. the youth with his bright eye is more excellent than the old man with feebleness of his eye.

Cognate with Eng. gloss?—O'D. The above version of dofet óc iarnglus is clearly wrong: cf. iarnglus i. deder dia soillei, O'D's Suppt. I would render 'A youth precedes (an old man) after (his) light (is gone)'.—Ed.

GRETH [Grith B] nomen for a servant of Aitherne, to whom Amargein, son of Eculsach [amorgine mac ecetsalach B], a smith from Búas, said Inith greth gruth grínmuine glascrema cue uinn ubla grethi gruth.

O'D has left this unattempted. In B the story is told more fully thus: Luid gilla athairne do chuincidh iasachto do tigh ecetsalach goband conaca in lealab ocon tenidh is mar [leg. nár] ba mo indas dorn 7 robtar lana imorro a uimbiadna seom. bui iarom oc creim (creime) 7 grotha et reliqua. asbeart iarom fri greth Innith grith gruth (i. fonaithe) grianmaine granmune glascrema cue (i. cnú) huindi ubla grethi [leg. grechi?] grith [gruth A] Innith greth gruth 7rl. 'Athairne's gillie came to ask a loan to the house of Ecetsal, the smith, and he saw the child at the fire, and it was not bigger than a fist, and yet its seven years were complete. Now it was gnawing garlic and curds and so forth, and it said to Greth "Does Greth eat curds (i.e. cooked), blackberries, sloes, green leeks, nuts, onions, sour apples (a), curds? Does Greth eat curds etc."?' (b). Then the gillie told Athairne this. Athairne went with a billhook (c) in his hand to kill it.—The boy's father came while the iron was in the fire (starlam), and asked of the girl "who came to the house"? Said the girl, "Athairne's gillie came", and she said what had happened. "Hearken to me", said its father, "Athairne will come and kill the child; hide the child", says he, "and put its dress where it (now) is". Thus was it done. Athairne came and gave a blow to the post (cip, cippus) that was in the dress. Then the girl shouted and he went his way. This, then, is the eric (mule) that was given for it, to wit, to instruct the boy for Echetsal the smith (d), so that he should not be inferior in skill to Athairne. Afterwards Amorgein was brought to him'. I suppose this Athairne was the implacable bard mentioned by Dr. Ferguson in his Lays of the Western Gael, pp. 67, 245.—Ed.

GART, two things it means: gart i.e. 'head' in the Dul Feda Máir ('Book of the great wood'); gart also 'hospitality', (for) it is the head of every illustrious dail (?) which one performs.

gart 'head' is = W. garth f. 'cape', 'headland'.—Ed. gart i. fial no ceann, O'Clery.—O'D.

GRUITEN i. groit-shen, for what is old (sen) is grot i.e. 'bitter' (guirt) for grot is every thing bitter [?] unde dicitur groitmess, i.e. 'bitter' [?] fruit.

O'D (Supp. to O'R.) explains gruiten by stale butter. I should have rendered grot by 'rotten' (cf. the Gaelic grod) and guirt by 'sour', cf., however, Grus grot gruiten. a groso cibo i. dagbiad i. scaiblin no braisech, H. 2. 16, col. 114.—Ed.

GNÓ i.e. derision, ut dicitur ní recht nach gnó ('not right is any mockery'), i.e. no mockery is straight, i.e. law is not straight unless it is good, and not right for gnó, i.e. not right for derision or for laughter, (to be) therein. Gnoe, however, is every thing beautiful, ut dicitur in the Senchas Mór, cno gnoe i. e. a beautiful nut (f).

So gnó i. focuidbeadh no magadh (g) O'Clery. 'jibing or joking'—O'D. cf. gno car cnáim marbda O'Davoren, pp. 64, 94 (where car 'brittle' = ξηρός): gnoe, spelt gnaoi, is glossed aoibhinn 'delightful' by O'Clery.—Ed.

GROMA [gromma B] 'satire': unde dicitur gromfa i.e. 'he will satirize', et unde dicitur gruaim cach sluaig min aidetchide do deilb as auraisi do air 7 d'ecnach 'to satirize all persons (h) small (and) unsightly (?) of form who are easiest to jeer and lampoon'. gruaim-duine 'a surly person' is thence said.

(a) I guess our séla greth to be O'Clery's séla graiche, which (s. v. Greck) he explains by séla goite.—Ed.

(b) Insinuating that Athairne did not feed his servant Greth so sumptuously.—Ed.

(c) fébas in Senchas Mór, 124.—Ed.

(d) I am not sure that this is right, for the dat. sg. of goba 'smith' is gobainn, not gobann.—Ed.

(e) "bitter".—O'D.

(f) See H. 2. 18, story about cno gnoe, certain nuts that grow in Asia.—O'D.

(g) W. mocio.—Ed.

(h) literally 'every host'.—Ed.

O'D here deviates from the mss. (A and B), and translates "Gruaim ('surliness') All parties that are unsightly of countenance are they who are easiest satirized or lampooned. Gruim and duine Cassilerno it is called". The mysterious cassilerno [P] is in A, not in B. Gruaim 'surlly' is Manx grou.—Ed.

GLÁM quasi clám, ab eo quod est clamor.

B adds : i. escaine 'a curse' and A (incorrectly) 'facit': cf. glám dicenn 'an extempore lampoon' and glám ger, O'Davoren, p. 115.—Ed. glam is still in use [P] in the sense of clamor, outcry.—O'D. It probably comes from the root GAR as the Latin cl-amo from CAL.

GLADEMAIN [glaidemain B] i.e. wolves, which cry (gláidite (a)) i.e. which uplift great howls.

As O'Clery writes glaidheamhain, the spelling of B is correct. The nom. sg. is doubtless gláidem, though O'Clery explains glaidheamhain as sg.—Ed.

GUIDEMAIN [gudemain B] .i. spectres and fairy queens.

Guidemain seems to mean 'false demons', from gó, gúa (= W. gau) 'false' and demain for demuin, n. pl. of demon, a demon, daemonion, (Corn. gevan or jevan), gen. s. demuin, Z. 494.—Ed.

GAIRE i.e. short life, i.e. gair-ré, 'short space', ut dicitur in the satire which Nédi, son of Adnae, son of Othar, made for the king of Connaught, i.e. for his own father's brother, for Caier, son of Othar. This is the satire:—

Evil (maile), death (baire), short life (gaire) to Caier (caieur)!

May spears of battle (celtra catha) wound Caier!

Destruction to Caier, díra (?) to Caier: Caier under earth (foro).

Under ramparts (fo mara), under stones (fo chora) be Caier (b)!

maile then i.e. 'evil' from malum: baire i.e. death, gaire i.e. 'short life': Caieur i.e. 'to Caier': celtra catha i.e. 'spears', unde dicitur dicellair i.e. a shaft of a spear without iron thereon or without a weapon, foró i.e. imord feda [?] i.e. 'under earth': fo mara i.e. under ramparts of earth very high: fo chora (c) i.e. under stones be Caier etc.

Additional Articles from B.

GRUC .i. a cruciatu .i. on cumgach.

O'Clery gives five meanings to grug: 1st erang chlair an édain, 'a wrinkle in the forehead, 2nd gruamhka 'sulky'.—O'D. He also gives 3rd, lag 'weak', 4th garg 'fierce', and 5th breg (leg. brég) 'a lie'. The first of these probably is our gruc. Gruc (gen. gruice) re-occurs infra, p. 90, explained as 'hero' and 'rough'.—Ed.

GALGAT ('a champion') .i. tria gail gaet(h)as .i. gonas .i. marbas ('who wounds (gaethas) through valour (gal) i.e. who wounds, i.e. who kills).

So in H. 2, 16, col. 103.—Ed.

GRAIG graece mulus (.i. asan) latine.

It is hard to say what Greek word the glossographer thought of: graiq seems = the Middle-Irish groigh (gl. equitium) a stud of horses, Manx grih, W. gre = Lat. grex. In Senchas Mór, p. 162, hi fuba do grega is rendered by 'for scaring thy horses', and at p. 164 do grega (nom. pl.) by 'thy horses'.—Ed.

GILCACH ('reed') quia locis in gelidis nascitur.

giolcach 'reed' in the N. and W. of Ireland: in the E. the common broom, and so in some medical mss.: giolcach sléibhe 'genista'.—O'D.

GAOTH ('wind') quasi caoth catero [καθαίρω] graece purgo latine .i. glanad ('to cleanse').

GNATH ('usual') a [cognosco vel] gnato .i. eolchaigim ('I know') no aichtigim (a).

GARG ('fierce') .i. gargon [Γοργών, γοργός] graece ferox interpretatur.

Still living, and apparently cognate with Γοργών.—O'D.

GRAIBRE .i. gaire trom ('heavy laughter') in graiph fil and is onni is gravis an re is risus .i. gaire ('the graihbh that is there is from gravis, the re is risus i.e. laughter').

GIGRAND ('a barnacle goose' anser bernicula) a gyrando on cuairt fell bis fuirre ('from the circular flight that she makes').

This reduplicated form, giugrann (gl. anser) Z. 26 (= **gi-gur-ann*), gioghrann .i. cadhan, O'Clery (the W. pl. aggr. gwyrain 'barnacles' has regularly lost g between vowels) is possibly connected with gyro, gyrus, γῦρος, which last Aufrecht (Kuhn's Zeitschrift, IX, 231) puts with the Vedic adjective jiv-ri 'schwankend', 'wackelig', 'gebrechlich', 'altersschwach'.—Ed.

GIN ('a mouth') i.e. a gingis .i. ona hoslaicib bid ann ar medhon ('from the openings that are therein in the middle').

gin (W. genau.—O'D.) is connected by Glück (K. N. 106) with Skr. hanu, Gr. γένυς, Lat. gena, Goth. kinnus, Eng. chin. But is it not rather to be put with O.N. gin 'gähne', Lat. hi-sco, hi-o, *hi-atu*s, Gr. χήμη, χεῖρά, χαλνω? The mysterious Latin gingis, which MacFirbis rightly supposed to be for gingivis, occurs in Gildas' Lorica, l. 44. In H. 2, 16, col. 113, we have Giun a ging(i)vis .i. o menannaib: dat. sg. giun, Z. 986.—Ed.

GRIAN ('sun') a gyrando [o timchull H. 2, 16, col. 113] terram .i. a circuitu .i. on cuartugud ['from the circling'].

(a) 'I haunt or frequent'.—O'D. But should we not read ichtigim, 'I make children' (icht)? for gnatare, according to DuCange, means gnatos seu filios procreare.—Ed.

See Siegfried's remarks on grian, Irish Glosses, No. 952.—Ed.

See Grend infra. Manx gruaie, W. grudd 'cheek', Corn. grud (gl. maxilla).—Ed.

GOBA ('a smith') .i. gobio [γοπιώ ?] fabricans latine.

Goba (gen. gobann: cf. Gaulish Gobannicos), O. W. gob now gof, Corn. and Bret. góf, has been compared with Lat. faber; but erroneously, as fäber = Skr. dhâtri (Kuhn).—Ed.

GOIDELG ('Gaelic') .i. guth-elg ('voice, elg') .i. guth erendach ['Irish voice'] ar ata intainmsin for eirind ('for that name—scil. Elg—is on Ireland').

Now written Gaoidhealg, a deriv. from góidel (o goidiul, H. 2, 16, col. 114), Gaoidheal 'Irishman'. Siegfried connected this with Lat. hoedus (foedus), hoedulus, Goth. gaitei, gaits 'goat', root GHID, which Benfey sees in χίμαρος for **χιδ-μαρος*, sed qu. as the i is short.—Ed.

GUTH ('voice') a gutture.

guth (gen. gotho Z. 916, now gotha) an u-stem, root GHU or GU.—Ed.

GARB ('rough') hebraice [gareb .i.] scabies [i. claiame] latine.

In garb (now written garbh) the b is a v: M. garroo, W. garw, Skr. garva, γαῦρος.—Ed.

GUIN ('a wound') gone hebraice hostis latine.

Now 'a dangerous wound': used in the Annals to denote a mortal wound.—O'D. H. 2, 13, col. adds 'nama, inti gonas 'an enemy', 'he who wounds'. An old example is in S. Patrick's hymn: ar neim ar loscud ar bádu ar guin 'against poison, burning, drowning, wound': guin dorónta 'a wound that was inflicted' Senchas Mór, 2, an guin 'the wound' Milan, a neuter i-stem, gonaim 'vulnero', root GHAN, Skr. han.—Ed.

GUBA suspiria .i. osnad ('a sigh', 'a groan').

gubha .i. caoineadh ('lamentation') gné gubha .i. gné chaointe, O'Clery.—O'D. The gloss is given more fully in H. 2, 13: gubae guba enim graece suspiria interpretatur.—Ed.

Still living.—O'D. Manx gierr, W. gwer. See infra s.v. Usqa.—Ed.

GALLCOBAR (a man's name, 'Gallagher') .i. gal acobar ('valour-desire?').

O'D translates "desirous of valour". O'Clery has Gallchobar .i. gal acobhar .i. saint gaile no gaisgidh ('desire of valour or warlike achievement').—O'D.

GOLLTRAIGI .i. adhbhand trirech imefuilnge gol ('a melodious [?] strain which causes weeping').

'triple-noted music by which you suffer weeping'.—O'D., but adhbhand seems the same as adbonn which occurs in a gloss sireachtach .i. adbonn no binn (O'D. Supp.): as sireachtach here seems = W. hiraethog 'having longing', I would render adbonn by 'yearning': trirech occurs, Z. 929: fo-m-chain trirech inna n-én 'the birds' trirech sang to me', with which trirech (acc. sg. trilig in the preface to the Félire of Oengus) seems identical (consider Ital. trillare, Germ. trillern, Eng. to trill). O'D renders trirech by 'melody' in the supp. to O'Reilly.—Ed.

GENTRAIGI .i. treidi imefuilnge gen.

O'D translates "a strain by which you suffer love". The words as they stand mean "three things (tréide) which cause cheerfulness". But perhaps treidhi is written for treighi, traighi.—Ed.

GARMAN(N) MNA IN DAGHDA ('the names of the Daghdha's wife') .i. breg 7 meng 7 meabal ['Lie, and Guile and Disgrace'] Feg aor ('see a satire') unde dictum est

Findach ní fir deimne denda flatha fian
cían o rofas garmand mna daghdae do mac murchadæ.

O'D leaves this quatrain untranslated.—Something seems wanting in each of the first two lines. The last two mean "Long since the names of the Daghdha's wife grew to Murchadh's son", i.e. it is long since he was called 'Lie' etc.—Ed.

GRAIBRE .i. magari .i. briathar grata ('an honourable word') :—

A macu (a) leigind legaid	"O sons of reading (i.e. students), read ye:
rob senuidh slondad sidhe	may (the) tidings of peace be a blessing!
binde bar ngotha graibre	sweet your noble voices,
do fil aille na sine	which are more beautiful than screams (b)".

GRUC .i. laoch ('a hero') no garb ('rough') ut dicitur gruice cruth mbrege ['a hero's voice, a form of falseness'] et reliqua.

Gruc a cruciatu, H. 2. 16, col. 114.—Ed.

GALGAT tesbad imefuilnge gol ('a bereavement which causes weeping') ut .dixit guaire fri ornait ag caoinedh laignein ('ut dixit Guaire to Ornait in lamenting Laignén').

Cian o tibe do gaire	(It is) long since thou laughest thy laughter.
isarn aire fri daine	And our attention [?] is on men.
at chiu for indaib tabrat	I see on (the) ends of thine eyelashes is tind galgat no chaine	(That) sore is the bereavement which thou lamentest.

In H. 2, 16: Galgat .i. liach ut dicitur mor ngalgat .i. mor liach. Golget .i. gol oc nech rogæt. V. supra p. 26, s. v. Breisiu.—Ed.

GRECH .i. cnu ('a nut').

GREND ('beard') .i. gruaid finn ['cheek-hair'] .i. find ngruaide ('a cheek's hair').

O'Clery explains greann by ulcha no fésóg 'beard or moustache'.—O'D. Grenn quasi genn genos [γενηός] enim graeco (sic) barba interpretatur: cf. Prov. gren 'beard', Old French grignon, grenon, Gaelic greann 'hair', greannach 'hairy', see Diez, E.W. i. 224, Dieffenbach Or. Eur. 363.

(a) ms. maca.—Ed.

(b) 'A dignified expression; ut set You students of learning, read ye: happy may be the mentioning of him sweeter your appropriate words than all that is beautiful of music.' O'D.—I read sidhe and ná sine.—Ed. grata is glossed oirdeire by O'Clery.—Ed.

GUAIRE .i. uasal ('noble') no gairci ('fierceness').

So O'Clery: the proper name of a man: still preserved in the family name of O'Guaire, anglicized Gorey.—O'D.

GIRITAN .i. faochain mara ('periwinkles of the sea').

O'Clery has Gioradain .i. faochain no faochoga bhios isin muir ina mbi sort maoraigh 'periwinkles which are in the sea, wherein is a sort of shellfish'.—O'D.

GRACE .i. corne .i. fiach comradh ('raven-conversation') .i. guth fiaich leo 7 is anadarcaib dognidis .i. amail esene fiach ('they had the voice of a raven and it is in horns they produced them, i.e. like the young of ravens').

Trumpeters who imitated the croaking of ravens. O'Don. Supp.—Ed.

GIBNE .i. adarc lege ('a leech's horn') vel canis ut dictum est gibne gortach ('a hungry hound'), et reliqua.

The 'leech's horn' is a cupping-horn, hörnchen des schröpfers. In Zeuss 70, 737, gibne glosses cirrus.—Ed.

OCTAVA LITTERA.

IHC [Issa B, Ἰησοῦς, isu] in hoc nomine est nomen nostri salvatoris.

B adds: i. ar slanaigtheoir.—Ed.

IBAR [iubar B] ('a yew-tree') i.e. xù-barr i.e. a good top (barr), because its top (a) never parts from it.

iubar seems the right spelling: cf. the Gaulish plant-name iubaron, louμβαρούμ, 'veratrum nigrum' Diosc. IV. c. 16, cited by Diefenbach, Orig. Eur.—Ed.

ITHARNA ('a rushlight') [itharnnae B] i.e. ith ('fat') (and feorna a rush) (?) for its cleanness (b) and the fat of the cattle they used to melt in the rushes (var. lec. or used to come into the candles) apud veteres.

B adds: Aliter ith ('fat') 7 ornnae i. orn orgain ('destruction') orcuin itha ('destruction of fat').—O'D. I have little confidence in the reading and version of this article. If itharna be really a rushlight (it must have been something of the kind, see Adand supra) cf., perhaps, Corn. itheu for iteu (gl. ticio), Bret. etéb, πίρυς, pitu-dâru. In H. 2.16 Itarna is glossed thus: i. ith 7 feornae i. orotuinte no ithid feornae.—Ed.

IASC ('a fish') i.e. in-esc 'in water' i.e. esc 'water' in the water, then, it attains its livelihood (c). Or iasc quasi esc i.e. ab esca: es then 'food', unde esser: ca i.e. from caput i.e. head and ridge (d) of every food (is) the fish, for Jesus ate it.

iasc gen. éisc infra s. v. Leithech. Manx ceast, with the usual change of sc to st.—Ed.

INDMAISS [innmus B] ('wealth') i. inamus ('growth of prosperity' [?]).

Now ionmhus gen. ionmhuis, Gael. ionmhas 'a treasure', inamus is perhaps 'in temptation' cf. the Lebar Brecc paternoster, O'D. Gram. p. 443.—Ed.

ISEL ('low') i.e. is-aill ('below-cliff') for isel 'low' would not be said if there was not ard 'high' by it.

The version is from B: Isel i. is aill ar ni erbarad anisil muna be ard ocae. all din ab altitudine. A is corrupt. W. O.Corn. isel, Br. izel. O. Ir. is 'under': is nellaib i. fo nellaib, O'Clery.—Ed.

IARN ('iron') [iarnn B] i. iart [iarth B] in nortmannica lingua.

Járn or isarn (Bugge, Kuhn's Zeits. iv. 250) is the Old Norse for iron, A.S. fren, Gaulish isarno, Manx giarn, W. haiarn.—Ed.

(a) abarr B. fobarr A. (b) B has ar ú glaine 'for they are cleanness'.—Ed.
(c) 'it is in the water [only] it can support life'.—O'D. (d) 'choicest'.—O'D.

IMESORCAIN [imesorguin B] ('mutual destruction') destruction to each of the two sides it is (a)

See Zeuss, 847, as to the particle im, W. ym 'mutuus'.—Ed. imeasorgain i. orgain no bualadh ar gach leath dhe, O'Clery.—O'D.

IMRIMM ('riding') i.e. im-réimm ['mutual course'] i.e. the course (b) of the horse and the course (b) of the man. Sic et dérim i. e. di-réim, course (b) of two things.

imrim i. marcaigheachd 'riding', O'Clery.—O'D. each imrime 'a riding horse', O'Don. Suppt.—Ed.

IMBLIU ('navel') quasi uimblíu ab umbilico [i. on imlecan B, Manx imleig].

gen. imlenn: imlind, the Middle Ir. acc. sg. occurs as a gloss on Gildas' Lorica, No. 205. The group umbilicus, ομφαλός and imblíu, when compared with Skr. nábhi-s, Lett. nabba, OHG. naba, nabulo, Eng. navel, seems an interesting relic of the Italo-Graeco-Celtic unity.—Ed.

IMBLIUCH [imlíuch B] quasi imb-loch i.e. a lough about (imb) it all around.

Imlíuch enters into the names of countless places in Ireland, and from the examination of many of them, I am convinced that it signifies 'land verging on a lake'. See description of the church of Emly, anciently Imlíuch Ibhair, in Harris' Ware.—O'D. Imlíoch i. ime-loch i. loch uime fa gcuairt, O'Clery.—Ed.

INIS ('island') i.e. ad insula. Inis, again, that which is difficult (inse), scil. of access, i.e. an-usa, not easy.

Inis is still understood; but oilean is more general in the language spoken.—O'D. Manx insh, innis, W. ynys.—Ed.

INSAMAIN [insamuin B] i. e. anessamain i. e. not welcome [?].

O'Clery has easomain i. faílte 'welcome'.—O'D. The meaning of insamain has still to be ascertained:—essamin (confident?) occurs in Z. 592 (hore am essamin-se praecepte) and 739, and the compar. essamnu Z. 737, and the derivative essamne in the gloss tre essamni cumachti (gl. per eam confidentiam qua existimor audere, 2 Corinth. 10, 2).—Ed.

IB ('drink thou') quasi bib i. e. bíbe.

now obsolete, though used by writers of the last century.—O'D. ib 2d. sg. imper. of ibiu, ibimm 'I drink', has, like many other neo-Celtic words, lost a p at the beginning, and is cognate with the Skr. reduplicated form pi-bámi, the Gr. πι-νω, the Old Slav. pi-ti 'to drink'. The p of the root is kept in Lat. po-tus, po-culum, etc., though in the reduplicated bi-bo it has sunk into b. Cognate is ibas i. lestar condigh ann 'a vessel with drink therein', H. 2, 16. The adj. bibsach i. olach is probably a loan from bibosus.—Ed.

INROSC ('a proverb') [indrosc B] i. ind-aro-sc i. e. an end-word, i. e. aro-sc (is) a name of 'word' [ainm brethre B].

Ionrosc is explained seanfhocal i. e. 'an old saying, adage or proverb' by O'Clery.—O'D.—Not in my copy, which has only Ionnroeg i. inn-arasc i. arasc ainm breithre. (The reading in A is corrupt, do ind or da ind being written for ainm). Arasc occurs in the Tripartite life of S. Patrick (Egerton 93, Mus. Brit.) 6 a, 2: conid disein is arasc 'cosmail Mael do Kaplait' 'so that hence is (the) word: 'M. is like K'.—Ed.

IMORTAN i. e. Importan i. e. rowing from bank to bank.

(a) orguín cechtor na da léithe B.—Ed.

(b) 'motion'.—O'D.

O'D conjectures 'ferrying'.—Ed.

IA a kind of testimony (a), for this is the twelfth name (b) which means Christ (or by which he is called) among the Hebrews.

Apparently an affirmative responsive particle = W. is 'yea', Bret. ia, Z. 719,720.—Ed.

IDOL i.e. ab idolo, εἰδωλόν in the Greek, forma in the Latin. unde dicitur idolum i.e. the forms and representations of the idols or the creatures which the heathen used to make formerly.

W. eiddawl, M. Bret. idol.—Ed.

INDELBA i.e. the names of the altars of those idols, because they were wont to carve on them the forms (delba) of the elements they adored there, verbi gratia, figura solis [i. figuir na greine B].

IMBATH [immbath B] i.e. an ocean: bath is a sea, ut est the sea between Ireland and Scotland, vel aliud quodeunque mare which does not encircle, ut mare Tyrrhenum. Imbath, then, is imb-muir, an um-sea (c), i.e. a sea which encircles around. To this is the name 'ocean'.

Imbath (for imb-bath) is simply 'big sea' the imb being here an intensive particle, Z. 847: cf. O. Norse um. So O'Clery: Iombath i. muir thimcill i. muir thimchilleas oilén no tir ima ccuairt. From bath comes baithis 'baptism' = W. bedydd.—Ed.

IDAN quasi idon ab eo quod est idoneus (i. dingbala B. 'fit, worthy').

Idan, which O'D translates 'pure', is rather 'faithful'. cf. the nom. pl. idain (gl. bonam fidem ostendentes) Z. 787.—idan i. comlan, O'Davoren, p. 97: iodhan i. glan O'Clery: cf. Anidan supra p. 5.—Ed.

IARNBÉLRA ['iron-word'], so called from the word's obscurity and for its darkness and compactness, so that it is not easy to disclose (d) through it.

apparently means an obscure or obsolete word, see supra s. vv. Cloch and Fern.—Ed.

IMBAS FOROSNAI ['knowledge that enlightens'] i.e. it discovers everything which the poet likes and which he desires to manifest. Thus is it done. The poet chews a piece of (the) flesh of a red pig, or of a dog or cat, and puts it afterwards on the flag behind the door, and pronounces an incantation on it, and offers it to idol-gods, and afterwards calls his idols to him and then finds them not on the morrow (e), and pronounces incantations on his two palms, and calls again unto him his idol-gods that his sleep may not be disturbed; and he lays his two palms on his two cheeks and (in this manner) he falls asleep; and he is watched in order that no one may interrupt [?] nor disturb him till everything about which he is engaged is revealed to him, (which may be) a minute or two or three, or as long as he was supposed to be

(a) forcell 'oath'—O'D., but see forcell (gl. testimonium) Z. 468.—Ed.

(b) One of the two names.—O'D. But A has indala n-ainm díc and B has indara hainm díc.—Ed.

(c) Fuller, I think, has umstroke=circumference.—Ed.

(d) tatscelad [tatscelad, B.] 'to see' O'D. 'to rob' (!) Senchas Mór 202. The word means to disclose, reveal, (cf. Gaelic tuach tatscel), to betray (Gael. tatscelach, proditor) and the root (cf. Lat. celo) is also in the W. dygelu.—Ed.

(e) "and he then invokes his idols, and if he obtains not (his desires) on the day following he pronounces" etc.—O'D.

at (the) offering; et ideo imbās dicitur i.e. (his) two palms (boiss) upon (im) him, that is (one) palm over [?] and another hither on his cheeks. Patrick abolished [banished?] this and the teinm lægda, and he adjudged [testified?] that whoever should practise them should have neither heaven nor earth, because it was renouncing baptism. Dicetal do-chennaib ('extempore recital'), then, was left, to be composed in right of (their) art; for this is the cause: it is not necessary in it to make an offering to demons, but there is a revelation at once from (the) ends of (the poet's) fingers.

See O'Donovan's Battle of Magh Rath, pp. 46, 47, and Senchas Mór, pp. 24, 44. B writes Imbass forosnæ. O'D translates the last sentence thus: 'he left dichedul do chenduibh (an extempore recital) to be composed in the corus cerda (the law of poetry) and the reason this was done is, because it requires no offering to demons, but merely an extempore recital at once'.—Ed.

ICC ('cure') ecesia [ἔκκεσις] græce salus latine.

INNURAIÐ ('last year') .i. innuu robaith [the nú (b) that perished'] no in anno rofaidh ('that passed') .i. in bliadain tairnic and ('the year that finished then').

.i. cond-ichta .i. clanna quinn ('descendants of Conn').

i.e. Conn of the 100 battles. The more ancient name of the province was Olnegmacht, which is probably [?] the Nagnatae of Ptolemy.—O'D. icht occurs supra s. v. Eoganacht, and infra s. v. Meracht p. 114.—Ed.

INBLEOGAN .i. toxal ('taking away') .i. athgabail ind fir fine do gabáil a cinaid in cintaig co ro toxla side ar in cintach ('to make reprisal on the tribesman for the crime of the guilty one until he [the tribesman] takes from the guilty one').

O'D translates this: "taking the distress of the tribeman to detain it for the crime of the culprit until he recovers it from cintach". inbleogan .i. escaire 'proclamation', O'Davoren p. 100.—Ed.

INDTILE .i. lestar mbec atalla digh ('a small vessel in which drink abides').

Inntile .i. leastar no tiagh, O'Clery.—O'D.

NONA LITTERA.

LOECH [Laoch B] 'a layman' a laico [i. on tuata B] should be ldech, W. llegg, Corn. leic, Bret. lik.—Ed.

LAICHES 'a hero's wife' [Laichess B] i.e. laich and fess, from the rest (fess) which the hero (ldech) sleeps with her.

"a coitu quem facit heros cum illa"—O'D. O.W. leeces (gl. maritae) now llegges. The fem. termination -ess is from Lat. -issa, which again is borrowed from Gr. -ισσα.—Ed.

LÚGNASAD i.e. a commemorating game or fair, thereto is the name nasad i.e. a festival or game of Lugh mac Ethne or Ethlenn, which was celebrated by him in the beginning of autumn.

B adds: in gach bliadhain im thoidecht lughnasad "in every year at the coming of Lammas-day" (Aug. 1).—Ed. Lugnassadh is still the name for Lammas-day. The fair was held at Tailtin in Meath.—O'D. Lug is explained laoch 'hero' by O'Davoren p. 103.—Ed.

LIGUR i.e. a tongue.

cognate with λείγω, λιγυάω, li-n-go, lig-urio, Skr. lih and rik, but has nothing to do with lingua from dingua.—Ed.

LELAP [lelup B] ('a child') i.e. lú-lep: lú everything small, or len-ab, i.e. lenis abbati, i.e. patri. Or because he follows (lenas) abbatem et matrem.

Now leanab.—O'D. B adds: aliter lelup i. lupell i. lú gach mbeg pell ondi is pellis i. maoth ('pell from pellis, παλός ? i.e. 'soft').—Ed.

LESMAC ('a stepson') i.e. lis-mac because he is a lis ('contention') to the husband or to the wife, he who is stepson to either of them. Sic lessmáthair ('stepmother') or lessathair ('stepfather'). Les, then, quasi lis i.e. debate or contention.

lesmac (gl. privignus) Leyden Priscian, = W. llysfab 'son-in-law', Bret. lesvab. O'Clery explains les (spelt leas) by cuis no caingean ('a cause or contention'), and he cites gleodh gacha leasa i. crichnughadh no glanadh gach cúise.—Ed.

LEGAM a moth [?] i.e. ligem (a), from the licking that licks the cloth (b). Or ligh-aith i.e. sharp against colours (liga (c)): it is not, indeed, that he does not rest save on varicoloured cloths; but it is oftenest that he eats coloured

(a) Inserted from B.

(b) 'from the licking of colours in cloth.—O'D.

(c) B and G. ligda A.

cloths. [varia lectio] it is not that he does not rest on every cloth though there be not colours on it, but it is oftener that the coloured cloth is carried off' (a) and is ..... (?) quam aliud vestimentum.

O'D identifies legam with the modern leomhann or leamhann 'a moth', sed qu.—Ed.

LECONN [Lecond B] ('cheek') .i. lecenn .i. leth-cenn ('one side of the head').

Manx lieckan.—Ed.

LASAMAIN ab eo quod est laissim i.e. every thing sparkling.

Cognate with lasair 'flame', lasaim 'flammo', and W. llachar 'gleaming', the Irish s and Welsh ch having here each descended from x.—Ed.

LEMLAUGHT ('new milk') .i. warm milk (lachl): lem is everything warm.

Now leamhnacht—O'D. W. llefrith 'sweet milk' Br. léaz livriz, Corn. leverid (gl. lac dulce).—Ed.

LOCH i.e. two things it means: loch i.e. black, ut dicitur a(s) soilge laith lochrúna ('prosperous is a king of dark secrets'), i.e. though dark the council of every one before and after, their secrets are the worse [?] through (their) king discovering (them). Loch i.e. 'all', unde dicitur lochdub i.e. all black.

Loch 'black' seems = W. llwg 'livid', 'scurvy'.—Ed. What is luach in luachtetib .i. lanteib Féilire Prol. 41? O'Clery has loch .i. uile, lóch .i. dubh: loch .i. imad, O'Davoren p. 102.—Ed.

LAARG [la-arg B] i.e. lo-arg or leo-arg: leo 'a member' and arg 'a hero'. Leo here is a member or a joint or portion for a good hero.

O'D conjectures 'saddle': la-arg is glossed by gabul 'a fork' in Egerton 1782, and in Lib. Armach. 12 b, 1, we have "vadum duarum furcarum .i. dá-loarc juxta cenondas" where rc (as often) stands for rg. Possibly ρε-άργα for κερ-άργα may be connected with la-arg, lo-arg from (c)lav-arg, as ribar from cribrum.—Ed.

LOGG i.e. lo-airg i.e. the hero's joint: loric unde dicitur.

B has Lorg .i. lúí arg .i. laich t no lar ricc, G omits the word lúí may be = Skr. kravis. What joint is referred to I cannot say: cf. na lorg-dromma (gl. spinas) Gildas' Lorica.—Ed.

LÁM ('a hand') .i. luam ('pilot'), because it pilots [qy. moves quickly (luas) round] the entire body.

Manx laue, W. llaw, O.Corn. lof.—Ed.

LÁMOS ('a sleeve' i.e. lám-fhoss, i.e. foss the case of the arm.

Hence lámstæ (gl. manuleatus) Z. 20. W. llawes 'sleeve' pl. llawys Z.800.—Ed.

LÁMIND [B and G lamand] 'a glove', i.e. lám-ind ['arm-end'], i.e. the end of the arm (b) is clothed by it.

LÚDA [B lauda, G lautu] .i. the little finger i.e. lú everything small, for it is the smallest finger of the hand.

(a) 'he oftener fixes himself (ars chiallathar) and rests upon coloured cloth quam' &c.—O'D. But cf. ar-id-ro-chell 'is rapuit' Z. 338, and erclim (gl. aufiero) Z. 1020.

(b) 'hand'.—O'D. In Manx laueyn is 'glove'.—Ed.

From lú for lug (= ἐλαχύς) and da from dagh cognate with δοχή, Lat. dig-itus, and perhaps δάκτυλος from δάχ-τυλος as λέκτρον for λέχτρον. The diminutive ludugán (O. Ir. **lúducán*) is one of the class of diminutives to which belong cridecán 'little heart' and Ieucán 'little Jesus'—Ed.

LIAB ('a stone') [Lie B and G] ab eo quod est λίθος Graece lapis latine dicitur.

Rather cf. λάας for λάφας. The oldest example is on the Inchaguile stone: Lie luguædon macci menueh. Lie 'a millstone' also in Senchas Mór, p. 140, and see Cadut and Cloch supra.—Ed.

LAITH two things it means i.e. laith 'a valiant hero' and laith 'a balance,' ut praediximus: eter laithe Lugba ['between the scales of Lugba'?), i.e. in the balance of Lugba the goldsmith, when (a) Fachtua adjusted the money for the cows. It is when the mark of length (forshail) is there or upon it that it means this.

O'Clery has laithe i. meadh tomhais óir no airgid. See Fir supra, p. 27.—Ed.

LANGFITER i. an English (word) this: lang 'long' and feiter i.e. a fetter of the foreigners. Langfiter i.e. a long fetter which is between the fore-legs and the hind-legs. Non sic urchomul i.e. ur a chomul ['east its junction'?) which is between the two fore-legs of the horse.

cf. langfhiil iter a cenn ocus a cosa, Senchas Mór p. 174. where the fiil is either a corruption of our fiter, feiter (= A.S. fetor, feter compes), or borrowed from A.S. fetel (O. N. fetill) cingulum, balteus. Langphetir i. ainm do ghlas bhios idir chois tosaigh 7 chois deiridheich ('name for a fetter which is between a forefoot and a hindfoot') O'Clery. B has Langpeitir, Langphetir. Gaelic langaid, Manx langeid.—Ed.

LECHT i.e. a dead man's bed, ab eo quod est lectus.

Now written leacht: still in use in the spoken Irish, and applied to an honorary monument of any description, generally a heap of stones.—O'D. Cognate with lec-tus, lec-tica; λέκ-τρον, λέχ-ος Goth. liga, Eng. lie, lay. Oc a lecht co nglaine iethar cnet cech cridi 'at his (Moelruain's) grave with purity is healed the sigh of every heart', Félire Prologue, 227, 228. lia uas lecht, Book of Leinster 28b. Manx lhiaght.—Ed.

LONG ('a ship'), i.e. ab eo quod est longa i.e. long, which is on (the) sea.

Hence [loinges 'a fleet', = W. Uynges, whence] loingseach 'mariner', applied to Labhra, an Irish monarch, who led a Gaulish colony into Ireland before the Christian era.—O'D. Long, f. gen. luinge = Manx lhong, W. llong, Bret. long f. (b).—Ed.

LEBOR ('book') quasi libor a libro.

Manx lioar, W. lyfr, Corn. liver, Mid. Bret. leffr, now léor.—Ed.

LOTT ('a harlot') quasi lot ('destruction'), unde dicitur lotrad for the whoredom is destruction (lotl) to woman.

lót i. meirdreach, O'Clery—O'D. cf. perhaps, W. llwth 'greedy'.—Ed.

LÁTH 'a hero' quasi lúth ['motion'] because he moves súpply (with suppleness).

Hence lathus 'heroism' O'D's Suppt. cf. lúth i. laoch, O'Clery.—O'D. W. llawd 'a lad'.—Ed.

LOMMAND i.e. lomm-fhann, because it is bare (lomm) and weak (fann).

(a) I read with B, orumidir.—Ed.

(b) Here in B follows: Luscuir i. taitneim ('delightful') ab eo quod est lucso vel lux i. soillse.—Ed.

O'D guesses 'a threadbare cloak': but cf. W. Ilumman 'a banner'. O'Clery has lomain .i. brat 'mantle'.—Ed.

LATHIRT ['drunkenness'] i.e. laith 'ale' and irt 'death' to him who drank it: [var. lectio] i.e. the drinking of beer or ale killed him.

laithirt (gl. c(r)apula) Ir. Glosses, No. 266. laith = Corn. lad (gl. liquor), Lat. latex.—Ed.

LUGBORT ('a herb-garden') melius est (a) i.e. lub-gort i.e. gort luibe 'a garden of vegetables'.

lubgort Lib. Arm. 17 b. 1: lubgartóir (gl. olitor) Z. 45. Corn. luvorth, lowarth, Br. liorz.—lub = AS. leðf, Ohg. laub, and gort = κόπος, hortus. This gloss can hardly have been written in the tenth century.—Ed.

LÍN ('flax') a lino. Léine ('a shirt') a linea one from another.

Now lion, Manx leen, W. and Bret. lin.—Ed.

LÁNOMAIN ('a married couple') .i. lánshomain full property of each other, for each is half property without the other

B adds: Aliter lanamain quasi lenamain ('clinging') ar ni fil etarscarad doib acht ar dia ('for there is no sundering of them save for God's sake'): lánamnas 'matrimonium' Z. 988,989.—Ed. Manx lannoon 'a couple'.—Ed.

LETHECH: two things it means. It is, in the first place, a name for a kind of fish [a flounder], which is so called from its breadth and thinness, for the kind of it in oceano is very broad. Lethech is also a name for a kneading-trough, because the cake is spread on it, as Crutíne said on a time that he went to another poet's house, and his gillie with him, i.e., a student with a master's pride (b). Crutíne himself remained (c) outside and sent his gillie for hospitality (d) to the poet's house. A hog's belly (tarr) was given him in a caldron, and presently (e) the poet began conversing with the student and casting an eye on his diligence (in preparing the meat). The poet observed the great pride of the student and the smallness of his diligence. So when the belly was boiled the poet said in the presence of the student 'Dofoltha tairr tein', i.e. it is time to take it off the fire, and it was (in the poetical dialect he said this) in order that he might know what answer the student would give him; because he had heard the poet (Crutíne) boasting of the other's wonderful inventions (f) as if it were himself of whom he spoke (g), and he did not believe that poet, and it was therefore that the poet said to test the student 'Dofoltha tairr tein'; et tribus vicibus dixit 'Dofoltha tairr tein', et non respondit ei vel ullum verbum. Thereafter arose the student and came to the place where Crutíne was and related the news to him i.e. the words which

(b) B: co menmuin fithidre lais: G: co menmain fithidrea. A: co menmain a fithire. Fithir .i. ollamh O'D. Supp.—Ed.

(c) B and G: farrolaig A: farolaid. Qy. meaning.—Ed.

(d) 'as a quest'.—O'D.

(e) callec B and G. coltig A. See Z. 364, 565, 678.—Ed.

(f) 'he had heard the poet (Crutíne) boast of his (pupil's) many wonderful perfections'.—O'D.

(g) ar a tised, lit. 'on whom he should come'.—Ed.

the poet spake i.e. 'Dofotha tairr tein'. "Good", quoth Crutíne, "when he says (them) again, say thou to him 'Tóe lethraig foen friss ocus fris adaind indlis' i.e. put a kneading-trough under it, i.e. the belly, and light a candle to see if the belly be boiled. When the student then had sat (a) within (on his return) the poet dixit the same, et dixit the student Tóe lethraig etc., "Good", quoth the poet, "It is not a student's mouth (b) that has returned (this answer.) He is near who returned (it). Crutíne is near. Call him from outside" (c). Crutíne is then summoned, great welcome is made to him, and other food is put into the caldron. And little is the pride of the student because the poet jeered at him (d) until he addressed Crutíne, etc.

Leitheach .i. leitheog .i. iasg leathan ('a broad fish', W. lleden). Leitheach .i. losad do bhrigh go leathnaightheair bairghean uirre, O'Clery: fris 'light thou' seems cognate with W. gwreichion 'sparks': adann 'a rushlight' occurs supra p. 10.—Ed.

LEOS i.e. a blush wherewith a person is reddened after a satire or reproach of him. Leos [lós G] also i.e. 'light' as in the Duil Roscadach 'grinniud leos' [lois G] i.e. extinction of light' i.e. of a candle: Item 'the face of a man round which leos luinether i.e. which light surrounds.

Leos .i. imdergad, O'Davoren p. 101.—Leos .i. imdheargadh. Lós .i. soillsi, O'Clery.—Ed.

DECIMA LITTERA.

'MO DEBROTH' said Patrick, quod Scotici corrupte dicunt. Sic hoc dici debet i.e. muin duiu braut, i.e. muin is 'meus', the duiu is 'deus', the braut is 'judex'. i.e. meus deus judex.

An asseveration constantly used by S. Patrick as we learn from his lives. Thus explained in the life preserved in Leabhar Breacc 14 a. 1: Dixit magus nī chumcaim cusin trath cédna imbárach. Dar mo debroth i. dar mo dia mbratha ol patraic is inuloc attá do cumachta ocus nī fil itir a maith [ 'I cannot, till the same hour tomorrow.' 'By my de broth, i.e. by my God of judgment,' says Patrick, 'it is in evil that thy power is, and not at all in good']. See also Colg. Trias Thaum. pp. 4, 57. and Jocelin, cap. 185.—O'D. B translates the first part of this article thus: luide [leg. luige = W. llw] Mo de brot i. mo dia brat(h)a ol patraic i. is truallned aderaid na scoitica hé i. marso is dligedh a radha i. mui(n) duiu braut. The pronoun muin, preserving the n in auslant, seems = Goth. meina, and is to be separated from the Old-Welsh mi; (Juvenius pp. 48, 50) Middle-Welsh vy (Z, 137.388) now fy, nasalising (a), which seem datives = ἐμν, (where, however, the ε is long). The duiu (wrongly spelt doiu in A) = deva, has been noticed under Grazacham. The braut, Z. 103, wrongly explained by Cormac as judex (i. bret(h)em. B) is now braud 'judicium' = Ir. bráth supra p. 18.—Ed.

MARCO i.e. a horse: marcach, then, many horses with him, ut dicitur buasach 'the man with whom are many cows,' airmnech, also, 'the man who owns much corn'. Sic airgdech ('one having chests'), colgedach ('one having bed-clothes').

See as to marc, Diefenbach, Orig. Eur., s. v. Τριμαρκισία. Marc i. ech no lair ('a steed or mare,') O'Davoren, p. 104.

MÁTHAIR ('mother') quasi mater, for it is this that was there corrupted, i.e. mater.

cf. μήτηρ, Lat. māter, Ohg. muotar, Eng. mother.—O'D. Skr. mātri. In the British languages we find only the derivatives W. modryb pl. modreped Z. 1095, 'aunt'=Corn. modereb, Bret. mozreb now moéréb.—In Gaulish the dat. pl. mātrebo was recognised by Siegfried on the inscription of Nimes supra p. 18.—Ed.

MID ('mead'): Welsh was corrupted there, i.e. med.

O. W. med Juv. p. 49, now medd, Corn. medu, Br. mez. Gr. μέθυ, Skr. madhu 'honey' 'intoxicating liquor', Old Saxon medo, Ohg. metu 'mead', Lith. medus 'honey'.—Ed.

(a) With these, I think, Siegfried identified the mon in the phrase in mon derco ('in oculo meo') Marcellus Burdigalensis.—Ed.

MEITHEL ('a party of reapers') quasi methel ab eo quod est meto [i. boingim, H. 3.18. p. 636, col. 3.]

B read Metil quasi methil ab eo etc., and adds: no meta .i. buain ('reaping'): cf. lasna meithleorai (gl. apud messoros) Milan. W. medel 'a reaping party', Corn. midil (gl. messor). Doubtless cognate with Lat. meto and messis from met + tis.—Ed.

MUCAIRBE i.e. a mac fuirmid (a) i.e. a youth for repeating [?] his poetry.

A mac fuirmid seems to have been a poet or storyteller of the sixth order, and to have been bound to repeat 40 tales. Senchas Mór p. 44. O'D says a mucairbe was a poet of the second order.—Ed.

MALLAND i.e. a vein which is across the top (mullach) of the head, quasi mulland.

MILLED ('spoiling' 'hurting' (b)) i.e. mí shilledh a mislook, i.e. an evil eying.

B has Milliud quasi mishilliud .i. drochshilliud, and so O'Clery, who adds no droch amharc.—Ed.

MÁS ('a mass') a massa.

B reads: Máis quasi a mása .i. on cáir.—D. mac Fírbis seems to bring mas from máza 'barley bread'.—Ed. He writes in the margin of H. 2.15. Maza .i. cinel aráin don'ther do bhainne 7 do blath gnathuighid aos tuaithe ('a kind of bread that is made of milk and of flour, which common people use').—O'D. O'Clery has mais .i. caor. mais óir .i. caor óir.—Ed. Más now signifies the thigh, buttock, &c. and when applied topographically, a thick or rich hill.—O'D.

MISCAITH ('a curse') .i. mí-scath 'an evil word': scath i.e. a word, as is Duil Ro-scadach ['the great-worded Book'].

Duil Roscadach was evidently the name of a glossary or explanation of hard words.—O'D. See Roscad infra p. 144. Miscaid .i. mallacht ('a curse') ut est miscaidh fri ceird cainte ('a curse on a satirist's art'), O'Davoren p. 104.—Ed.

MILGITAN i.e. Mol-cuitén i.e. the share of Mol i.e. the door-keeper of Tara.

Mol then, was his name, because of the talk (mol) which he addressed (c) to the people, i.e. 'go thou out, go-thou in' (d): unde dicitur molach ('talkative').

Milgitan [explained by maol 'forehead' in B] is frequently mentioned in the poems describing the arrangement of the different ranks in the banqueting hall of Tara, as a particular joint of meat allotted to several classes of persons. See Petrie's Tara. Trans. R. I. A. xviii., pp. 206, 307.—O'D. So in H. 3. 18, p. 636, col. 3. Milgedan .i. mol-chuidan cuit moil ('Mol's share') ar is é aighe dobertha dó ('for this a joint that was given to him'). O'Clery explains mol by glór 'noise', whence molmar .i. glórach 'noisy': cf. W. moloch 'uproar'. The Gaelic molach is 'hoarse'.—Ed.

MELG [melgy B]. i.e. 'milk' arindí mblegar ('because it is milked').

melg .i. as, mealg .i. sugh, O'Davoren pp. 106, 107. So in Egerton 1782, p. 28: Melg .i. as 7 melg .i. sugh fobith asperar melg fri cuirm .i. melg netha: cf. ἀμέλγω, mulgeo, milk.—O'D. Skr. mrij, márijmi, márijámi. The O. Ir. preterite do-o-malgy (gl. mulxi) occurs in Z. 71. See bo-mlacht supra p. 20.—Ed.

(a) He was sixth in order and had 40 stories. Senchas Mór, p. 44.—Ed.

(b) 'The evil eye' 'the injury done by the evil eye'.—O'D.

(c) soferad lit. 'which he made': feraim = O. W. gura, Corn. guraß, Br. groaß, graf.—Ed.

(d) i.e. those going out and coming in.—O'D.

MEIG also i.e. death, inde dicitur melg theme ['death-darkness'] i.e. the darkness of death: or melg-thene (a), i.e. the fire of death.

O'Davoren, p. 105, differs here: he explains melg by as 'juice' and teme by bas 'death' i. as mbá(i)s ('juice of death') i. fuil ('blood').—Ed.

MORANN i.e. mór-fhinn i.e. 'great-fairhaired.' This was his name which his mother gave him, and she said that whoever would not say (this name) to him should be subject to death(d). Mac Máin 'son of wealth' his father said to him, i.e. because this son was a good treasure (b), and whosoever would not say this name to him should be liable to death (c). So that these two names clung to him instead of one name. He (was) a son of Coirpre Cennchait.

Morann, son of Cairbre Cinnchait, who was king of the Aithech-tuatha at the beginning of the first century, was chief Brehon to Feradach Finnfechtach. It is fabled of Morann that he had a sín, or chain, called Idh Morainn [and that he "never pronounced a judgment without having this chain around his neck. When he pronounced a false judgment the chain tightened round his neck. If he passed a true one, it expanded down upon him".—Senchas Mór, p. 25]. The legend alluded to in the text is given in the Book of Ballymote, fol. 143.—O'D.

MENADH ('an awl') i.e. min 'small' (d) and dith 'sharp' it pierces. Menadh, again, small (min) its iadh 'its hole.'

Still the common word for awl throughout Ireland. In the Highlands, minidh.—O'D. B has: i. min aith i. aith gonas 7 min fuaiges ('what pierces sharp and stitches small'). Menad i. min a inad et coel a toll ('small its place and slender its hole'). Hence it seems that the iadh of A is a blunder for inadh 'place'. The W. minawyd 'awl' is hardly the same word.—Ed.

MOTH i.e. everything masculine i.e. every masculine word, et nomen est virili membro [.i. ball ferrda B]

So O'Clery. Moth 'male' possibly cognate with Skr. mati 'mind' and μῆτις = Skr. māti in abhimāti, Lat. mas etc. These forms are referred to the root MAN, and as to the occasional loss of n before t in Irish roots, cf. imdh' the, foirc' the, Ebel, Beitraege, III, 37. I would put moth 'penis' with Skr. mathāmi 'agito', Lat. me-n-tula etc.—Ed.

MAN ('hand') a manu.

So O'Clery. see infra p. 120. W. man, mun.—Ed. mana má i. lámhagán ('glove') O'Clery.—O'D.

MANACH ('monk') a monacho.

So O'Davoren, who adds 'he is making cashels and clocháns or tothchars' (P).—Ed. W: mynach, Corn. manach.—O'D. In his supplement to O'Reilly O'D explains manach by servitor.—Ed.

MONACH i.e. 'tricky' ab eo quod est mon i.e. 'a trick'.

see Caill Crímon supra p. 35, and perhaps Bri-mon smetrach supra, p. 22. O'Clery has mon i. cleas.—Ed.

(a) Sic B. melgtheinte A.—Ed. 'that he would be an enemy unto death to any one who would not call him that name'.—O'D.

(b) maín, better moín is the Lat. moenus, musus.—Ed.

(c) Here, and in the preceding sentence, O'D. renders bída (leg. bída as in G.) báis by 'an enemy unto death', a mortal enemy.—But bída is reus, obnoxius, Z. 250, n. pl. maso. bída (gl. obnoxio, Milan).—Ed.

(d) min 'close'.—O'D.

METHOS a meta .i. from the goal.

G has simply methos .i. a meta. B has metass a meta .i. ón crích. A, confounding metus with meta, adds ón crích ('from the trembling') no ón crích ('from the goal').—Ed. Mac Fírbis writes in the margin of H. 2,16: meta .i. comurda don'tter foircend lámhaig no sgríbe each 7 sé buinnremur barrchaol. Meta .i. crioch no ceann deirennach gach neithe ('a mark made for shooting or horse-racing, with a thick base, and a slender top. Meta 'the limit or extreme end of any thing').—O'D. The dat. sg. of methos (im-methus tuaithi) occurs in O'Davoren, p. 106, who explains it by crích no coiged 'boundary or province'.—Ed.

MOLAD (molod B) praise i.e. mol-soad i.e. mol ['millshaft?'] from its frequency, soad ['turning'] from its usualness.

Manx moylley, W. molad, Br. meùleudi.—Ed.

MENMCHOSACH [-chasach, B. -chossach, G.] i.e. he has a mind not to be satiated. Or he has a disputative mind (meume).

This is obscure.—Ed.

MUIRTCHENN ('carrion') ab eo quod est morticinium [i. marbadh B] i.e. mar-tarcenn i.e. head (turning) back suddenly, i.e. because it is dead suddenly.

Morticinae ovis carne vesci, Varro: formuichthib .i. moirtchenn (gl. subfucatis) Lib. Armach. 181, a. 1: applied to an animal that [died or] was suffocated, or killed without being regularly slaughtered. D. mac Fírbis writes, Morticinium .i. ní do gheibh bás gan marbhadh 7 ar a mbí drochghnúis mairbh 'a thing that dies without being slaughtered, and which has the evil aspect of death'.—O'D. See above s. v. Baten.—Ed.

MUILENN 'a mill' i. e. shaft (mol) and stone (onn), i.e. for these are the two things that are most together (a) in a mill. Onn i.e. a stone: greater its óil i.e. its stones, than the stones of a quern. Muilinn then, i.e. meil 'grind' and linn ('water') for it is on a linn it grinds. Mola muileun, mola bró ('quern') or muiliern [?]

B has Muileud. Manx muyllin, W. Corn. and Bret. melin. Corn. also belin.—Ed.

MERDRECH ('a harlot') i.e. mer, drech i.e. mer and drech united, a woman of wanton countenance. Or mer i.e. lustful and drech i.e. imprudent. Mer-drech then, an imprudent harlot. Inde poeta: mer cach drúth mianach cach baeth 'wanton every harlot, sensual every foolish (woman)'. Or Mertrech ab eo quod est meretrix i.e. a merendo stupri pretium.

B adds by way of translation: dligid si fiach a saothair 'she deserves (the) reward of her labour'. As the O. Ir. form is mertrech, the first part of this article is clearly not by Cormac, and is not found in G.—Ed. Merdreach is still used, but the more usual word is striopach.—O'D. Manx streepagh.—Ed.

MÁT i.e. a hand: inde indmat (handwashing) i.e. the end (ind) of the arms, but is washed there. Indlat ('footwashing') also, for its foot is the end (ind) of the leg, et a lotione (latitudine?) dicitur.

O'Clery agrees as to mát and indmat. He also gives lat as meaning troigh 'foot', but explains innlat as glanadh 'washing' 'cleansing' [ionnlat a bheathadh 'purifying his life']. Tonnlat denotes in Ireland and the Highlands 'washing' in general.—O'D. mát probably comes from the root MA to measure.—Ed.

(a) as maillém ('together'.—O'D. but it seems a superlative) cf. immalle, malle 'ana' 'simul' Z 569. B and G are here corrupt: is muileud immuileud B. is muileud in muilinn G.—Ed.

MÁT 'a pig'. Inde dicitur in the Bretha Nemed: Forruachtatar máta mo thuinde targaboil ('pigs have torn my skin by attack' [?]).

Spelt maít by O'Davoren s. v. Main.—cuich in maít remainighis?—Ed.

MANN i.e. an ounce, ut Sencha dixit

Móu alib imdergad Emna! domidiur (a) de secht cachtu cíchsidi (ð) crissu secht mugu mogaigthi fri mórgnímu mugsaine secht manna óir aithlegtha fri fíal-gnúis mo charat móir. Móu.

"Greater than can be told (is the) reproach of Emain. I adjudge for it seven bondmaids deepbreasted, slender: seven bondmen enslaved for the great labours of slavery: seven ounces of refined gold for my great friend's noble face (c). Greater etc." Mann then is 'bright' i.e. a refined ounce.

The reading of the quotation in G varies: Mó ailib imdergad emna admiudur de secht cactu (d) cíchsate crissu secht mugu moigfite morgnimu mugsaine secht manna óir forloisethi fri fialgnúis cona chaurathaib conchobuir. B has merely Secht manda oir forloisethi fri fialgnúse cona curadaib conchobair. O'D translates "Great the wounding to reproach Emain: there is adjudged for it seven bondmaids to walk in girdles, seven," &c. But móu is 'major' not 'magnus': alib or ailib is the dat. pl. of ál (ailib i. briathraib) O'Davoren, s. v. Digluinn etc. domidiur or admiudur is 1st sg. pres. indic. of a deponent ia-stem: cf. midíur 'puto' Z. 444: cíchsidi, acc. pl. of an adj. formed from cích, 'mamma': crissu, acc. pl. m. of cres i. caol, O'Davoren p. 67, who, at p. 62, has part of this passage in his gloss on cacht i. cumal no innilt ('shealave or handmaid') ut est secht cachtu cíchsa crisa. Siegfried connected mann 'ounce', from **mānva*, with μῶνυς, μόνος, as Latin un-cia with unus. Hence it would seem that the old Celts had an unit of weight.—Ed.

MUNNU i.e. mo Fhinnu a pet name. Finntain nomen dictus est; unde Maedóc Ferna dixit in his satire on Munnu son of Tulchán:

O little vassal of mighty God!
O son of Tulchán, O shepherd!
She bore a troublesome child (i.e. a demon) to a family,
The mother that bore thee, O Finntan!

Finntan or Munna, son of Tulchán, was founder and patron of the monastery of Teach Munna (Taghmon) in the now county of Wexford. He died 25th Oct. 634.

- (a) MS. domider. (b) MS. cumala cíchsate: cumala is obviously a gloss on cachtu which the scribe inserted in the text without making the necessary change in the termination of the adjective crissu.—Ed.
(c) i.e. a plate or crescent of gold of the weight or value commensurate with his face.—O'D. See Toghall Cathrach Maine Mílecoithe and Welsh Laws pp. 3, 168.—O'D. See also Messa Ulad in Leb. na huidre, fo. 10 b. 2.—E. Curry, tiagait úad iartain 7 fícbait bennachtain leis. Táinig dana ailiil anes fri huitu combái for oisúid ooco. Dobreth comlethet a enech (sic) dí úr 7 argat do ailiil 7 secht cumala [do] cach mac día macaib. Dolluid iarom ailiil dochum a thiri fí chori 7 óentaid fri ultu. They come from him then and leave a blessing with him. Then Ailiil came southwards to (the) Ulstermen, and he was on a visit with them. There was given the breadth of his face, of gold and silver, to Ailiil, and seven shealaves to each son of his sons. Then went Ailiil to his country in peace and unity with the Ulstermen".—Ed.
(d) better cachtu, acc. pl. of cacht—W. cach m. Corn. caid, Bret. quacz—Lat. captus.—Ed.

Maedóc of Ferns was the first bishop of Ferns and died 31st Jan. 624. This saint is otherwise called Aedán, his first name was Aídh, of which Aedán, Aedóc are diminutives. The name Maedóc, now Mogue, is formed by prefixing mo 'my' to Aedóc. In the gloss on the Féilire of Oengus, at 21st October, the quatrain is attributed to S. Columcille: it begins A clérchin chaid chumachtaig ['O little cleric, chaste, mighty'].—O'D. It appears from the gloss here referred to that Munnu, son of Taulchán the druid, made a union (oéntu) with Finntan of Cluain Eidnech, and that, in token thereof, each of them gave his own name to the other.—Ed.

MÁL i.e. a king or a poet: inde dicitur "Bind not silver nor gold, save on a mál, i.e. on a king.

O'Davoren, p. 106, explains mal by uasal 'noble', and gives the quotation thus: ni nais uma ('copper') na or na airget acht for mal.—The W. mawl is 'praise'. In Skr. mála is a name for Vishnu.—Ed. O'Clery has mál i. rí ('king'), an mhál i. an ríoghan ('the queen'): mal i. uasal. mál i. fili ('poet') and i. milidh no gaisgeadhach ('a soldier or champion').—O'D.

MUIREND means two things, first, it is a [proper] name for a woman: muirend i. mor-fhind ('great fair'). Muirend also is a name for a spear i.e. mi-rind, i.e. droch-rind 'evil point', a point which causes death.

So in H. 3.18, p. 636, col. 3: [Muirenn i.] mirind i. gae. ut dixit finn dergaider muirne m(b)lith. O'Davoren, p. 105, explains muircnn by slegh, and quotes tuile mar muirne 'a great flood of spears'. O'Clery, too, has muireann i. ga no sleagh.—Ed.

MUG-TIME, that is the name of the first lapdog that was in Ireland. Cairbre Musc, son of Conaire (1) brought it from the east from Britain; for when great was the power of the Gael on Britain, they divided Alba between them into districts, and each knew the residence of his friend, and not less did the Gael dwell on the east side of the sea quam in Scotica, and their habitations and royal forts were built there. Inde dicitur Dinn Tradui, i.e. Triple-fossed Fort, of Crimthann the Great, son of Fidach (2), king of Ireland and Alba to the Ictian sea, et inde est Glas-tonbury of the Gael, i.e. a church on the border (bru) of the Ictian sea (3). It is there was Glass son of Cass, swineherd of the king of Hiruath (4), with his swine feeding, and it was he that Patrick resuscitated at the end of six score (a) years after he was slain by the soldiers of Mac Con. And it is in that part is Dinn map Lethain in the lands of the Cornish Britons, i.e., the Fort of MacLiathain, for mac is the same as map in the British. Thus every tribe divided on that side (b), for its property to the east was equal [to that on the west] (c) and they continued in this power till long after the coming of Patrick. Hence Cairbre Musc was visiting in the East his family and his friends. At this time no lapdog had come into the land of Éiriu, and the Britons commanded that no lapdog should be given to the Gael on solicitation or by free will, for gratitude or friendship. Now at this time the law among the Britons was, "Every criminal for his crime such as breaks

(a) A has XXXVI, but B has VII sichit, G has se sichit.—O'D.

(c) "Such were the divisions of all the families, for each had a proportion in the east (eastern Island)".—O'D.

the law" (a). There was a beautiful lapdog in the possession of a friend of Cairbre Musc in Britain, and Cairbre got it from him [thus]. Once as Cairbre (went) to his house, he was made welcome to everything save the lapdog. Cairbre Musc had a wonderful skene, around the haft whereof was adornment of silver and gold. It was a precious jewel. Cairbre put much grease about it and rubbed fat meat to its haft, and afterwards left it before the lapdog. The lapdog began and continued to gnaw the haft till morning, and hurt the knife, so that it was not beautiful. On the morrow Cairbre made great complaint of this, and was sorry for it, and demanded justice for it of his friend. 'That is fair, indeed: I will pay for the trespass,' said he. 'I will not take aught', says Cairbre, 'save what is in the law of Britain, namely, 'every animal (b) for his crime'. The lapdog was therefore given to Cairbre, and the name, i.e. Mug éime ['slave of a haft'] clung to it, from mug 'a slave' [and éim 'a haft'], because it was given on account of the skene. The lapdog (being a bitch) was then with young. Ailill Flann the Little (5) was then king over Munster, and Cormac, grandson of Conn (6) at Tara; and the three took to wrangling, and to demand and contend for the lapdog; and the way in which the matter was settled between the three of them was this, that the dog should abide for a certain time in the house of each. The dog afterwards littered, and each of them took a pup of her litter, and in this wise descends (c) every lapdog in Ireland still. Now after a long time the lapdog died, and Connla (7) son of Tadhg, son of Cian, son of Oilill Olum, found the lapdog's bare skull, and took it as a puzzle to a poet who had come with an ái or an airchetul to his father. Maen mac Edaine was the poet's name. The poet Maen afterwards solved it through the teinm laeghda, and he said:

"Cain tonna tige hui Eoguin
Ith i tig hui Chuind cachtádath tobara(i)nd
basa caem i tig Coirpri Muise (d)

O Mug-éime! This is the head of Mug-éime, to wit the first lapdog that was brought into Ireland", etc.

(2) Crimthan Mór son of Fidach, succeeded to monarchy of Ireland A.D. 366: reigned 13 years.—O'D.

- (a) I would read: cach bídbu innachinaid do neuch nofhuaenabad a cháin, and translate—"Every criminal for his crime (shall be given) to him whose law he shall have outraged." With the 3rd sg. 2dy fut. nofhuaenabad cf. the adj. fuasna Z. 9. B reads: in bíodba inachinaid doneoch foroesad a chain no foruasnadad ichain G has, cach bídbu innachinaid doneoch foroesad.—Ed.
- (b) rob 'criminal'.—O'D. This blunder (in which the Editor followed O'D) has already been corrected by Dr. Ferguson, who also compares with the passage in the text the law 'si quadrupes pauperiem faxit dominus noxiae aestimam offero: si nolet quod noxit dato.'
- (c) atathar literally 'is': a passive form of the verb subst. B has: is on choin éin orci éirend "It is from that dog (are) the lapdogs of Ireland".—Ed.
- (d) O'D's attempt at the quatrain is mere guesswork: Sleek thy skin in the house of Eogan, There was food in the house of Conn's grandson, Still you showed the skin of starvation and abuse. Thou wert comely in Coirpre Musc's house.—Ed.

(3) Ictian sea (muir n-Icht) now the English Channel.—O'D. Glastonbury is in the heart of Somerset; but the fact that it stands on the river Brue (which, however, flows into St. George's Channel) may perhaps have caused this geographical mistake.—Ed.

MUMA ('Munster') de nomine alicujus regis, i.e. Eochaid the Rough. Mu-mo i.e. Eochaid mu-mó i.e. greater (mó) his hold and his valour and his power than any king. From his name Mumain was called and Muimnig ('Munstermen') dicuntur. Mumu, then, de nomine regis dicitur.

He was of the line of Eibher and the 32nd monarch of Ireland, A. M. 3150, according to O'Flaherty.—O'D.

MUGH ('slave') quasi múch ('mist') for it is under mist and punishment of servitude he is continually.

mug (gen. moga) = Z. 254, '987, an u-stem, is = Goth. magu-s, Corn. maw. The article must have been written when there was some resemblance in sound between final gh and ch.—Ed.

MUGSAINE ('slavery') i. mugsíne quasi mug-sníme, i.e. the sadness that is on the mind of the bondsman.

mughsaíne (gl. famulacio) H. 2. 13.—Ed.

MÚCH i.e. a name proper for smoke: unde dicitur muchad ('to smother').

So O'Clery. W. mug 'smoke', M. Bret. moguet.—Ed.

MILIS ('sweet') quasi melis: mil 'honey', i.e. mel was corrupted there. milis i.e. is the same as mel.

acc. pl. léic úait inna biada milsi, Z. 253 'put from thee the sweet foods'. Manx millish, W. melys.—Ed. cf. Gr. μέλι, Lat. mel, mellis.—O'D. Goth. milith. Possibly in the Celtic forms the s may have arisen from t + ti.—Ed.

MIDACH quasi medic ab eo quod est medicus [i. liagh B].

A Tuatha dé Danann physician, son of Dian-cecht.—O'D. O'Davoren has Midhach i. calma 'brave'.—Ed.

MER ['a madman'] because he is alone in the alt in which he is, i.e. in meracht (a) and alone he goes: quasi merulus, i.e. a 'blackbird', et inde merulus [leg. μέροψ?] græce quod volat solus (b), and there is not another bird even of its own kind in its company.

O'D reads mér [sic in B and G: mear in A] and explains it by 'finger', which is undoubtedly its usual meaning, but gives no sense here. So alt (= artus) he renders by 'a joint'. But it is also 'a wooded valley' and 'a height'. I conjecture that mer 'mad' is cognate with μωρός and that mer 'blackbird' is cognate with μύροψ (the Welsh myralch f. for **mésalca*, Corn. moelh, Br. monalc'h, has lost s which, in the Latin mērula, for **mirula* = Ohg. amisala, has regularly become r): see mer .i. mo a fr, infra: in ben-mer, 'the madwoman', Senchas Mór, p. 52; and mearaidh .i. amadán, O'Clery. In H. 3. 18, p. 82, col. 2, we have Mer .i. merulus .i. lon no baot(h) ('a blackbird or foolish') unde dicitur meroc a merula .i. glasluin.—Ed.

(a) meracht 'solitude'.—O'D. sed qu. if it is not 'frenzy'.—Ed.

(b) B translates this: etellaigid [a] conar. O'D cites Varro's 'a mera, i.e. sola, quod mera i.e. sola volitat ut. graculi gregatim'.—Ed.

MERACHT quasi mer-icht i.e. a mad (mer) issue (icht), a mad act: [ackh] ab eo quod est actus [i. gnim B].

O'D follows O'Reilly in translating meracht as if it were méracht 'fingering, or the action of the fingers, in playing on the harp or other musical instrument'. On this some marginal annotator (Curry?) remarks in disgust: ack! In his supplement to O'Reilly, O'D explains the word by 'excitement', irritability'. It is derived from mer 'mad'. In the Highlands, mearacht is 'error'.—Ed.

MAIRT ('Tuesday') i.e. márait, már uait 'far from thee', i.e. to Sunday from Tuesday. Máirt i.e. Marte, from the god of battle of among the gentiles. Mars was his name. It was to him they also used to consecrate the month of March, ut Januarius, Februarius, Martius. Máirt then is called from him, ut dies solis, dies lunae, dies Martis.

Manx je-mayrt.—Ed. W. dydd Mawrth.—O'D. Bret. Meurs is from Fr. Mars.—Ed.

MART ('beef') quasi mort a morte [i. on báss B].

Mart is still used to denote 'a beef' (boeuf) and 'beef'.—O'D. cos mairt 'a cow's leg' Tighernach cited O'Don. Gr. 443.—Ed.

MORTLAITH [sic B] a mortalitate.

nín-thair mortlaid na galar, Sanctáin's Hymn, line 12.—Ed.

MANANNAN MAC LIR, a celebrated merchant who was in the Isle of Mann. He was the best pilot that was in the west of Europe. He used to know by studying the heavens (a) [i.e. using the sky], the period which would be the fine weather and the bad weather, and when each of these two times would change. Inde Scoti et Brittones eum deum vocaverunt maris. et inde filium maris esse dixerunt (b) i.e. mac lir 'son of sea'. Et de nomine Manannan the Isle of Mann dictus est (c).

He was son of Allot, one of the Tuatha Dé Danann chieftains. He was otherwise called Orbsen, whence Loch Orbsen now Lough Corrib. He is still vividly remembered in the mountainous district of Derry and Donegal, and is said to have an enchanted castle in Lough Foyle. According to the traditions in the Isle of Man and the Eastern counties of Leinster this first man of Man rolled on three legs like a wheel through the mist, and hence the three-legged figure on the Manx halfpenny, and the motto quocunque jeceris stabit.—O'D. I know nothing of this tradition, but if it be authentic, we may possibly trace a connection between this three-legged Manannan mac Lir (= the Welsh Manawydan ab Llŷr), the TARVOS TRIGARANUS of the Notre Dame Inscription and the Vedic Vishnu with the three strides, i.e. the rising, the culmination and the setting of the sun. See Siegfried, Beitr. zur vergl. spr. i. 473.—Ed.

- (a) nemgnacht. In B this is explained .i. aria deicidin gne in nime .i. in moir 'through seeing the face of the heaven i.e. of the lower atmosphere'. O'D. obviously regarded gnacht as a deriv. from the root gnā Skr. jñā.—Ed.
 (b) B translates: is aire sin dogairdis scoitice 7 brithneig dee in mara de 7 adeirdis corbo mac don mair ba.—Ed.
 (c) B translates: 7 is uaidé aderar inis manand.—Ed.

MINDECH ['tenuis'] quasi mendic ab eo quod est mendicus .i. bregach.

inna mindechu (gl. tenuiores) Z. 284. The glossographer's bregach seems due to his confounding mendicus with mendax. O'Clery, however, has minneach .i. breg. This and the articles mesan, milchú are omitted by O'D.—Ed.

MANT ('the gum') .i. mo a saint bíd ('greater its desire of food').

So O'Clery.—Ed. Mant with its derivative mantach 'a toothless person' is still in use.—O'D. So W. mantach 'a toothless jaw', mantachur 'a toothless person' from mant, which Pughe explains as 'jaw', 'jawbone', 'mouth'.—Bret. munzun 'a toothless gum'.—Ed.

MAGH ('a plain') .i. mo is aghusta e oldas in fid ('more passable is it than the wood') no mó a aighe .i. a graifne ech ('or greater its race i.e. its horse-racing').

magh (see Magh Sainb, Magh Tuiredh) W. ma, Gaul. magus.—Ed. Anglicized moy.—O'D. aighe, which O'D. here leaves untranslated, occurs, meaning 'race' (cursus) in Senchas Mór, p. 122. It is probably cognate with ἀγών, ἀγυιά.—Ed.

MUINEL ('neck') .i. mo in fheoil fair quam in chind ('more the flesh on it quam on the head') no mo in neolach ata hé .i. fon chind ('or greater the neolach [?] it is i.e. under the head').

MIND ['an oath'] quasi mund a munditia .i. on gloine ('from the cleanliness').

mind sometimes means a holy relic and sometimes a diadem.—O'D. mind (gl. diadema) Turin: mind n-apstalacte, Z. 229: inna mind (gl. insignia) Z. 256, minna (gl. stigmata Christi) Lib. Hymn. 14: minna (gl. airm) Broccán's Hymn, 65.—But mionn now means an oath; and I think this must be its signification here. The glossographer refers to its compurgating effect.—Ed.

MINARBA quasi minuitur.

mionairbhe ceard .i. aisdeadha beaga bhios isin ealadhain ('small scientific rules [?] which are in poetry') O'Clery.—O'D.

MEDGE ('whey') quasi mo idg .i. mo deogh de ('greater is a drink of it') quam cunctis.

MUC ('a pig') .i. mucna a haigned ar ni geib a munad o neoch sibi cainis (leg. nisi canis?) 'truculent her nature, for she takes no teaching from any one nisi canis.

mucna, which O'D reads muck and translates by 'smoke', but which O'Clery explains by gruaim, seems the adj. whence mucnatu gen. mucnatad (gl. truculentiae) Z. 273.—Ed.

META ('a dastard') .i. mo a fhate .i. a fhatcess uime féin ('greater his caution, i.e. his cautiousness about himself').

meata is still the common Irish for 'cowardly'.—O'D. cf. Lat. metuo.—Ed.

W. mynych 'frequent' 'often'.—O'D. Corn. menough.—Ed.

MOR ('great') .i. mo a uir .i. a feoil ('greater its uir, i.e. its flesh').

mor 'great', W. mawr, also means maith 'good', according to O'Davoren, p. 105. Might we not then identify the Ir. ole 'bad', with Skr. alpa 'small'?—Ed.

MUR ('a rampart') .i. mo a úr .i. a talam 'greater its úr i.e. its earth'.

borrowed from Lat murus for moerus. múrdai (gl. muratas) Milan. W. mur, Juvenous.—Ed.

MI quasi mé a indsci.

O'D conjectures that mi is here a form of the pers. pron. 1st sg. But the gloss is obscure. Mi gen. mis is a month. Perhaps 'méa' may be meant for the Latin meo 'I go'.—Ed.

MUNCHILLE ('a sleeve') .i. man chail .i. man lámh (a) 7 cail comet ('man 'hand' and cail 'a keeping').

MUIR ('sea') i.e. a nomine mare (b).

MESS ('fruit') quasi mos quia sitt [leg. fit] in ussu lignorum fructus.

MULLACH .i. mul-oach ['round-eared'] .i. cluasach ('eared').

Mul O'Clery explains by cruinniughadh (W. crynu) and mul-dorn by dorn cruinn a round (clenched?) fist. An owl, perhaps.—Ed.

MALA ('eyebrow') .i. moo allo oldas intedan ('greater its hair (a) than [that of] the forehead').

a fem. c- stem: also means 'brow of a hill'. Manx molled. The Bret. mal-ven 'eyelash', Mid. Br. maluenn, seems cognate.—Ed.

MALLAND .i. na malach 7 fainne (b) oldas in mala fein ('of the eyebrow, and weaker (is it) than the brow itself').

See supra p. 107, where malland is explained as a feith or vein.—Ed.

MUAD MULLAIGH .i. medon in mullaigh ('the middle of the summit').

So O'Clery: Muadh .i. meadhón.—Ed.

MELL .i. milliu de [leg. milliud é?] no milli.

This is obscure.—Ed. Here O'D thought it meant 'evil-eye'.—Ed.

MUINE .i. múinio .i. daingnighim ('I fortify').

O'D explains muine as 'a brake', its present meaning. Here, however, it seems a verb with the vocalic termination above spoken of, and borrowed from the Latin munio.—Ed.

MOLT ('a wether') .i. mo a ailt no a felt no a sult .i. a feith ('greater its joints, or its wool, or its sult i.e. its fat').

acc. pl. multu, Broccán's hymn, l. 36: Manx mohlt, W. mollt, Corn. mols, Bret. maout 'mouton'. O'Clery explains sult by dath 'colour'.—Ed.

METH ('fat') .i. mo a feith ('greater its fat').

MAOTH ('soft') mo is [leg. a] meth ('greater its fat').

So O'Davoren, p. 102: maoth .i. boco no tlaith no binn. O.Ir. moith = Lat. mītis from meitis, as vīnum from veinum, olvoc.—Ed.

MAOTHAL ('a cheese') .i. maoth ('soft') 7 fuil ('and blood').

Occurs in lives of St. Kevin and St. Moling.—O'D. cf. mar letk-maethail infra s.v. Prull: maothla matha .i. meas 7 toradh, O'Clery.—Ed.

MÁSS ('buttock') .i. mo a fháss (c) ('greater its growth') .i. mo tic ass ('more comes from it').

MENDAT ('a residence', 'place') .i. míán áit .i. ait is mian la cach ('a place which is desirable with every one').

O. Ir. mennat, dat. sg. mennut, Lib. Arm. 18 a. 1.—Ed. meannad .i. ionad 'a place', O'Clery.—O'D.

MIDACH .i. mo dechaid e no maith ech ('greatest of steeds he or a good steed').

Perhaps a stallion. O'D translates 'he observes (dechaid) or observes well'.—Ed.

MUINTER ('a family') .i. muin toir .i. main toirithnech do neoch ('a relieving wealth to one').

muinter, montar gen. muintire 'familia', muinter (gen. muintir?) 'famulus'; muinter gen. muintire (in cét-muinter, Senchas mór, pp. 40, 232) 'famula' are all from a verb = Bret. monet 'to go', Corn. mones, W. myned, Lat. minere in eminere, prominere. So ἀμφίπολος and parichára are from a root signifying 'to go'. So, too, Ir. tím-thir-echt 'ministratio' the root TAR, Skr. trá.—Ed.

MIAS ('dish') .i. mo is fos í.

O'Clery explains mias by altóir 'altar', and quotes the old prophecy Ticfa tailcenn, etc., a mias in iarthair a thige: v. supra s. v. Cernine. Latin mensa, Goth. més. W. mwys is 'a basket'.—Corn. nuis, *moy*s 'a table'.—Ed.

MECON ('root') .i. mo ciness as ('more that springs from it').

in mecun (gl. radicem) Milan. mecon .i. buna(dh) O'Davoren p. 106: co as-mecnugur-sa (gl. ut eradicem) Z. 756.—Ed.

MAT .i. lamh ('a hand') unde indmat .i. ind na lam negar and indlat imorro
.i. lat .i. traig ('foot') indlat don chois din ar is [ind] don chois in traiche [sic /] et a latitudine dicitur.

See this supra p. 109.—Ed.

MUALACH [leg. Mullach?] .i. sescend .i. seiscend ('a marsh') ut dicitur [leg. dixit] rechtgal (a) 6 siadhail ('as said Rechtghal O'Shiel').

Slicht a dagai tria cach mualach	'The track of his two spears
cuanach [leg. cullach] flescach	through each marsh ferach (b)	A hero youthful, férach (?)
amail carr a tabair lamhach	As a car wherein lamhach (?) is tria condall fand ferach.	borne (c)
	Through stubble weak, slanting (d).

In H. 3. 18, p. 636 col. 3, this article stands thus: Maullach .i. seis .i. seiscenn, ut dixit úa siagail ag tothlugud cairr ('asking for a car') Slicht a daghae tre cach muallach Cullach (.i. loech 'hero' Egerton 1782, p. 26) flescach ferach Amail charr amberar lamach Tre condull fann ferach.—And so, nearly, in H. 3. 18, p. 72. col. 2, where the leading word is written Muldach.—Ed.

MUADH .i. uasal no airmidnech ('noble or venerable').

So in H. 3. 18, p. 636. col. 3: muad .i. uasal no airmidin.—Ed. So O'Clery: Muadh .i. uasal. Muadh .i. maith ('good').—O'D.

MIDLACH .i. medonlax ('middle-lax') .i. lethlax ('half-lax').

So in H. 3. 18, p. 636, col. 3. 'An effeminate person not fit for war,' 'coward'.—O'D. midlach occurs apparently as an explanation of druth, infra, s.v. Orc Tréith.—Ed.

MAIRBILL .i. maris bellum .i. cath no imecla ('a battle or terrible').

So in H. 3. 18, p. 636, col. 3. Mairbill is probably a derivative from marb 'mortuus'; see Zeuss. 304, 731, 788.—Ed.

MEN [leg. mén] .i. bel ('mouth') ut dictum est

Coicni ger gonus daine	A sharp spear which wounds men
ni frithit maine mara	(Great treasures do not profit (e))
mairg troich tar roi réna [ms. rema]	Alas for a coward (f) on a field of spears (g)!
atchi mena mac snama	He sees the mouths of sons of crawling (h)

mén = W. min 'lip or mouth in poetical language'.—Ed. O'Clery has mén .i. bél ('mouth'), mén mara .i. bél na mara ('mouth of the sea').—O'D.

MEIST .i. urtroighe ('phantoms') ut est sliab mis [.i. sliab meissi .i.] dona hurtroighib rodolba banba [.i. ben maic cermata] do macaib miled ('Sliabh Mis from the phantoms that Banba, [wife of the son of Cermait,] formed for Miled's sons').

(a) Ms. reagal. (b) 'indented, watery, grassy.' O'D. cullach a boar in H. 3. 18, p. 636.—Ed.

(c) 'As a shaft which is brought to shoot' O'D. (d) 'Of grass'.—O'D. but ferach here seems for farach = W. gwyrag.—Ed.

(e) 'Is not the finding of great wealth'.—O'D. but cf. frith .i. adal, O'Clery, Gaelic frith 'lucrum'.—Ed.

(f) 'Who is disabled'.—O'D. But cf. troich 'dwarf' 'coward'.—Ed.

(g) O'D. reads rema which rhymes with mena: rema is the reading of H. 3. 18, p. 633. col. 3.—Ed.

(h) 'of crawling men'.—O'D. but if snam here means 'crawling' does not the poet refer to worms?—Ed.

meissi .i. dealbha siabhairthe mar do bheidís cuirp do eireochadh as úir ('phantastical shapes, such as bodies that would rise from a grave') O'Clery.—O'D. Meisi is glossed infra by siabra.—Ed.

O'D translates 'the cup of D. for its lying poem of praise, a word of contention for which battles were broken'. But cf. coach supra p. 46 and barann .i. béim, O'Clery.—Ed.

MEISI .i. cuimgech ('able').

O'D renders this by 'narrowness', 'straitness', but in his suppt. to O'Reilly s. v. meise, he seems to regard cuimgech (=O. Ir. cuimcech) as 'able' (cf. cuimcither 'is able' Senchas Mór p. 40. cumacc 'power') and cites from a ms. is meisse torad a dá lám do chor don eglais 'he is able to give the fruit of his two hands to the Church'.—O'Davoren p. 106 has also Meisi .i. cuimgech and cites (from the Brehon laws?) ar ní meisi flaith doniupra feisti de, which I cannot translate. Aes nad meisi 'people not able' occurs in Senchas Mór, p. 242, and in H. 3. 18, p. 636, col. 4. meisi is glossed by tualuing.—Ed.

MEM .i. poc ('a kiss').

Meam .i. póg, O'Clery.—O'D. memm .i. poc, H. 3. 18. p. 636, col. 4. So O'Davoren p. 104, who cites a mem a meblugud ('disgracing') .i. veste elevata.—Ed.

MELI .i. cop cailli ('a woman's hood', 'a coif').

Mele .i. cop-chaille calladha no bréide bíde ar cheannaibh ban ('caps or coverings that are on women's heads'), O'Clery.—O'D. O'Clery also has Mele .i. drochlaoch 'a bad hero', 'coward' ? which is probably the same word in a secondary signification. W. moled.—Ed.

MEISI .i. siabra ('an apparition').

v. supra p. 119.—Ed.

MAGAR .i. miniasc ('a small fish').

Gen. sg. magair. The dat. sg. magur occurs infra, s.v. Orc tréith.—Maghar .i. miniasg, O'Clery. Maighre .i. bradan ('salmon') ib.—Ed.

MAN .i. lam ('hand') mane a remm ('its genitive (is) mane' (a)).

v. supra p. 108: man .i. lamh, O'Clery.—Ed.

MUT .i. gach ngerr ('everything short').

Mut .i. cach ngerr, H. 3. 18. p. 636, col. 4. Manx mut 'any short thing'.—Ed.

MUAD .i. egusc ('form or face').

So O'Clery: muadh .i. égcosg .i. dealbh no cuma, O'Clery. Moadh .i. écosc, H. 3. 18. p. 636, col. 4.—Ed.

(a) O'D makes this a separate article, and translates "mane i.e. reckoning"; but the phrase is of common occurrence in glossaries. Thus buil is said to be the reim of bol, tellrach the reim of tellur, tréith and tréithan are said to be the reims of triath, etc.—Ed.

UNDECIMA LITTERA.

NIAE [Nia B] a sister's son, ut Cúchulainn dixit prophetans de Christi adventu (a) i.e. the niæ of man will come ipaec móisi [?] i.e. The sister's son of man will come, et ipse est Jesus; et alii dicunt that Cúchulainn believed thenceforward.

Nia i. mac seathair, O'Clery.—O'D. Probably=W. nai, Corn. noi (gl. nepos).—Ed.

NEMNUALL: this is a noun that is greatest of the nouns of the world, i.e., heaven—acclamation of celebrating the mass there. Nem-nuall the acclamation (nuall) of the men of heaven (nem) at it.

So O'Clery: Neamhnall i. nuall b'fear nimhe no cantaireachd denma an aifrinn.—O'D.

NINUS i.e. nin-fhos i.e. a wave (nin) that got an abode (fos) (b), i.e. a wave that came from the sea from the west, and went into the air until it arrived in that country, and made a well thereout. Inde dicitur Corcomruad Ninuis [Corcomruad Ninuss B].

The name of a well said to have been formed by a wave on the Great Isle of Arran, in the Bay of Galway, which in the time of S. Endeus was inhabited by pagans of the Corca Modruadh, an ancient sept seated in the baronies of Corcomroe and Burren in the Co. of Clare. For an account of a moving cloud not unlike this, see life of Mochua, chapters 5 and 8 in Colgan's Acta Sanctorum, 30th March.—O'D.

NEMETH ['a chapel'] i.e. nem-iath ['heaven-land'] i.e. what is the right of the Church.

So O'Clery: talamh as dligtheach d'eaglais 'land which is due to a church'.—O'D. nemed (gl. sacellum) Z. 11, Gaulish nemeton, vernetetis (gl. fanum ingens). Probably from the root NAM (whence νῆμα, νῆμος, Lat. nemus) as ρέμενος from the root TAM, whence ρέμνω.—Ed.

NEMAITH ('sharp poison') i.e. what is the right of soldiers.

NEMPHUATH ('poison-terror') i.e. what is the right of poets.

This and Nemaith seem mere fictitious words like nem-aod, nem-mod, nem-od and nem-shuth.—Ed.

(a) B translates: ag tarngaire geine crist 'propheesying Christ's birth'.—Ed.

(b) nin rogab fos B. O'D translates fos by 'burst'.—Ed.

NEIT [Neid B] i.e. a god of battle with the pagans of the Gael. Nemon uxor illius [a ben sin B].

Ned i. dia catha, O'Davoren. Neid i. cath 'battle', O'Clery, i. guin 'a wound' ib. and, see cul supra p. 39.—Ed.

NAC ('no') quasi nec i.e. nech occ: inde dicitur nicc occ or ning occ ('not young?') nacc i. non, O'Davoren, p. 107: naicc (gl. non!) Z. 70. W. nag.—Ed.

NITH i.e. mortal wounding of a man.

So O'Clery.—O'D. nith gl. conflucht, O'D's suppt. arm fri nith 'a weapon for battle' Senchas Mór, p. 122. cf. perhaps, W. naid 'a jump', Bret. nijal 'to fly'.—Ed.

NER i. a wild boar, ut est in the Aisli: 'Fail neir net gribe gradaigthi' 'A wild boar's lair, a nest of a ..... griffin'.

near i. tore allaid, O'Clery.—O'D. cf. Skr. narya 'manly', Sabine nero 'strong'. O'D renders aisti by 'epigrams' sed qu. Fail in the quotation (which is from B) = foil in mucc-fhoil (gl. hara) root VAR, vri 'tegere', 'circumdare': gribe (= griphi A) gen. sg. of gribh 'a griffin', which occurs infra s. v. Prüll, and is borrowed, (like W. gruff, Fr. griffon, Ital. griffò, grifone, Germ. greif) from Lat. gryphus. In a poem published by Sir W. Wilde in the Proceedings of the R. I. A., describing the ransom (two of every wild animal in Ireland) which Cailte mac Ronain brought to liberate his foster-brother Finn mac Cumail, occurs the line is in gribh ingneach imard 'and the griffin, taloned, tall'. And in O'Mulconry's Glossary (H. 2. 16) we find grif 'a grife' i. quadrupes pennata. Gradaigthe O'D translates by 'fierce', sed qu.—Ed.

NOE i.e. a human being, inde dicitur dia ndamae noe for thír (a) 'if thou sufferest anyone on (the) land'.

nae i. duine, O'Clery.—O'D. cf. perhaps Gr. vaíw.—Ed.

NOES [Nos B] i. nó-fhios (b) i. knowledge of nine persons, i.e. three kings and three saints and three sages (c), i.e. a sage of poetry, and a sage of literature, and a sage of the language of the Féni. All these were composing the Senchas Már: inde dicitur:—

Lóiguire, Core, Daire the firm,
Patrick, Benén, Cairnech the just,
Ross, Dubthach, Fergus with goodness,
Nine props, these, of (the) Senchas Már.

See Senchus Mór (Dublin, 1865) p. 16.—Nós i. naoi-fhios i. fios naonbhair, etc. O'Clery: isin cétna nous fer n-érenn 'in the first law (?) of the men of Ireland', Senchas Mór, p. 12. Manx noash 'custom',—Ed.

NIMB i.e. a drop, ab eo quod est nimbus: inde dicitur in the Bretha Nemed

Oengus fósiblib imais aricht roloisceth a leth fonimib nimb(d).
"Oengus by sparks of knowledge .....(?)
Half of him was burnt under skies of drops.

O'D renders imais aricht by 'of inspiration', mere guesswork: imais (for imbais?) may be the gen. sg. of imbais; supra s. vv. Buas and Imbas forosnai. Nimb (i. nell 'cloud' drop', O'Davoren) may possibly be cognate with Skr. nabhas 'aqua'

(a) This is the reading of B.—O'D translates 'if a man was permitted on the land'.—Ed.

(b) Noc-fles B.—Ed.

(c) 'Chief poets'.—O.D.

vepoc, ni-m-bus 'rainstorm', 'raincloud', Ohg. nib-ul.—Ed. Nim .i. bráon. nim cruinnic a ngion goa .i. bráon do dhrucht a mbeol na fairge ['a drop of dew in the mouth of the sea'] O'Clery.—O'D.

NAIRNE i.e. purity; or nairne as if it were naire. This is ancient language, and the naire is the same as if écin were said in the common language to-day in West Munster maxime. Inde dixit the poet: "Is there aught (a) that is pleasing to thee"? "There is, nairé", says he who is interrogated, i.e. "There is, indeed", says he.

naire .i. glan ('pure'), nairne .i. deimhin ('indeed') O'Clery.—O'D.

NITH i.e. the mortal wounding of a man, ut est Nie he that inflicts it. Nethes, also i.e. a man's wounding, ut est ní hidnae nethes nemthigetar 'not a weapon that flies(?) that is dignified'.

B has ni hidna nethes nemtegar. O'D, taking nethes to be a verb, translates: 'It is not the arms that kill that are sanctified'. But O'Clery explains iodhna by sleagha ('spears') no arm ('arms') and neathas by guin duine. Nith occurs supra p. 122. Nie (gen. niad, Broccán's hymn l. 71 and infra s. v. Nia p. 125) is written nia by O'Clery and explained treinfhear 'champion'.—Ed.

NESCOIT ('a boil') i.e. This is a story of the Gael. When (the) battle of Moytura was being fought Goibniu (the) Smith was in the forge making the weapons for the Tuatha Dé Danann, and Luchtine (the) Carpenter was making the shafts for the spears, and Creidne (the) Brazier was making rivets for the same spears. Dicunt autem Scoti that Goibniu the Smith faciebat hastas by three actions, and the last action was the finish (b). Then Luchtine made the shafts by three cuts and the last cut was the finish. Sic et Creidne faciebat the rivets. Goibniu used to fling the spearheads from the tongs, and they used to stick in the jamb. Luchtine used to cast the shafts after them, and (this) was enough to insert (c) [?] them. Creidne used to fling the rivets from the jaws (d) of the tongs, and (this) was enough to insert (b) [?] them. Now while Goibniu was at this thing, a crime is charged against his wife. It was seen (e) in him then that the story was grievous to him, and he grew jealous thereat. This is what he does. There was a pole in his hand when he heard the story: Ness was its name, and it is about it the furnace of clay (f) is made; and he sings spells over this pole, and to every man who came to him he gave a blow of this pole (g). Then if the man escaped (h) a lump full of gory liquid and matter was raised upon him, and the man was burned like fire, for the form of the pole called Ness was on the lump, and therefore was it named Nescoit from that name, Ness then i.e. a swelling and scoit 'liquid'. Ness also means four things: ness ['weasel'] the name of the animal: ness a name

(a) In flú ní.—B. (b) 'three offers [grossa, greas 'any artificial work in executing which trade or art is required'.—O'D. Supp. to O'R.] and by the last it was completed'.—O'D. Feth is glossed by slémain 'smooth' in O'Davoren p. 93.—Ed.
(c) 'adjust'.—O'D. (d) 'top'.—O'R. (e) 'This was made known'.—O'D.
(f) criad: 'of ore'.—O'D. But cri, gen. criad, is the W. pry.—Ed.
(g) B has: doberith fuamadh don crann-ein.—Ed. (h) 'survived'.—O'D.

for a pole: ness nomen for a furnace [?] as said a certain smith's wife, who made an elegy for her husband, dicens—

It is grievous to me to look at him (a):
The red (flame) of his furnace (b) grows to the roof:
Sweet were the murmurs that his two bellows
Used to chant to the hole of his furnace.

Et alius dixit:—

A marriageable woman without a husband.
A fire with fervency (c).
Guaile's enemy was Naise's wife:
From her is the name Urnaise.

Nes is also a name for a blow and for a wound, ut est in the Senchas Már:

From grains (proceed) every measurement,
From (the) Feine every law,
From treasures every appraisement,
From the fines for a man's body,
Though many are his wounds,
The ness was elevated (d), i.e. according to the dignity of the spot in the person on whom the wound is inflicted. By it then is his eric: i.e. verbi gratia, if the outrage is inflicted on a face, or on a forehead, or on a chin, the eric is greater, as is in the Senchas Már: if the blemish is under raiment, it is less, etc.

Nes .i. aurnisi criadh, lege sanais cormaic. 7 rl. Nes .i. crécht. Ness .i. animal, H. 3. 18. p. 637, col. 2. Neas .i. creacht, O'Davoren, p. 108.—Ed. Neascoid [Manx askaid] is still the common word for a boil. The site of the battle of Magh Tuireadh marked by extensive sepulchral monuments is still pointed out in the parish of Cong, barony of Kilmairno and county of Mayo. An account of this battle (fought between the Fir-Bolg and the Tuatha Dé Danann A. D. 3303) is preserved in Harl. 432. Plut. xlviii E fol. 52 a. There is another Magh Tuireadh in the parish of Kilmacatransy, barony of Tirerrill and county of Sligo, where also a battle was fought A. M. 3330 between the Tuatha Dé Danann and the Fomorians.—O'D.

NASO ('ring') quasi nex onni as néxo .i. imnaiscim ('from nero i.e. I bind').

Now 'a tie'.—O'D. v. Au-nasc and Nia supra. Nasc seems by metathesis for nace = Lat. neerus. A rare form of the cognate verb nascaim—ar-eb-roi-nasc ('for I have bound you' (b))—occurs in Z. 780. The root is NAK in Lat. nec-tere, which seems quite distinct from Skr. nah from NADH.—Ed.

NAMA ('enemy') non ama non amatur.

nâma gen. nâmat, an ant-steam, is probably cognate with Goth. niman 'nehmen', to nim, stem NAM, whence Ohg. nâma 'privatio', 'rapina'.—Ed.

NAI ('a ship') a nave dicitur.

DUODECIMA LITTERA.

OLLAMH [Oldam B] .i. oll a damh 'great his retinue', twenty-four. Ollamh i.e. oll a uaim 'great his cavern', as it is difficult to destroy a cavern that is in a cliff, sic it is difficult to attack the poetry and learning of the ollamh. Ollamh also .i. oll eimh i.e. great to expound i.e. he expounds and solves questions (a)

For 'xx. iiii'. B has cethrar ar fichit '24 persons'. B inserts a third etymology: oll di em .i. is oll inni ditness .i. cethrar ar fichit 'great is that which protects (him) i.e. 24 persons'.—Ed.

Ollamh [gen. ollamhan] signifies a chief professor of any science [cf. ollamh breithe-man. O'Don. suppt.] but particularly a chief poet. It appears from a story about Mac Liag, chief poet to Brian Boromhe, that the Ollamh had power of life and death over his 24 attendants.—O'D. He had seven times fifty stories, Senchas Mór, p. 44, and the ollamh file had to compose a quatrain extemporaneously after his appointment by a king of territories, ibid. p. 42.—Ed.

ÓI i.e. a sheep, inde dicitur óisc i.e. óí sheisc, a dry ewe, Óimelc ('beginning of spring') i.e. óí-melg 'ewe-milk', i.e. that is the time that sheep's milk comes: melg, i.e. milk; because it is milked (blegar).

óí (ui, O'Davoren p. 124) = Lat. Umbr. ovis, ōis, Skr. and Lith. avi-s: A.S. eav, Eng. ewe.—Ed. Óisc or foisg is still the common word for a young ewe before she has a lamb.—O'D. In the Highlands óisg is a year-old ewe.—Ed. Seisc (now seasg) = W. hysp, Bret. hesk, hesp = Lat. siccus for siscus, Zend huska, Skr. pushka for sushka.—Ed.

ÓEN ('one') quasi un ab eo quod est unus.

W. Corn. Bret. un from oino, as the classical Lat. ūnus from O. Lat. oinos (cf. Gr. oivḥ 'unity'), Goth. ains (= ainas), O. Slav. intŭ — all (like Skr. ena 'this') from the pronominal root I.—Ed. Now aon, in compounds én, e. g. énní 'one thing'.—O'D.

ÓENACH ('an assembly'), i.e. úne each 'contention [?] of horses'.

B has aine ech, which may be rendered either by 'delightfulness of horses' (díne .i. aibnius) or 'swiftness of horses' (aine .i. luas no déine, O'Clery). Oinach, or Oenach gen. oenaiḡ n. is probably, like oenán, oentaigim, a derivative from óen, 'one'. Its meaning in Old Irish appears from the glosses, óinach (gl. theatrum) Lib. Armach. 183b, aenach (gl. agon) Gildas No. 45, aenachdu (gl. agonithetas) ibid. to have been a solemn assembly (πανάγυρις) at which games were held.—Ed. Aonach i. aín each i. ait a mbí marcaigheacht go hán no go haoibhinn 'a circus of horses where there is pleasant or delightful horsemanship', O'Clery. Now means a fair, [and so apparently infra s. v. Orc tréith] but in ancient times apparently a public meeting at which horse-races and other public sports were carried on: such was Oenach Tailten in Meath, and Oenach Colmáin in Magh Life in Leinster. The modern horse-races of the Curragh of Kildare (Cuirrech Liphí) are a continuation of Oenach Colmáin.—O'D.

(a) 'and solve difficulties'.—O'D.

OETH i. an oath (luige) or perjury (a).

O. W. an-utonou (gl. perjuria) with the usual change of oi to u, Goth. diths, Eng. oath. Luige is = W. llw, Bret. lé. Both words occur in O'Davoren s. v. Ardmes; ní fortreisei aeth óinuir (b) ardmes ílmíle n-éirenn ('not stronger than an oath of one man is a surmise of (the) many thousands of Ireland') i. ní treisi toimdin a sochaide oldass luighe n-aonfir ('not stronger is a conjecture of her multitudes than an oath of one man').—Ed. O'Clery has aeth i. mionn 'oath'.—O'D.

OAR i.e. a voice or call.

ῥαρος (from ὀραρος ?) 'discourse', 'chat' is perhaps the same word. Oar also occurs in O'Clery's Glossary, but I have never met it elsewhere. So blór 'noise' (O'Dav.) seems = φλόραρος ?—Ed.

OECH i.e. an enemy.

This occurs spelt Aech, supra s. v. Aithech. It has possibly lost the initial p, and, if so, may be equated with A.S. fāh 'inimicus', 'infestus'.—Ed.

ORB nomen viri, a quo Orbraige.

Orbh was the ancestor of the people called Orbhraige, who were descended from Fereidhech, son of Fergus mac Roigh, king of Ulster in the first century (c). They were seated in and gave their name to the barony of Orrery in the co. Cork.—O'D. Orbh, i.e. Orr, is perhaps from the same root as the Skr. arvan 'horse'. The raige may be = A.S. rige in sudh-rige etc.—Ed.

OG ('egg') quasi ob id est ovum i.e. egg.

og (gl. ovum) Z. 1020, W. oy, Corn. uy, Bret. ui, u, vi are connected with A.S. äg, pl. ägru, Ohg. ei, pl. eigir and perhaps the modern Greek áyó. The comparisons with ovum, óv seem to me very doubtful. The modern obh, Gael. ubh are probably borrowed from ovum.—Ed.

ORD ('order') i.e. ab ordine.

Ord i. dliged, O'Dav. p. 109: int-órd so 'hic ordo', Z. 666. W. urdd, Bret. urx.—Ed.

OLCHUBAR [Olcobur B.] i.e. 'ol-accobar, i.e. drink is a desire with him. Or ól nomen liquoris normannica lingua est.

So O'Clery. Olchobhar was the proper name of a man.—O'D. cf. Conchobhar. The Norse word intended is öl.—Ed.

ORNN i.e. a plundering or slaughter (d).

(a) éthech 'falsehood' O'D., but cf. éithecheadh (gl. perjuris) Z. 1045.—Ed.
(c) See Dr. Ferguson's poem The Abdication of Fergus Mac Roy.—Ed.

(b) MS. aonur.
(d) orguin 'devastation'.—O'D.

OM ('raw') i.e. of the food, Greek was corrupted there: ὤμων in the Greek, cruor [leg. crudum] Latine dicitur.

Manx aw: Skr. āma-m, Lat. am-arum.—Ed.

OPAIR ('work') i.e. oper, i.e. ab operatione.

Rather from opera.—Ed.: now obair, [Manx obbyr], Corn. and Bret. ober.—O'D.

ONG i.e. tribulation and chastisement (a). Inde dicitur, 'chastise thy son, O Fithal, till his tribulations follow (b)'. Ong i.e. a groan, ut est:—

Not the groan of one house henceforward (c):

Far from the graveyard is my broken house:

I am not a hero, but I am a poor maniac:

God has brought into little (d) my mind (e):

In H. 3. 18, p. 540, the verses are ascribed to Comgall of Benchor. ong i. brón po foghail 'sorrow or plunder'.—O'Clery: ong i. uch, ib. menico m'ong i. menico m' uch 'frequent my sigh', ib.—O'D.

ORAIT ['orate'] i.e. orait i.e. oratio.

B adds i. airnaigthi 'a prayer'.—O.W. araut.—Ed. This word occurs frequently in inscriptions on very ancient tombstones at Clonmacnois and other churches.—See O'Donovan's Ir. Grammar, pp. 43, 228, 398.—O'D. Of the 142 Clonmacnois inscriptions, of which I have copies, oroit appears on seven; orit on one (ORIT AR CLE[MENT]) and the abbreviation or. on sixty-six. The form orait occurs in an inscription at Tempul Breccáin, Ara Mór: ORAIT AR ANMAIN SEMBLAIN 'Pray for Semblan's soul.' That orait was borrowed from orate and not oratio is rendered probable by an inscription, of which I have a copy: OR.e AR ANMIN AEDA 'orate for Aed's soul'.—Ed.

OSLUCUD ('opening') i.e. uas-lecud ('up-raising') i.e. raising up the door; or oslucud, i.e. ais-lécud, i.e. letting it back.

ina oslucud 'for opening it' (thy house), Senchas Mór, 162. Manx f-osley.—Ed.

OCHTACH ('ridgepole'?) i.e. óg-thech, the house (tech) is more perfect (ógui-de) from its being thereon.

See Story of Diarmait mac Cearbhaill, H. 2. 16, p. 870.—O'D.

OR ('gold') quasi aur ab auro.

or is from aurum as Pól is from Paulus.—Ed. W. aur, Corn. eur, Br. aour.—O'D.

ORC TRÉITH, i.e. nomen for a king's son, triath enim rex vocatur, unde dixit poeta Oínach n-uirc tréith 'fair of a king's son', i.e. food and precious raiment, down and quilts, ale and flesh-meat, chessmen and chessboards, horses and chariots, greyhounds and playthings besides. Aliter, orcc, a name for a salmon, unde dixit Lomna the Fool's head, after it had been cut off from him, i.e. "a speckled, whitebellied salmon (orc) that bursts with small fish under seas ..... thou hast shared a share that is not right, Coirpre (f)" ! Thus, then, this happened to him. Finn hua Baiseni

(a) fochaid ? cosc 'disease and restraint'.—O'D. (b) 'until his disease is checked'.—O'D.
 (c) 'My groan is not the groan of one house alone'.—O'D. (d) i cert, at. ceart i. beag.—O'Clery.
 (e) 'It is God that drove from its rectitude my intellect'.—O'D.

had as his fool Lomna the Fool, i.e. an imbecile (a). Now Finn went forth one day on a hunting excursion, and Lomna remained at home. There was a woman of the Luigne with Finn, for in every mountain and every forest that Finn with his Fiann used to frequent there was a particular woman awaiting him in every territory [that was nearest to him still (b)], and they were female brughaidhs, and they were good to support the Fiann, for their people spread over the territories, so that no one durst (do) evil to them. Finn once came into Tethbha with his Fiann, and went on a hunting excursion. Lomna staid at home, and as he was walking without, he saw Coirpre, a champion of the Luigne, lying secretly with Finn's woman. Then the woman besought Lomna to conceal it. It was grievous to him to be concerned in betraying Finn. Then Finn came (back), and Lomna cut an ogham on a foursquare rod, and this was on it: "An alder stake in a pale of silver. Deadly nightshade ..... (c). A husband of a lewd woman (is) a fool (d) among the well-taught Fiann. There is heath on bare Ualann (e) of Luigne" (f). Finn then understood the story, and he became disgusted with the woman. The woman also knew that it was from Lomna he knew it, and she sent a messenger to Coirpre that he might come to kill the fool. So Coirpre came and cut off his head and carried it with him. Finn returned to the hunting-booth in the evening, and saw the body without a head. "Here is a body without a head"! says Finn. "Let us find out", said the Fiann, "whose it is". Finn then put his thumb into his mouth, and he spoke through teinn laghdha and said Ni conruba (g) etc. "This is Lomna's body", said Finn. "Enemies have taken his head from him". They slip the hounds and put them on the track (h). Finn goes upon the track of the soldiers, and found Coirpre in an empty house cooking fish upon a stone (i), and Lomna's head was on a spike by the fire. The first set that was cooked on the stone Coirpre divided among his thrice nine persons, and he did not put a morsel thereof into the mouth of the head (j). This was prohibited (k) to the Fiann, and then said [Lomna's head to them:] 'A speckled white-bellied orc, i.e. a salmon from a small fish; this is its origin etc'. The second set, then, Coirpre divided iterum priori modo, and the head said iterum: "Thou hast shared

(g) This passage (of which O'D's version is mere guesswork) is, I fear, hopelessly corrupt. The reading in B varies greatly from that of A. It is thus:—Ni conruba doine ni coarraig ni cotopaig náis ni cu derg raigi ni conruba torc ni conforas ni contorgas ni curarhairt a lighe lomna.—O'D's version is 'our men have not killed him. It is not a secret to the Luigne what has happened him', and he said again, 'a boar has not killed him, he has not eaten him; he has not carried him to his lair'.—Lomna.

(h) 'Let slip the hounds and follow (toicelad) upon the track'.—O'D. B's reading seems better: Ticet dona conuib ? doleicir for [in] slicht.—Ed.

(i) indeoin A. indiuin B. 'a spit'.—O'D. sed qu. Indecoin is said to be 'the supporting stone of a mill', Senchas Mór, pp. 124, 140.—Ed.

(j) B reads: in cœlucht dñi rolaad don indiuin raante corpi dia trib nonbaruib ? ni thardad dant mir ('a tooth-bit') imbecile in chind olsoduin.—Ed.

(k) lit. 'a prohibition' (ges A, geis B).—Ed. 'It was an insult to the soldiers'.—O'D.

B adds: Lasin dodechaid Finn cucu conid romarb 'with that Finn came to them, and slew him' scil. Coirpre.—Ed. The Finn ua Baiseni here mentioned is the 'Fingal' of Macpherson's Ossian and the Finn mac Cumhaill of the Irish. He was son-in-law of the Irish monarch Cormac mac Airt. His name still lives in the legends and poems of the people of Ireland and the Highlands of Scotland; but he was a native of Ireland, and was killed in his old age at Ath-Brea on the Boyne, A.D. 284, by a fisherman who wished to render his name notorious by killing so great a warrior.—O'D. Orc .i. muc 'a pig', O'Davoren, has probably lost an initial p and is = Lat. porcus.—Ed.

Additional Articles from B.

Ócc quasi ác, i.e. juvenes his in acciue.

The Latin is corrupt: ócc 'young', 'a youth', 'a warrior' is = W. iouenc, Z. 60. 779, now ieuanc, Corn. youanc, yowynek, yonk, Br. iaouank, and is = Lat. adj. juvencus, Goth. jugga 'young'. The diminutival ending -ócc, now -óg, Siegfried regarded as originally identical with this adjective.—Ed.

ODAR quasi fodar .i. dath foalda ('dull mottled [?] colour').

OE .i. foe bit ('under it are they').

O'D has .i. foebít 'they [scil. sheep] bleat'. But some one has written in the margin oe .i. dligheadh ('a law') 'people be (bit) under it' (foe), which seems preferable.—In his Suppt. to O'Reilly O'D has oe 'science'.—Ed.

A different division would be made by a just judge. It is certain I would like a bit to eat. It will be cause of reprisal to the Fiann against the Luigne".
- (b) B has here Romechutar cleith curi rith rurech aga catha cet amba meechaid ba cummæ lib mo agea ba dimdæ bid me ag tein doalannfaid luigne la find O'D's version is: 'A chief runs with his battlespear at their first commingling. OTHRAS ('sick-maintenance') .i. fothoir uais .i. a thoir fo uaisle ('under noble (uais) support (toir) i.e. his support according to nobility').

O'D translates othras by 'wages'. But see Senchas Mór, pp. 122 and 130, where 'imm a d'fuirichin' should be im mad'fuirithin. It would seem that when one man hurt another he was bound to provide the latter until his recovery with othras, i.e. a substitute, an attendant, food and a leech. The translation of this and the last preceding article are from a version which O'D made of a glossary in H. 3. 18. See also folach n-othrusa, O'D's Suppt.—Ed.

TERTIA DECIMA LITTERA.

PATRAIC a patricio. Patricius i.e. pater civium. Aliter patricius hic qui ad latus regis residet.

Anciently seldom or never used without the prefix Gilla or Mael.—O'D.

PELL .i. a pelle [.i. ón croicend B].

O.W. pell in guopell (gl. ultia 'housings').—Ed.

PEC(C)AD a peccato.

PATU ('a hare') i.e. poi-tó i.e. poi 'foot', and silently (tó) the hare puts its foot down, for not less is the hair on the sole than is on it above.

pata .i. miol moighe no geirrfhiadh.—O'Clery. Still applied to a leveret in the S. of Ireland.—O'D. pattu .i. poi-thó .i. is: tó a bois .i. ar etruime a reatha, H. 3.18, p. 637, col. 3: patnide (gl. leporinus) Z. 77.—Cormac's explanation reminds one of δασύπους and poi 'foot' of the Lith. kója.—Ed.

PROPOST i.e. prepost i.e. prepositus [.i. nech remsuidigthe B].

PORT a portu.

B has a porta .i. on port.—Ed. Still in use in the sense of portus a port or harbour. Also means a fort and a bank, in both which meanings it enters largely into topographical names. Also means a tune.—O'D. adopart Crimthann in port-sin du Patricc, Lib. Arm. 18.b.1. W. portk also is a port (portus), a gateway (porta) and a ferrying place.—Ed.

PAIRCHE ('parish') a parochia.

In mod. Ir. fairche.—Ed.

PARN i.e. nomen for a whale [?] of (the) sea. Now not every syllable attains a meaning (a), let no one therefore wonder though he knows not whence bloach ('whale') applies to the parn, et alia similia.

---

(a) 'It is not every two kinds that are similarly named'.—O'D.

So O'Clery: Parn .i. miol mór bhios isin bfairge. Bloach .i. miol mór no bleidh mhiol mara.—O'D. Probably, like M. Br. balen, borrowed from balaena.—Ed.

PUINGONE i.e. that is a scruple (screpull) of the notched beam, i.e. the scruple of the Gael .i. opuinge [oiffing B].

The screpall of the Irish was the denier of the Middle Ages. It contained three pinginns and weighed 24 grains [of wheat]. Another name for the screpall was faing no fang .i. sgreaball: do bheireadh a fhaing ndearg-óir don easpug 'he used to give his screpall of red gold to the bishop'.—O'Clery.—O'D. Puing-cne is either derived from ponc infra p. 140 'punctum' or is a diminutive (a) of punn or pung borrowed from pondus. As to the change of nd to ng cf. scing 'pellis' in sgingidóir (gl. pellicarius) from scind = O.N. skinn (W. cen) and the pronunciation in Ossory and E. Munster of nn slender [Middle Ir. nd] as ng (e. g. binng, tinnng, bainne) O'Don. Gr. 34. So in Niederdeutsch ng is often for nd (Kuhn's Zeitschrift, VII. 64 (b)), and I have long regarded the English participial ing as arising from A.S. ende, not ung, and as thus further illustrating this phenomenon. The intermediate form, as Tobler has lately pointed out (Kuhn's Zeitschrift XVI. 258), is inde.—Ed.

PINGINN [Puingind 'penny' B] a sellann (attached) to it, i.e. a sellunn cernae i.e. an offaing.

In O'D's suppt. s. v. Pinginn is quoted a passage which means 'eight grains of wheat are equal to the pinginn of silver' (comtrom na pinginne airgid).—Ed. Sellann the name of a measure, i.e. of honey, four times the full of an egg (4 inches round and 5 long) is one cerna: eight times the full of that cerna is a sellann.—O'D.

PÁIN i.e. bread, a pane: inde est in the Gaire Echach maic Luchta, i.e. Mo tri findne fongellsat im ailt echach ailchetail gaire de loilig find forscing scailter co dipil promthair pain ('bread is proved') la pugin puincern lasail cennach cernnas coimmilg coich bo bithbi cotammuaic midligen goss geisen cen os meised conach inna betha baa.

The Gaire Echach was evidently a law respecting the herding and valuation of cattle enacted by Eochaid, King of N. Munster in the first century.—O'D. O'D's version of this passage (here printed from B) is sad nonsense:—'My three whites (cows) which grazed around the house of Eochaid, the reproachful speaker, the price of a white milch cow in a shed, which has calved, is equal to two horses. Bread is proved by the pugin of a puincern by him who wishes not for falsehood. The full milk of five healthy cows is allowed for him who is pale from sores, groaning, though it may be believed that it is not living he shall be'. Quis Oedipus haec interpretetur? See some of the words in the passage glossed by MacFirbis supra p. 37 s. v. Cernnas.—Ed.

PUINCERN, then, a dish for measuring sellae [?] and a beam for weighing cattle, i.e. the notched beam.

PÍSSIRE i.e. piss-aire a broad-headed beam which is weighing one pinginn of weight, i.e. the weight of seven grains of pure wheat, and the [proper] fulness of the grain is to be observed that it is not swollen by water or shrunk by hardness (c). Píss, then, the name of the beam or the trunk. Píss also is a name for a pinginn, one pinginn then is the burden of that beam.

O'D conjectures pissire to be an ounce or steel-yard.—Ed.

(a) of. allene from all supra s. v. Dianecht, rincne from rind, etc.—Ed.

(b) Tobler, Zelts. XVI 261 cites Swiss hung, ching, unger for hund, kind, under (unter).—Ed.

(c) The passage italicized seems guess-work.—Ed.

PENN ('a pen') a penna.

Middle Ir. pend (gl. penna) H. 2. 13.—Ed.

PAIRT a parte.

Still in use, but the pure Irish word is cuid.—O'D. in O. Ir. cuit. The Irish word cognate with, and not borrowed from, pars is cert, which we find in composition with des and tuath (des-cert, tuath-cert).—Ed.

PERTIC i.e. a pertica i.e. a pole (fórrach) for measuring land.

W. perc from **perthc*, Eng. perch.—Ed. Fórrach is explained by O'Clery "slat tomhais tíre nó fearainn" ('a rod for measuring a country or land').—O'D.

PÓC ('a kiss') i.e. pác quasi pax i.e. a pace, for the kiss is a sign of peace.

dia domnaigh tabhair dí póg 'on the Lord's day give two kisses', O'D.'s Suppt. Manx paag. It is bóc in Zeuss 28, which seems cognate with Lat. bucca.—Ed.

PROIND ('dinner') a prandío.

iar tomáilt na prainne 'after eating the dinner' Lib. Hymn. ed. Todd, p. 151. Hence praintech 'refectory' in the Lib. Arm. 186. 1. W. prain, preinio.—Ed.

PRÚLL ['greatly'] i.e. great increase and augmentation, ut dixit a daughter of Ua Dulsaine, the poetess (a), to Senchán Torpest Imomloiscit mo dé n-ó prúll 'my two ears burn me greatly(b)'. A student of Senchán's people replied i.e. "In cerd mac hui Dulsaine O liaig do tharrsaige túll" " (It is for) the poet, son of Ua Dulsaine, from Liac of Tursaise túll". Now this happened to Senchán thus. He arranged to go to Mann, i.e. at a time of pleasure to make a visit there, and fifty poets were his retinue, besides students. There never was before upon any other poet such a dress as Senchán had upon him, besides his sage's gown; and what was best of the garments of the men of the princes (c) of the Gael this the other poets about him wore (d). When they had put to sea and set their stern (e) to land, an ill-visaged youth called after them from the land: "Let me (go) with you" says he. They all looked at him. They did not like his face nor to let him (go) with them, for he was not a bird fit for their flock because of his hideous aspect. For when he placed his finger on his forehead, streams of putrid matter would issue backwards through his ears [on] his back. Two crosses (cross-streams) over his crown. Like a dropping distillation of his brain ..... of his head and his skull (f). But they ceased not flowing with stench. Rounder than a blackbird's egg were his two eyes: swifter than a millstone his glance: black as death his face: rounder than a lifting-crane his two cheeks: longer than a smith's anvilsnout [?]

(a) lit. 'the female half-artist' (lethcerd).—Ed.

(b) 'For whom burn my two great ears'?—O'D.

(c) B inserts faitha.

(f) O'D guesses: 'Like the flowing out of his brain was what passed through washing wholly his head and skull'. With this description in the text compare that of the 'Efrít in the story of Hæson of El-Barrak, Lane's Thousand and one Nights, (London, 1859) III. 465.—Ed.

his nose : like the blowing of bellows (?) smelting ore the drawing and expiration of his breath : sledge-hammers would not strike off a glowing mass what his lips struck forth of fire : swifter, he, than a swallow or a hare on a plain : yellower than gold the points of his teeth : greener than holly their butt : two shins bare-slender, full-speckled under him : two heels spiky, yellow, black-spotted : his shin like a distaff : his thigh like an axe-handle (a) : his buttock like a half-cheese : his belly like a sack : his neck like a crane's neck : the size of a soldier's muilchinn was his head : lengthier than pitchforks his arms : bigger than bondsmen's fists his fists. If the mottled rag that was round him were taken off, it would not be hard for it to go on a journey alone, unless a stone were put upon it (b).

Then he shouted with a great shout, and said to Senchán "We should be more profitable to thee (c)", says he, "than the poets, or that proud, foolish (d), very mighty set (e) that is with you".

"Sit thou down (f)", says Senchán, "come thou behind the helm into the boat." "We shall try it" says he. He goes on the rudder into the boat (g) and quicker than a cat after a mouse (h), or a griffin to its nest, or a hawk from a cliff was the rush that he made till he was in the boat; and the boat was nearly sunk (i), because they pressed (?) before him on the one side : he had the other side to himself ; and they said from one mouth : "A monster hath appeared (?) to thee, Senchán ! and it will be thy only [living] company, provided we reach land". Thence was he named Senchán Torpeist, i.e. Senchán to whom a monster appeared.

They afterwards reach Mann and leave their fleet on land. As they were on the strand, they saw the old woman (sentuinne) grey-haired, feeble, on the rock. Sentuinne i.e. an old woman, ut poeta dixit :

An old woman and old priest (j),
A grave-broom (k) is their withered beard,
Provided they do not serve (l) God's Son,
And do not give (m) their first fruits (n).

Thus was the old woman on the strand, cutting sea-weed (o) and other sea-produce. Signs of rank (were) her feet and hands, but there was not goodly raiment on her. She had the ghastliness (?) of famine. A pity was this, for she was the poetess, daughter of Ua Dulsaine of Muscraige Liac Thuill (a) in the country of Hy-Fidhgenti, who had gone on a circuit of Ireland and Scotland till all her people had died. Then the artist, her brother, son of Ua Dulsaine, was seeking her throughout Ireland, but found her not.

So when the old woman saw the poets, she asked them who they were. Said a certain one of them "Good are those thou askest (b). This is Senchán, Poet of Ireland". "Wilt thou be humble, O Senchán"? says she, "art thou willing to give me an answer?" "Thou shalt have (one) indeed", says Senchán (c). [Then said the woman :—]

"I am not acquainted with ..... tribulation, Although the seaweed (is) blistered, soft" (d).

"What is its (corresponding) half-quatrain"? [said she]. Then Senchán was silent [?] and all the poets. But then the aforesaid youth sprang before Senchán, et dixit "O hag, thou shalt not approach Senchán. It is not meet for thee; but address me, for none other of this family shall address thee". "Question, then", said the poetess, "what is the [other] half-quatrain"? "Not difficult", says he :—

"From the surface of the great rock of Mann Much salt hath been made here".

"And this half-quatrain also" [said she], "what is its (other) half [O Senchán]?".

My two ears burn me greatly" (práil).

"Senchán shall not answer thee even yet", replied the youth. "Question, then, what is it according to thee"? says she. "Not difficult", says he :—

"Verily", said Senchán, "thou art the daughter of Ua Dulsaine, the poetess for whom there is searching throughout Ireland and Scotland". "I am, in sooth" said she. Then she is taken by Senchán, and noble raiment is put upon her, and she came with Senchán to Ireland.

When they came to Ireland they saw the aforesaid youth before them; and he was a young hero kingly, radiant; a long eye in his head: his hair golden-yellow: fairer than the men of the world was he, both in form and dress. Then he goes sunwise round Senchán and his people, et nusquam apparuit ex illo tempore: dubium itaque non est quod ille poematis erat spiritus, etc.

Senchán Torpeist was chief poet of Ireland when Guaire Aidne was king of Con-naught A. D. 649—662. The spirit of poetry is represented as ill-visaged at first, because of the difficulty of the art to a beginner. [As to the challenges to give the corresponding couplet] it was believed among the ancient Irish that a true poet could supply the second line [half?] of any quatrain if he heard the first repeated. In a ms. in the Bodleian, Laud 615, p. 134, there is a short account of a poetical contention between St. Columbkille and the Devil. The latter attempted to puzzle the former by repeating the first lines of several ranns and demanding of the saint to supply the second. In this the saint succeeded in every instance; but, in his turn, he defeated his antagonist, who could not supply the required second lines of some moral poems, and thus was detected to be the arch-enemy of mankind.—O'D.

As to walking dextrorsum [dakshinam kar], see Toland's Celtic Religion, p. 143, and Martin's Description of the Western Islands of Scotland, p. 20.—O'D. In the Hills here at Simla the men walk sunwise round their gurus either thrice or seven times. As to the challenge to complete quatrains, compare the Arabic ijāzat: "Verse-completing was in all times a favourite intellectual exercise of the Arabs, whose powers of improvisation were marvellous. It is when two poets contend by one reciting a verse which the other must follow with another in the same metre and rhyme, and with a continuous sense; the former then has to give a third and so on, till it is shown which has the greater imagination and promptitude. Sometimes one uttered half a verse which the other had to complete. Imr al Qays was accustomed to challenge those who claimed the reputation of poets to compete with him. Once he challenged Tow'am the Yeshkeri, and said to him, 'If thou be a poet, complete the verses which I shall utter,' and he began 'Dost thou see the flash gleaming in the night?' Tow'am continued, 'Like a Mage's fire it blazes a blaze'. Imr al Qays: 'I was wakeful to observe while slept Abū Shorayh'. Tow'am: 'As oft as I said 'it now ceases' it flashed abroad'. Imr al Qays: 'Its sound was as a murmur in a place unseen'. Tow'am: 'Like the she-camels lowing wildly when they meet the herd.' The poem is given in the Diwān of Imr al Qays, p. 41, Arab. Text. When the poet found that he had an equal he bound himself by an oath never again to contend in poetry". Chenery's Assemblies of Al Hariri: Vol I. pp. 484-5.—Ed.

RECHTAIRE ('a steward') i.e. rector airge ('of herds').

O'D prefers the reading a rectore a rege. Rectire (gl. praepositus gentis), ónd rectairiu (gl. a villico) Z. 743, reachtaire i. rí no breitheamh 'a king or judge' O'Clery.—Ed. In modern times the word is degraded to mean a farmer or dairyman. Evidently derived from recht 'lex'.—O'D.

ROSS i.e. three things it means (a) i.e. ross 'wood', ross 'flaxseed', and ross of the water ('duckmeat') A different cause for each. Ross 'wood', first, ross ('a land of deer') : ross 'flaxseed', then, ro-fhás 'great growth' : ross of water, then, rofhoss ('great rest') for it never is save on stagnant water.

In the S. of Ireland ross or ras is still used, particularly in topographical names [cf. Brocán Ruís Tuire 'B. of Ros Tuire' Féire, Sept. 17] to denote a wood, rassan a copse or underwood : in the N. ross means a point extending into the sea or into a lake. Ros 'flaxseed' is still in common use [Manx rass 'seed']. Ros which grows on stagnant water is commonly called ros lachan 'duckmeat'.—O'D.

RÓT ('a road') i. ro-ut i.e. ro-shét ('a great path') i.e. greater than a sét, i.e. semita unius animalis. Now there are many names for ways : sét, rót, ramut, slige, lámrotae, tuagrotae, bothar. Sét, first, ut praediximus. Rout ..... (b) it was made for the horses of a mansion for itself [?]. Ramut i. greater than a rót i.e. an area which is in front of the forts of kings. Every neighbour whose land reaches it (c) is bound to cleanse it. Slige ['high-road'] then, for the passing of chariots by each other was it made, for the meeting of two chariots (d) i.e. a king's chariot and a bishop's chariot, so that each of them may go by the other. Lámrota ('a bye-road') i.e. between two slighidh; a slighe to the north of a mansion and another to the south. For advantage and convenience [?] it was made. Tuagrotā i.e. a husbandman buys a way to get to a ..... or a mountain. This, then, is its price i.e. a beast from every one who passes it, every other year. A bothar, two cows fit upon it, i.e. one lengthwise, the other athwart, for their calves or their yearlings fit on it along with them, but if they [the calves] were behind them [the cows], the cow that followed would gore.

There are three cleansings for each of them : three times at which they are cleansed, i.e. time of horse-racing, time of winter [?], time of war. These are the three cleansings, cleansing of its brush-wood, and of its water and of its weeds. These are the causes for which it is cleansed : that it soil not its chariots going on a journey, that it soil not (a) its horses going to (b) a fair : from weeds, lest any one be (c) upset [?] (d) on it when going to battle etc.

carted (= W. carthu) raite 'cleansing of roads' is said in Senchas Mór p. 128 to be a ndriú ocus a ndraigne do beim díb 'to cut from them their brambles and thorns'—Pictet, Nouvel Essai p. 50, connects rámát with the Skr. rantu (from ram-tu ?) 'road' 'river', ráma 'horse'.—Ed.

RĒO ['frost'] i. e. a Greek (word), reo enim græce gelu Latine dicitur.

The Greek word meant is probably ῥίγος. In Old-Irish we have réud (gl. gelu) Z. 42; in Early Middle Irish reuth (gl. in pruina). W. rheu, Corn. reu (gl. gelu). M. Bret. reau, riou now réb. The British forms, without a final dental, come nearer to Cormac's reo, which I would connect with the Gothic frius, the Latin pruina for prusina, Skr. root prush.—Ed.

RINGCNE quasi quinque : inde dixit Ferches (the poet) when Finn ua Baiscni was reckoning every pentad in succession of the hosts of MacCon, to seek the Fian of him i.e. Ferches (e). Then Ferches passed with fury [?] by Finn, and cast the spear at Lugaid so that he was dead, and he said Ringcne (quasi carincne) rus rig ['a little pentad is a king's reproach' (f)] for this was what Finn used to say still when he was counting every pentad in turn.

A is here corrupt. I have translated the last sentence from B : "7 asbert occa rincne quasi carincne rus rig .i. arba heth atbeired finn beus otrimed cach coiccer a uair. Rincni quasi quinque". Rincne is probably a diminutive of rind. I suspect that B's carincne is a corruption of **cairncne*, a diminutive of **cairn* 'five', the gen. sg. of which occurs in the gloss bé charna i. ben chuicir 'a woman of 5 men', 'a harlot' H. 3.18, p. 61, col. 1 (g), and which I would identify with the Skr. pani 'hand', the lingual n of which points to an Indo-European PARNI. The story of Lugaid's murder is thus related by Keating.—"It was a poet named Fearcheas, son of Coman, that assassinated Lugaid MacCon with a species of javelin called rincne, at the instigation of Cormac, son of Art, as the king stood with his back against a pillar-stone at Gort-an-óir ['the field of gold'] near Derg-rath (a) in Magh Feimen to the W. of Ath-na-carbad, and while he was there engaged in distributing silver and gold to the poets and ollaves of Ireland. When the poet Fearcheas, son of Coman, who was dwelling at Ard na geimleach, (which is now called Cnocach) heard that MacCon was thus occupied, he entered the assembly with others of his class bringing the rincne with him. Then when he had reached the presence of Mac-Con he thrust his victim through the body with the weapon until it met the pillar-stone against which the prince had leaned his back, and thereupon Mac-Con died immediately of the wound.—Keating's History of Ireland, translated by O'Mahony, New York, 1866, p. 322. Now reilig, roilig.—O'D. Manx ruillick. See Sabaltair infra p. 149 and Ir. Glosses, No. 691. The Breton has relégou for 'relics', and so the Ir. reilgi is glossed by taisi, H. 3. 18, 524.—Ed.

ROP and RAP. Rop then is every animal that wounds, ut sunt vaccae, rap every animal that drags to it, ut sunt sues: sed tamen vicissim communiter dicuntur. Rap, then, ab eo quod est rapio, robb ab eo quod est robustus [i. láidir, Mac Fírbis].

Rap ainm do gach beathadhach tairrgeas biadh chuige as talmhain amhail ata muc 7 a samhail etc. ('a name for every animal that draws food to it from earth as is a pig and its like etc').—O'Clery. The passage cited by O'Reilly s.vv. Rop, rap means "names for quadrupeds. Rap is a name for an animal that drags to it. Pigs are called rop for their strength [robur]. Cows are called rap from snatching (rapiendo) their food to them". Rob occurs supra s.v. Mugeime.—O'D. rop na toimliher 'a beast that is not eaten', Senchas Mór, p. 160: cin a ruip 'trespass of his beast', ibid.—acc. pl. rupu 'trespassing cattle' O'D's Suppt. Manx raipey 'to tear'.—Ed.

RIBAR i.e. a sieve.

Riobhar i. criathar, O'Clery.—O'D. So O'Davoren p. 110: cotariagfaidheir amail ribar 'be thou pierced like a sieve'! ib. 112 s.v. Riagha. Borrowed, I think, from cribrum.—Ed.

RÍSS i.e. every story and narrative. Risse then i.e. stories. Inde dixit Coirpre son of Etnae in the first satire which was made in Ireland prius i.e. cen díl daime risse rob sen Bresse 'not to pay people of story was prosperity to Bress', i.e. to Bress, son of Elathan.

Bress [is said to have been] king of the Tuatha dé Danann A. M. 2337, though of Fomorian descent by the father's side. He fought the battle of North Magh Tuiredh against Nuada Airgetlám ['Silver hand'] A. M. 2764, where he was slain. The site of this battle is still pointed out in the townland of Moterry, parish of Kilmactranny, barony of Tirerill and co. of Sligo. Curious sepulchral monuments are to be seen on the battle-field, of which a minute description was given by Dr. Petrie in a paper read before the R. I. A. in 1836.—O'D. Riss is probably cognate with rith 'a bard', and perhaps W. prydydd: see Coirpre's satire, supra, p. 37, s.v. Cernine.—Ed.

RUAD-ROFHESSA ('Lord of great knowledge') i.e. nomen for the Dagdae.

King of the Tuatha dé Danann, A. M. 2804: v. supra, [p. 23] s.v. Brigit.—O'D. His name occurs in a passage in the Book of Leinster 149 a. col. 3, which states that Aisiu was son of Dán ('Poetry'), son of Osmenta ('Scrutiny' (a)), son of Imrádud ('Cogitation'), (a) A derivation from Osmennadh i. scrudun o meanmuin 7 a mebrugud dogní. H. 3. 18. p. 637.—Ed.

son of Rofhis ('Great Knowledge'), son of Fochmarc ('Inquiry'), son of Rochmarc ('Research'), son of Rofhis ('Great Knowledge'), son of Rochond ('Great Sense'), son of Ergna ('Cognition'), son of Ecna ('Wisdom') son of the three gods of poetry, three sons (a) of Bresse, son of Elathan and Brigit the poetess, daughter of the Dagdae Mór, who was called the Ruad rofhessa, son of all the sciences (dána) i.e. a son with whom is all science.—Ed.

RUAMNI [Romna B] ais i.e. greyness and yellowness.

O'Clery has Romna áois.—O'D. I do not understand this gloss. Ruamnas means 'lodix' in Z. 27: ri ruamna buden, Seirglige Conculainn.—Ed.

Son of the little blackbird (i.e. Mac Lonain).

bídh cach maith agad arachinnchugan Have thou every good thing (ready) before him, a cendgucain (i. a cind gegain)

O Little Head! (i.e. O head of a little goose!).

With rer cf. rer-cerc 'plover'? cearo dhubh, O'Cl. O'Davoren p. 112.—Ed. The quotation seems taken from a satire on Finngúine or Cenn-gegáin (c) and his poet Flann mac Lonáin. Finngúine was deposed A.D. 900, and Cormac mac Cuilennáin elected in his place. Mac Lonáin, a descendant of Guaire Aidne, was murdered by the Desi or Munster in 905, and is called the Virgil of the Scotie race by the 4 Masters. None of his poems have come down.—O'D. Many of his "productions are still extant" according to Dr. Todd, Wars etc. X. See the Chronicon Scotorum, p. 175. The diminutives gillgugan (leg. gillcucán? (and cenngucan) leg. cenncucán?) from gilla 'puer' and cenn 'head' are curious; cf. Dubucán a man's name, Isucán 'little Jesus' (Isu), Flanducán a man's name; cridecán ('little heart'), Echucán ('little horse') a man's name. RIND i. (d) crann ar is do rinn scine donither ('for it is for the point of a dagger' (e) it is made').

O'D reads rind i. crann 'a spear-shaft' and cites O'Clery rinn i. cos, rinne i. cosa.—Ed.

RENDA ('stars') i. re nua ('a new time') i. gach re a tegait ar ni dogress atchiter acht anaill alo 7 anaill anoidchi ('every time (f) they come, for they are not seen continually, but some by day and some by night').

Aird-reanna is used to denote the planets.—O'D. ron-snaide don rind-nim 'may he convoy us to the starry heaven!' O'Davoren, p. 111 s.v. Rand (leg. rind).—Ed.

(d) MS. a (no 1).—Ed. (e) do rinn 'with the edge of a knife'.—O'D. (f) 'in turn'.—O'D.

ROTTA (.i. uisci) 7 ROTAN .i. on deirge asberthar ar is rot cech nderg ('from redness it is called, for rot is everything red').

Spa water? mineral water?—O'D. ruide, roda red-coloured mineral water that generally has a scum on it (Erris), O'D.'s Suppt.—Ed.

RÚSS .i. agaidh ('a face').

Russ .i. gruaidh an chinn 'cheek of the head', O'Clery.—O'D. rús [leg. rus] .i. aigidh no imdergadh ('a face or reproach') O'Davoren, rusa ruirech righ treibe, ib. Rús .i. gruaidh 'a cheek', ut dicitur conach romna rus richt, 'so that a man's cheek is not reddened'. Rús dono imdergadh 7 gach nderg 'reddening and everything red', H. 3.18 p. 17.

ROSIE quasi risir a rísu .i. on gaire ('from the laughter').

Roisire .i. roimenma ('great spirit', 'gaiety') O'Clery.—O'D. dodechaid Lochru co rosir 7 co eogach co cosnam 7 cetaib fri Pátricc, Trip. Life, (Egerton 93) 3 a 2.—Ed.

RUCCH .i. nairi ('shame') .i. ruadcheo ('red mist') vel quasi rutige ('redness').

Ruice .i. imdhcargadh, O'Clery.—O'D. asbertar ananman arndip ruccos doib 'their names are mentioned that there may be shame to them' Z. 1054.—Ed.

RET ('a thing') a nomine res latine.

Now written raed, raod, rod.—O'D. rét a masc. u-stem: ainm réto 'name of a thing', Z. 264: n. pl. ind retai sin, Z. 361, 'these things'.—Ed.

RAIT ('road') .i. on rota immbi a hinas ('from the rota in which is its state').

Obscure.—O'D. In his supplement to O'R, O'D. cites 'raite .i. cuairt ingelta', which seems a blunder: O'Davoren p. 113, has raiti .i. rot ('a road') ut est frithe raiti ('it was found on a road') i.e. thy goat was found on a road or in a round of grazing (cuairt ingelta) or between a green and a mountain land (dirinn). From a green out this is a raite there'. In O'D.'s Suppt. we have raitig 'roads' and raitcch 'a traveller'.—Ed.

ROGA ('choice') quasi togæ ut dicitur toga de rannaib 7 cumal senorba la sinnser ('a choice of divisions and a cumal of the old lands with the senior').

For la sinnser H. 3. 18, p. 78 col. 1 has 'laisin saor no lasind fer': rogu 'electio' Z. 606, root GUS (Skr. jush), whence γέυω-της, gus-tus, kisan, choose, etc.—Ed. rogha [Manx reih] and togha are still in common use.—O'D.

REMOR ('gross') .i. romor ('very great') no remaire ar is aire a imarcraidh ('or rem-aire for on it (aire) is its excessiveness').

Still used [spelt reamhar] for 'thick', 'fat' or 'gross'.—O'D. Seems from a root RIBH, whence ἀλείφω, ἀλείφαρ, ἀλείφα and Lat. de-libuo. As to the infected m in Irish for vowel-infected b, cf. támh = tabes, nemh = véφος, promhadh = probatio, etc.—Ed.

RON ('phoca') .i. animal on roshnam do(g)ni asberar de ('from the great creeping it makes it is so called').

rón (gl. foca) H. 2. 13. Manx raun, W. and Corn. moel-ron. Perhaps if rón has lost initial c, the A. S. hron 'whale' may be cognate.—Ed.

RONNA imorro quasi sron unna .i. ton(n)a srona ('waves of a nose') quia est unda .i. tond ('a wave').

O'D. conjectures 'running of the nose'?—Ed.

RATH ('a circular earthen fort') .i. baile ('a residence') .i. on rates asberar ('from the ratia it is called').

Also ráith acc. pl. ráithi Lib. Armach. 6 b. 1: Gaulish acc. sg. ratin, Inscription of Poitiers. Rates seems a blunder for ratia 'fern': Dief. Orig. Eur. p. 403.—Ed.

RIASC ('a morass') .i. ro-uisci ('great water') no re uisci ('a plain of water') no esc riam ('ever watery' [?]).

O'Davoren explains riasc as a place wherein there is soilestar 'sedge'. In Manx the cognate reecast f. is 'a wilderness'.—Ed.

RINDSCINE ('top of a knife') .i. ro ind ['a great top'] .i. inn cech barr ('inn is every top').

ROT .i. ro fada teit tar techtæ ('too far it goes beyond what is lawful') et inde dicitur echrot.

Obscure. In his text O'D translates rot by 'a cast or throw' (O'Clery has rod .i. urthur); in his note he seems to think it 'a road'. If rot mean a throw, echrot (which O'D renders 'horse-kick') may mean a great throw, ech, like W. march, Eng. horse, being used (I suppose) as an intensive.—Ed.

RASTAL ('a rake') .i. ris talmuin benas ('it touches the ground') quasi trastall .i. tris toll bis a coss ('its handle is through a hole').

Now rastall.—O'D. Borrowed from rastellus 'râteau', Manx raistyl, with the common progressive vocalic assimilation.—Ed.

ROSC 7 RÚSC on roaisced bis forru asberthar ('from the great searching that is upon them they are called').

Obscure: rosc generally means 'eye' and rusc 'book'. Rosg is said by O'D (Suppt. to O'R.) to mean 'a poem,' 'a commentary,' 'a meaning given.' O'Clery explains it by tuigsin.—Ed.

REBBAD quasi ribbad .i. riab doberar tairis ('a stripe [?] that is brought across it').

Obscure: reubadh is 'to tear', riab 'a rent'.—Ed.

BONNAIRE ('a butler') .i. ronnad doni don biud 7 aire ainm coitcend cech grada flatha ituaith ('a distribution (ronnad) he makes of the food, and aire (a) a general name for every rank of chieftain in a country).

(gl. partista) Ir. Glosses, No. 9. Corn. renniat (gl. divisor).—Ed. W. rhanwr 'sharer'.—O'D.

RAS MOEL ['a bald ras'] .i. ron ('a seal').

Rasmhaol .i. ron, O'Clery: cf. W. moel-ron.—Ed.

[RÉTU .i.] reatus .i. bidbanas ('criminality' (b)).

Bidbanas is for bibdanas 'criminality', and reatus is the Latin reatus 'state of impeachment', 'criminal charge', and intended here as a gloss on rétu, which seems accidentally (c) omitted: cf. Amra Col. Leb na huidre, fo. 12b:—tria thuaith idlaig dorumeoin retu .i. ic dul dó tria thúaithe na n-ídal rofinnad a mbibdanas fri dia co tabrad forru cretim do dia 7 ondi as reatus ata rétu ('in his going through the people of the idols he knew their criminality towards God, and he gave them faith in God; and from reatus is rétu').—Ed.

RINCNE .i. ainm sleige ('name of a spear').

v. supra p. 142: a diminutive from rind 'point'.—Ed.

QUINTA DECIMA LITTERA.

SANCT BRIGIT i.e. St. Brigit this.

O. W. san-bregit Lib. Land. 42,264. Sant Breit ib. 225, 251: Z. 162. Lan-Sanfrait ibid. 263, now Llan-San-ffraid.—Ed. Maire ocus sanct brigit, Broccán's hymn, l. 106.—O'D.

SÚIL ('eye') quasi sol, for through it is light to man. Soilse ('light') ab eo quod est súil.

SOLAS 'light' a sole [.i. on gráin 'from the sun' B].

v. Aingel supra p. 12.—Ed.

SOBRAIGHT [Sobraig B] a sobrio [a sobria .i. on subachus B].

Sobra .i. subhachas gan meisge 'cheerfulness without drunkenness'. Mac Firbis.—O'D. Sobraight is the 3d. pl. pres. indic. act. of a denominative, meaning sobriant 'they make sober': cf. the adj. sobrich sobrius 'Z. 1059.—Ed.

SUBAIG .i. a sobrietas.

now subhach 'merry', 'cheerful'.—O'D. Subaig is probably a scribe's blunder for subraig = sobrich cited supra.—Ed.

SENOD ('synod') a synodo.

senudh sruih 'a synod of seniors', Chron. Scot. p. 176. W. senedd, Corn. sened.—Ed.

SALOND [salonn B] i. e. sail onn .i. salt stone, unde dicitur sails ('brine').

salonn ('salt') gen. saloinn—W. halen.—O'D.—Manx sollan.—Ed.

SANAS i.e. sain-fhiss 'rare knowledge'.

dia na sanaise (aidhchi na heiseirghi ar aen lith 'the day of the Annunciation and the night of the Resurrection (are) on one feast'.—O'D. supp. to O'R. s.v. Sanais. But is not sanas here literally 'a whisper', 'secret' (Corn. hanas)? see Toreicc infra and cf. the phrase mac sanaise 'a secret child' O'D's suppt. In the title Sanas Chormaic, sanas may perhaps be cognate with W. hanawd 'derivation'. But as the title of this glossary is sometimes rendered by 'silentium', I would rather connect it with the Manx sannish 'whisper', Corn. hanas.—Ed.

SCROLL i.e. light, unde apud Scoticos diu [din B] scroll i.e. dies solis.

Scroll (sróll) is probably from **stroll* (Nhg. strahl) root STAR, whence Skr. strisomi, στρογγυμι, sterno, Goth. strauja. Din 'day' (whence tre-denus, Z. 1040) seems the Old Slav. dñu, Skr. dina, Lat. nun-dinae, peren-dinus.—Ed.

The use of the term Scotici here and in the articles Cocul and Mo-de-broth to designate the inhabitants of Ireland tends to shew that this Glossary was made before the middle of the eleventh century. So they are called 'Scoti' s. vv. Aingel, Drúchta déa, Grasticum, Nescoit and Manannan mac Iir, and Ireland is called 'Scotica' s.v. Mug eime. See Skene, Chronicles of the Picts and Scots, pref. p. lxxvii, and Pott, Etymologische Forschungen, 2te Aufl. II. 847.—Ed.

SAN i.e. rii frigrit [rifriget B].

Explained by MacFirbis in margin of H. 2.15 "refrigeo" i. athshuaruighim.—O'D. The true reading is probably sán i. refrigerat, and sán may be = the Latin sanat.—Ed.

SÉGAMLAE [segamla B] i.e. lactiferousness: séig then i.e. milk, inde dicitur in Bretha Nemed "a cow is (a) estimated by her ségamlae" i.e. her milkiness.

O'Davoren, p. 116, has segamail i. lacht 'milk', and quotes the above passage from the Brehon laws.—Ed.

SMERÓIT [smerfoit B] i.e. smér 'fire' and fuait 'remnant' i.e. a remnant of fire.

Now smearóid 'a live coal': gríosach is a collection of small smearóids mixed with hot ashes.—O'D. sméróid (gl. carbo), Ir. Glosses No. 945, where W. marwydos 'embers' is cited: σμάρπλη, μάρπλη may also, perhaps, be cognate.—Ed.

SIREM ('a disease') i.e. because it moves (siress) from place to place in capite et in toto corpore.

streamk i. galar no tinneas [=Manx chingys] 'disease or sickness', O'Clery.—O'D.

SERR ('reaping-hook') i.e. a serra.

In H. 2. 16 serra is explained spel 'a sithe' [= Aeol. σπαλίσ], but MacFirbis explains it by carrán 'reaping-hook'.—O'D. So in Old Welsh serr glosses falx.—Ed.

SNUAD i.e. hair of the head.

So O'Clery, who adds an example: gidh iomdha a snuadh i. gidh fada a fholt ('though long is his hair').—O'D.

SECO from siccus.

B reads secc 7 secca ondi is siccus.—Ed. Now sioc 'frost', gen. seaca.—O'D. Surely secc is an adj. = the Highland seac 'withered', 'dry', 'sapless', W. sygh, Corn. sygh, Bret. sec'h, all borrowed from siccus. Sioc, O. Ir. and Mid. Ir. sic (see infra, p. 154), sicc (sicc mór 7 snechda, Chron. Sc. 247) is perhaps cognate with sting, Goth. stigwan.—Ed.

SECNAB [secnap B] i.e. secund-ab i.e. secundus abbas, vel secundus abbat; vel secnab i.e. sequens abbatem.

'prior' or 'vice-abbot'.—O'D. n. pl. secnd-apid (gl. gubernationes), dat. pl. secnd-apthib (gl. actoribus) Z. 74. Hence secnopote, Chron. Scot. 136, 'vice-abbacy'.—Ed.

SECHT ('seven') ab eo quod est septem.

S ('six') ab eo quod est sex.

See as to sé, Ir. Glosses No. 777.—Ed.

SNAD i.e. hair v. supra s.v. Snuad.

SPONGO [sponc B] 'sponge' i.e. a spongia.

W. yspwng, Br. spouenk, spoué.—Ed. The Irish apply this word at present to the herb colt's foot. It occurs in The Tribes, etc. of Hy-Fiachrach p. 22: dochuirsiód sbongc re lasadh i mbeol in righ 'they put a lighted spong into the King's mouth'.—O'D., where it seems to mean 'tinder', Manx sponk.—Ed.

SABALTAIR [sobaltoir B] i.e. sepultur i.e. a sepultura, i.e. a graveyard (relicc) of a plague, i.e. a great field in which pagans used to bury.

There is a townland of this name, anglicized Subulter, in the parish of Kilbrin, of Duhallow, Co. Cork.—O'D.

SEIST .i. nomen for mid-day, quasi sext a sexta hora.

Ital. siesta, Fr. sieste.—O'D.

SPÍRUT ('spirit') ab eo quod est spiritus.

W. yspryd.—O'D. Corn. speris, Bret. speret.—Ed.

SPÍRACUL ab eo quod est spiraculum.

MacFirbis explains: poll as a dtig gaoth no anal no deatach no aer truaillithe ('a hole from which proceeds wind or breath or smoke or foul air'.—O'D.

SCREPUL quasi scripul ab eo quod est scripulus.

Scrupulus .i. cloch beag géar tecmhus eadar neach agus a bhorrog, no co(m)throm fichit gráine corna d'ionnmhus 7 fiche traig talmhan ('a small sharp stone which comes between one and his shoe, or the weight of 20 barleycorns of wealth' (silver) and 20 feet of earth') MacFirbis. In a tract called Fodla Feibe preserved in the Book of Ballymote, a screpall of silver is defined as weighing 20 grains of wheat: see Petrie's Round Towers, p. 216.—O'D. The Old-Irish form is in leth-scripul Z. 286.—Ed.

SNÁTHAT ('needle') .i. snáth-shét ('thread-road') road of thread i.e. eye of a needle.

im snúthait 'for a needle' Senchas Mór, p. 150. O. W. notuid now nodwydd 'needle', Br. nadoz: W. noden 'thread' = Br. neuden: Corn. noden (gl. filum), snáithe, snáth and snáith (Corn. snod) (gl. vitta) = W. ysnoden, Br. neud, neuden. All cognate with Umbr. snatu 'vittatus', asnatu 'non vittatus' (Zeyss, Kuhn's Zeitschr. xiv. 75).—Ed.

SAIM i.e. every yoke; whether it is between two persons, two horses, two oxen, or two cows.

saimh .i. gach córaid no gach cúpla 'every brace or couple', O'Clery.—O'D. See Essem supra p. 64.—Ed.

SIMÍN ('a rush') i.e. fine (seímh (a) its top (inn).

dat. pl. isna simnib supra, s.v. Itharna. This seems seimin (gl. festula), Ir. Glosses, No. 211 (Manx shuin), with which Diefenbach compares Ohg. semida 'juncus'.—Ed.

SCENG i.e. a bed, unde est imscing a small tent which surrounds a bed. Inde dicitur ferr imscing adbai 'better a bed-tent than a house' (b).

sceng .i. leaba ('a bed') no both bheag ina mbi leaba ('a small booth wherein is a bed') O'Clery.—O'D. sgeng .i. iomda occurs in that strange collection of Pictish (?) words entitled Duil Laithne, H. 2.15, p. 116: imscing .i. tech bec atalla imdai, H. 3.18, p. 635, col. 3. I would equate sceng with Lat. sponda as scing with O.N. skinn, v. supra, p. 134, s. v. Puingene.—Ed.

(a) seím (gl. macer, gl. tenuis) Z. 23, 261.—Ed.

(b) 'a bed is the best residence'.—O'D. B. reads ferr imscing adbar il.—Ed.

SACART ('priest') i.e. sacerd ab eo quod est sacerdos, or sacart i.e. knowledge (suithe) with him (acca) is his ordo.

'fully learned in his order, i.e. his profession'.—O'D. But is not ord here the ord eclada which Fiace read in one night? Note in sacart, 1° the progressive vocalic assimilation, 2° the provection of d to t, as also in Manx saggyrt.—Ed.

SORB i.e. a fault, quasi sord i.e. a sordido.

B reads: a sordento (sic) i. ont-salchar ('from the filth').—Ed. O'Clery explains: locht no salach ('a fault or filthy').—O'D. The Gr. ρύπος, if for σρύπος, is probably cognate.—Ed.

SLABHRADH ('a chain,') i.e. slabhar iad i. a narrow closing i.e. slabhar everything narrow, esslabhar everything wide.

Still the common word for a chain.—O'D. It points to an Indo-European root SLAB, whence perhaps the Homeric ελλαβον from εσλαβον.—Ed.

SAMRAD ('summer') i.e. sam hebraice, sol latine, unde dicitur samson 'sol eorum': samrad, then, a course (rad) which the sun runs: then most does its brightness delight (a) and its height.

Sam = W. hâf—O'D. Corn. haf, Bret. hanv.—Ed.

SALT ab eo quod est saltus i.e. a leap.

Z. 1075: isinbliadin-sin hi cuiretar salt.—Ed. The barony of Salt in Co. Kildare takes its name [from salt i.e.] a saltu salmonis, Leix-lip, laxelöb.—O'D.

SEN ('old') ab eo quod est senex.

W. Corn. and Bret. hen, Zend hana, Skr. sana.—Ed.

SEINDSER [senser B] i.e. senex et fer.

Seinnser is still in common use for 'ancestor' and 'senior'.—O'D. It seems to be formed from sen 'old' with a double comparative suffix, like Lat. sin-is-ter applied to the left hand as the weaker, (Kuhn), or rather perhaps, euphemistically like ἀριστερός, ἐβώνυμος.—Ed.

SALCHUAIT [Sailchoit B] i.e. sail-choit i.e. coit a wood in the Welsh. Sailchoit a great wood of willows.

Cognate and synonymous with Latin salicetum: the name of a townland, anglicised Sallowhead or Sulloghid in the barony of Clanwilliam, about four miles W. of Tipperary town and celebrated in Irish history.—O'D. The hardness of the t in Salchuaith shows that it is a loanword, and that the coit or cuait is either, as Cormac says, from O.W. coit now coed, or from the Latin coetus (arborum), whence I suspect the W. word is borrowed.—Ed.

SADB i. so-adba i.e. a good abode.

So O'Clery: W. haddef for haddf (Siegfried). Like Skr. sadman 'house' from the root sad.—Ed.

SINE ('a teat') i.e. quasi snige ('flowing').

sine seain (gl. ugula, Ir. Glosses No. 151: snige is rather 'trickling' 'dropping'.—Ed.

SERB i.e. daughter of Scath [Sceithirne B] a druid of the Connaughtmen: it is she that planted the trees (feadha) of Athlone, i.e. Brón ['Grief']

(a) doaitne A, doatne B: 'in which its light and height are greatest'.—O'D.

and Dub ['Dark'] and Dur-dibeoil ['Hard-Dumb' (a)], when she gave the three meetings at Athlone to Cormac Conloinges, son of Conchobhar.

* For some account of this lady see the story Toghail Bruighne Dachogadh. The Feadha of Áth luain was the name of O'Naghtan's country containing 30 quarters of land W. of the Shannon, in the barony of Athlone and Co. of Roscommon.—O'D.

SÍN i.e. everything circular, unde the sín of Mac Main i.e. a sín that was round his neck for declaring truth: when it was truth he used to say it was wide for his neck: when it was falsehood it was narrow.

Sion .i. idh no slabradh.—O'Clery. See above s. v. Anairt—O'D. B adds: no eipistil bo imon bragoit fri foirgell firinde 'an epistle that was round the neck for declaring truth'.—Ed.

SÉG i.e. a wild deer: inde dicitur séghuinech [seguinidh B(b)] i.e. a man who slays ségs i.e. wild deer.

segh .i. agh allaidh 'wild ox', O'Clery.—O'D.

SERRACH ('a foal') i.e. serr everything proud and everything timid, inde dicitur serrech lem i.e. I am afraid (c). Serrech also i.e. serech, behind his mother's heels (serid) he is usually grazing.

Now searrach, gen. siorraigh.—O'D. Manx sharragh.—Ed.

SCUIT ('the Scots') i.e. a Scota, daughter of Pharoah, king of Egypt.

Scuit is the nom. pl. of Scot (d): dat. pl. scotaið, Fiacc, l. 35. For the legend, see Senchas Mór, p. 20.—Ed.

SÁTH i.e. food, inde dicitur sáithech ('satiated').

Sáth .i. biadh: as uadha sin a deirthea sáitheach, O'Clery.—O'D. báí séim sáth .i. ba bec a sáith .i. ba bec domeled no ba bec a hasad. Amra Cholumchille.—Ed.

SANBH i.e. son of Augaine [the Great], unde Magh Sainbh.

Magh Sainbh 'the Plain of Sanbh' was one of the old names of Machaire Chonnacht or Magh Aoi, a plain between the towns of Roscommon and Elphin, Strokestown and Castlereagh in the Co. Roscommon.—O'D.

SENG i.e. everything slender (?) in the Book of the Great Wood.

seang [Manx shang] now 'slender'.—O'D. The word segdae, which O'D translates 'slender', is explained in B by cosmail fri seigh é ar a feige 7 ar a glicus 7 ara gabailchís, 'like a hawk is he, for his sharpness and his cunning and his graspingness(?)'.—Ed.

SÉN i.e. a net in which birds are caught: inde dicitur sénbretha ('birdnet laws') and sénairecht.

So O'Davoren, p. 117. O'D renders sénairecht by 'bird-catching'—a mere guess. Sén is = W. hwynen 'springe'.—Ed.

Additional Articles from B.

SEGON ['pismire'] quasi se[ng] gen .i. gen segdæ ab eo quod est seng cach segdæ isin duil feda mair.

(a) O'D makes four trees, Dur and Dibeoil being two.

(b) Seighghuinidh O'Clery.—Ed.

(c) B. has serr coch nogdamh.—Ed.

(d) not a nom. singular, as Mr. Skene (Four Ancient Books of Wales, l. 107) strangely supposes.—Ed.

v. Seng supra p. 152. Sengan is the common word for 'pismire'—In the S. of Ulster it is pronounced as if written seghghan, the ghgh remarkably guttural.—O'D.

SAU .i. soer ('noble') ut est isna brethaib nemed ('in the Bretha Nemed'): Fairc-dither maire mathæ macuib sau sochraite ('Let good horses be kept [?] by youths of noble trains').

cf. perhaps the Skr. sava 'offspring'.—Ed.

SAB .i. so saebtha no asa a soud.

Obscure. O'Clery explains sab by sonairt no láidhir ['powerful or strong', cf. Fiacc, l. 23] and by bás ('death').—O'D. So O'Davoren, p. 114: Sabh .i. tren 'mighty'. ut. est atait .iiii. sabaidh tuaithe 'there are four mighty ones of the district'. At p. 116 he also explains sab by taisech 'chieftain' and calma 'brave'.—Ed.

SOP ('a wisp') .i. a sopinis ar is fuigell tuige e ('for it is the remains of straw').

Manx sap 'wisp', W. sopen 'a truss': sopen o wair a 'a truss of hay'. Sopinis seems for stopinis dat. pl. of the low Latin stopinus 'a wick', Lat. stuppa, but the meaning points to a connection with the Germ. stoppel, Ital. stoppia.—Ed.

SRIAN ('a bridle') quasi frian a nomine frenum.

W. ffruyn.—O'D. See Z. 94. 114. Manx streean, as stroin = Ir. srón, stroo = Ir. sruth (a).—Ed.

SRON ('nose') .i. srúaim ena ('stream of water') .i. imat uisque ('abundance of water').

srón (gl. nasus) Z. 28: a fem. ā-stem.—Ed. W. trwyn, Gr. ῥίς ῥινός.—O'D.

SEATHAR ('a packsaddle' (b)) ar sreith nanesnad bit ('on the range of the ribs it is').

Z. 929. From Med. Latin stratura.—Ed. W. ystrodur.—O'D.

SRAND ('snoring') .i. sronand .i. ann ('there') isin sroin bes (in the srón 'nose' it is').

srann and srónán are now used for 'snore' or 'snort'.—O'D.

SRUTH ('a stream') .i. srúaim etha ('a river of food') .i. imat eisc inte ('abundance of fish in it').

sruth sleacht .i. lorg na srothann, O'Clery. sruth also: means imat 'abundance'. O'Dav.—Ed.

STAD ('stop'!) .i. a verbo sta .i. tairisim ('to stay').

borrowed, perhaps, from status: it is used for 'a mark of punctuation'.—Ed.

STAB ('a stoup') a stando .i. ara chomnairti ('for its firmness').

v. supra s.v. Ana, and cf. Low Latin staupus, A.S. steap m., O.N. staup 'poculum', from one of which words, it is borrowed.—Ed.

SDIALL .i. is di iall ídi 'it is of a strap of a clasp' [?] .i. di leinid ('of a leinid?) vel quasi stiad .i. isdi iadtar immuinchille ('it is by it the sleeve—leg. in muinchille—is closed').

(a) strane 'a file or rank' = Ir. sreith, sraith: strawan 'cake' = Ir. srubhan, srubhóg: streetey 'to scatter' = Gael. sraoil 'sparge' are other instances of this epenthesis. The Manx striap = Eng. shrimp (for scrimp?) is perhaps an instance of the change of sc to st.—Ed.

(b) 'a straddle'.—O'D.

stíall i explained fuathróg 'a girdle' by O'Dugáin in his Forus Focal.—O'D. The glóim is obscure. O'Clery has sdíall .i. clár: go sdíallaib airgid .i. go gclaraibh etc. In Scotland stíall is 'a strip' 'a lash'.—Ed.

SHIAN .i. in gae aen í ('it is a spear one') .i. a hennr í ('alone is it') vel a verbo scindo (a) .i. dluge nech ('I cut (b) one') scian [from **secian*] gen. scine, dat. scín 'knife' = W. yegien.—O'D. Derived from the same root as W. yegiau, Mid. Br. squeiaff, viz. SAK, whence Lat. seco, securis, French scier, scion. See sice (leg. siche?) infra s.v. Tarathar p. 161.—Ed.

SCUIT .i. genaide .i. is cai faitchessai forammbí ('it is a path of watchfulness whereon is') no cai faitbiuda do chach ('or a way of laughter to every one' (c)).

Vide infra s. v. Scatan. E. Curry thought that genaide was 'a laughingstock', from gen ('a laugh' v. supra s. v. Gentraigi, p. 90), and if so, we may equate scuit with W. yegnatyn 'buffoon': cf. also O'R's sgoitighe 'mountebank' (if the word be genuine), and the Highland sgoiticheachd 'quackery'.—Ed.

SCAILP a verbo scalpo .i. lomraim ('I peel').

Obscure. In the story of Nede mac Adnai (Three Irish Glossaries, xxxix) Caier goes to "a flagstone behind the fort under a scailp there". There is a mountain-cleft called the Scalp near Dublin.—Ed.

SENN ETHA(I)R ('bench of a boat') quasi sos ind fir imramae ('support of the rower—lit. man of rowing').

Seas is now used for a bench (scamnum).—O'D. See (gl. aptempna i.e. antenna) Ir. Glosses No. 70 and p. 165: gen. pl. seas, Senchas Mór, p. 170. As to ethar v. supra p. 60.—Ed.

SHUD MUICCI ('a pig's snout') a verbo ruo .i. sroinim.

O'D renders sroinim by 'I root with the nose', as if it were derived from srón, but it rather seems the modern sraoinim: srub may be connected with Lat. sorbeo and ρρφίω, Ion. ρρφίω.—Ed.

SIUR ('sister') a nomine soror latine.

Now 'cousin', 'kinswoman': deirb-shiur (compounded with dearb) is 'sister': cf. Corn. hwir.—O'D. W. chwær, Bret. c'hoar, Lat. soror from sosor, Skr. svasri—all from SVASAR, whence also other Irish forms, fiar, fiur. Sethar in sethar-oircnid Z. 787 'sister-slayer' and pethar 'sororis' appear to come from SVA-TAR. The Pictish (P) satur in the Duil Laithe, seems from sador, sator.—Ed.

SAL NA TRAIGED ('heel of the foot') a sola .i. lar ('ground') no ontsalchar for-dohi in cois ('or from the mire on which the foot is').

salaid (gl. hassibus) Gildas: sal 'heel' like the W. sawdl, M. Bret. seuzl, is from STA-lo.—Ed.

SAIL .i. ('willow') .i. sofillti f ar a maithi ('pliant is it for its softness').

The dimin. sailiog is still in common use for 'sallow'.—O'D. Manx shell, shellagh. W. hellyg 'willows', Corn. heliggen (gl. salix), Bret. halck.—Ed.

(a) MM. scinde.

(b) 'to cut'. O'D. but dluge here is for dlugin, one of the vocally ending 1st persons eg. above referred to s.vv. Duide and Ithe.—Ed.

(c) 'a laughingstock to all'.—O'D.

SINNACH ['a fox'] .i. sennech .i. nech is sine do chonuib é ar fot a ree ('one who is oldest of dogs from the length of his life').

apparently the same word as sindach (gl. putidus) supra s. v. Putte: asrir in sinnach n-allaid, Broccán's hymn, l. 61. Manx shynnagh.—Ed.

v. supra p. 149, s. v. Secc.—Ed.

SALTAIR .i. a nomine (p)salterium.

There were at least three Irish compilations in metre called by this name: The Psalter of Cashel, the Psalter of Tara and the Saltair na rann.—O'D. Cormac's glossary is called the sanasán saltrach Cormaic in Laud 610, 86 a, col. 3, which exemplifies the gen. sg., M. Br. sauter, W. sallwyr.—Ed.

SCATAN ('herring') .i. scuit inn ena .i. genaid ind uisci ['the buffoon (scuit) of the water (en); the laughing-stock of the water'].

Now scadan.—O'D. Manx skeddan, W. ysgadan 'herrings', ysgadenyn 'a herring'. Herrings are also called in Welsh pen-waig 'empty heads', and the Irish etymology above given seems to rest on some such contemptuous opinion as is expressed by the Welsh name last cited.—Ed.

SETHOR .i. noe. un. bibliotheca .i. librorum custodia.

O'D conjectures 'a library'. This and the following article come in the ms. at the end of the words beginning with T.—Ed.

SETHOR no men do dia ('for God') unde est isin tris tig anail morainn mac múin laind lais sethar sorar .i. lais ar siur .i. lais ar siur anarndainib la dia 7 berid mac ndo 7 rl. 7 bid aonta do fri dia 7 dosngegha ara genas 7 a naibe 7 a feile 7 rl. ata dono nomen coibnesto don anmainsin isin duil feda mair .i. sithothar cech tren ('our sister shall go among our people with God, and shall bear a son to Him, etc., and he shall have a covenant with God, and he shall choose her (a) for her chastity and her holiness and her honour (b) etc. There is, moreover, a nomen related to this noun in the Duil Feda Máir i.e. sithothar every one mighty'.

See above s.v. Anart.—O'D. See also s.v. Nias p. 121. Sethor 'a name for God' reminds one of Cicero's caelestium sātor i.e. Jupiter.—Ed.

(a) do-an-gega, reduplicated future of toḡu, with the infixed pronoun en. So do-an-gegas 'they who choose'. Z. 1067, dogegaind anad sund 'I would choose to rest here.' Trip. Life, 6 b. 2.—Ed.

(b) 'and he shall prevail by his chastity, meekness and love'.—O'D.

SEXTA DECIMA LITTERA.

TRÍATH i.e. a king, because through him (treime) are foods (a) of the land (ethæ iathæ.)

B reads: iarsinni treith nethas iathæ treime ethæ iathæ.—Ed.

TÍ i.e. a garment (brat) i.e. a fire (breo) against cold (fuit)

So O'Davoren, who cites do-m-igfu tí mo macain múi.—Ed.

TORT i.e. a cake i.e. nomen de sono factum est: inde tortíne i.e. a little cake.

W. torth.—O'D. Corn. torth, Bret. tors, all from Lat. torta.—Ed.

TOISC i.e. voluntas hominis i.e. what is pleasing to a person, unde is said toisc dam 'it is pleasing to me.'

toisc-limm 'voluntas apud me' = volo, Lib. Arm. 18. a. 2. Perhaps the W. dais.—Ed.
O'Clery has the derivative toiscidhe i. toil.—O'D.

TRÍATH also, three things it means: tríath 'king' i.e. he pacifies (sidaighther) the land (tír): tríath 'sea' it terrifies (uathathar) the land: tríath 'hog' it turns up (soodathar) the land. Now they are distinguished in their genitives (b): tríath, now, 'king,' tréith is its genitive: tríath 'sea', tréthan its genitive: tríath 'boar', tréithe [treithirne.—O'D.] its genitive.

tréith 'regis' occurs supra s. v. Orc treith. Tréthan the gen. and tréthain the acc. sg. of tríath 'mare' occur in the Félire, June 3, Dec. 11. With this Siegfried compared Tpírwv and Zend Thraetaona ('Feridun'): trethan (gl. gorges) Z. 737 (whence the adj. trethnach 'stormy') seem connected. I have not met tríath 'boar' elsewhere, except in O'Clery's Glossary, where tríath is also said to mean tulach 'a hill'. The several etymologies of tríath are thus in B: Tríath i. ri tirsith a taithmech. Triath i. muir tiruath a taithmech Triath i. tore tirsod a taithmech. Here taithmech is a grammatical term meaning, apparently, 'analysis'.—Ed.

TINNE i.e. disease (iubar) of death i.e. it stiffens every entrail. Tinde, then, i.e. tenn-eo, a point (c) that stiffens the feeling [?] of the heart until the animal is dead therefrom.

B has: Tinne i. iubar bados i. tenneo i. eo tinnes teinm in cride combi marb de an ammandæ.—Ed. Iubhar i. galar H. 3.18. p. 654, col. 2. eo i. rinn and tinm i. tuigsein O'Clery.—O'D. The passage is obscure: tinno glosses chalybs in Z.726.—Ed.

TECH 'house' ab eo quod est tectum.

(a) 'the corn'.—O'D.

(b) 'oblique cases'.—O'D.

(c) 'dart'.—O'D.

Still the word in use in most parts of Connaught. In Munster the form is tigh, in Ulster toigh, in Meath tigh, stigh and stagh. Cf. Lat. tego and tectum with Gr. στέγω. It enters largely into the topographical names, as Taughboyne (Teach Baoithin) in Donegal. Tedavnet (Toigh Damhnaide) in Monaghan, Timoling (Tigh Moling) in Kildare and Carlow: Stackallan (Toigh Chonáin) in Meath, Stillorgan (Tigh Lorcaín) near Dublin, etc.—O'D. The form with s (cf. a-sdeg 'vom house' Z.565: a-steach 'into' (a) a-stigh 'within') is the oldest: cf. Skr. sthag. The ch for gh is not easily explained. The W. ty, pl. tai, points to an Old Celtic tagi.—Ed.

TOREICC i.e. secret telling (?) i.e. information which is given in silence: i.e. in a whisper (hí sanais).

TORC ('a hog') quasi porc i.e. a mutation.

Still in use to denote 'hog', 'wild boar'. Enters largely into topography, as Turk mountain, Drum turk, Clonturk etc. W. twrch.—O'D. Corn. torch, Br. tourch.—Ed.

TARBH ('a bull') quasi taurb i.e. a tauro.

W. tarw.—O'D. Manx tarroo, Corn. tarow, Bret. taro, all from the Old Celtic tarvos. The Latin taurus is for tarvus as the Greek ταῦρος is for ραῖρος.—Ed.

TETHRA, name of a king of the Fomorians: inde dicitur in the Dialogue (of the Two Sages) (b) iter triunu Tethrach 'among Tethra's mighty men'.

Tethra is glossed in the Forus Focal by badb 'scallcrow' rírpaē, and O'Clery has also teathra i. muir 'sea'.—Ed.

TREB ('a tribe') i.e. trib ab eo quod est tribus.

treabh, gen. treibhe, still in common use to denote 'tribe', 'sept'.—O'D. There was an O. Ir. triab and there is a Gaelic treubh.—Ed.

TENLACH [sic B, tenlaeg A] i.e. tene ('fire') lige ('bed').

Seems the same as teallach 'hearth'.—O'D. In Z. 822 tenlach glosses tolletum.—Ed.

TEIRT i.e. tertia hora.

itir teirt 7 noin, Senchas Mór p. 104 'between the third hour (after sunrise) and the third hour before sunset'.—Ed.

TÉT ('a string') nomen de sono factum.

tét (gl. fidis) Z. 79 = W. tant, pl. tannau = Skr. tantu 'thread', tantri 'string of a musical instrument'—root TAN, whence ράννμαί, relw, ten-do etc.—Ed.

TEMAIR ('Tara') i. te-múr wall (c) of Té daughter of Lugaid, son of Ith. Or Greek was corrupted there: teomora [ἑώμεω?] i.e. conspicio. Temair, then, every place from which there is a remarkable (?) prospect both in plain and house (d), ut dicitur temair na tuaithe ('temair of the country') i.e. a hill, temair in tige ('temair of the house') i.e. an upper room.

Temair was common as the proper name of a woman, and is still the name of several conspicuous hills in Ireland.—O'D. v. Milgitan and Mug-éime supra pp. 107, 112. As to Té (better Téa) see Three Ir. Glossaries pp. xii, xiii.—Ed.

TEIM [Tem B] everything dark, unde dicitur temen 'dark or pale-grey'.

(a) See Taircech infra.—Ed. (b) is in imagalaim in da thuar, B.—O'D.
(c) 'mound'.—O'D. (d) cech locc as mbi aurgnam deici i ter mag 7 tech, B.—Ed. 'omnis locus conspicuus et eminens sive in campo sive in domu, sive in quocumque loco sit, hoc vocabulo quod dicitur Temair nominari potest', Dinneenchas.—O'D.

From root TAM, whence Skr. tamas darkness, and timira = Ir. temel, Corn. tioul in tioul-g-ou 'tenebrae', M. Br. teffal, teffal, W. tywyll. See Demo supra, p. 55.—Ed.

TENLAM i.e. a spark, i.e. fire (tene) of (the) hand (lámh).

O'Clery explains this by teine creasa.—O'D., which glosses igniferrium.—Ed.

TAILM [Teilm B] ('a sling') .i. tell-fhuaim .i. the stroke [?] of the thongs (iall) and their sound.

I would rather read with B tobas iall 'division, or separation of thongs'. Tuilm (M. Bret. talm), seems cognate with W. taflu for taflu, talmu. An early example occurs in Leb. na huidre, (Amra Choluncille, note): maidid esi a deilm amail chloich a tailm 'her cry breaks from her like a stone from a sling'. gaibthi cloich isin tailm, a Lóig 'Put a stone into the sling, O Loeg'! Seirglige Conculainn.—Ed.

TROGEIN ('daybreak') i.e. gein 'offspring' and trog 'to bring forth' [?] i.e. the rising of the sun, and this is the brilliance before the sun in the morning.

B has: 7 as *gein*ither a ruithni riasin gréin isin matain 'and from it is born the brilliance before the sun in the morning'. As to trog, it is glossed by clann infra s. v. Traigli.—Ed.

TORB quasi turb i.e. a troop or number.

The meaning is that torb, W. torf 'a crowd', is from Lat. turba, ῥῆβη.—Ed.

TIPRA ('a well') quasi topra [i.e. water bursts (tobruchta) from it], or teipersiu 'a springing'.

From B.—A is corrupt here: tipra gen. tiprat, dat. tiprait, is an ant-stem.—Ed. Still a living word: also written tibra, tiobraid and tobar: enters largely into the topographical names.—O'D. deissetar in chléirich icon tiprait 'the clerics sat by the well', Trip. Life of Patrick. Manx chibbyr.—Ed.

TOTH every feminine word and every female, quod est nomen membri muliebris.

So O'Clery.—O'D. root TU.—Ed.

TROETH [B; traaeth A] i.e. everything neutral and every neuter.

TUILM i.e. muliebre membrum.

TAURGEIN [tuirigin B] i.e. a king.

[TUIRIGIN i. e.] Twili-gein i.e. a mouth (gin) that fills (tolín) with truth out of nature, so that it is made one with the truth of the scripture. [Aliter] Tuirigin i.e. tur-gina i.e. a tongue. Aliter Tuirigin ('a brehon') quasi gein a tuir, i.e. as there is a great tower supporting a house and many arms out of it, sic his house is the present world; this then is the tower, the truth of the law of nature. These are the many arms from the tower, the various meanings and various ways of judicature.

TUIRIGIN also i.e. a king, as is said in Duil Roscadach: Ni tulach fri tuirigin tuigethar tuile mara muirne (a) "Not a hill for a king who perceives great floods of spears" (b).

(a) The three last words are cited by O'Davoren s. v. Muirne. The passage in A is corrupt.—Ed.
(b) 'It is no addition to a king to pass over the waves of the briny sea'.—O'D.

(Aliter) Tuirigin i.e. torracht-gein i.e. a birth that passes from every nature into another (a) i.e. a birth of the true nature (b). Ut dixit Fachtna son of Senchaid: Fuirem gein torrachta doreith aicned noll o adam conimteit tre gach naimsir nadamra cobetha brath, berid aicned enbethæ di cach duil derb deisin oen connoe .i. cossin duine ndedenaig [ndedenach F] bias cobruindi brathæ 'he gives a transitory birth which has traversed all nature from Adam (c) and goes through every wonderful time down to the world's doom. He gives a nature of one life ..... (d) to the last person who shall be on the verge of judgment'.

Aliter Turigein, i.e. toerae-gein i.e. a child næra (eræ ?) i.e. a child that is born, i.e. his two feet before him [and his head at the end (e)]. That child then puts forth its columns, like a sentence i.e. the brehon repeats a judgment of true nature and a poet's comment: these (are) the two feet of the judgment (f): its head at the end i.e. the testimony of the canon.

A bad thing (is) any sentence that is passed which is not wrought up after industrious reading, which is not accompanied by the holy canon, which is not guaranteed by a noble apostle (g), which is not strengthened by the Holy Spirit;
and every thing is pure which harmonizes with the canon.

This is the last word in the Bodleian copy.—O'D.

TEIST [teist B] ('a witness') a teste.

tesst, Z. 61: cáin-teist 'bonus testis' Z. 826: o testaib coraib, Senchas Mór 266. W. tyst, Bret. test.—Ed.

TURUD ('dry weather') .i. e. tur-shulh .i. e. tur everything dry and sulh 'weather'.

F has taurad, A, tuarad, B turud. Sulh 'weather' occurs supra, s. v. Fle Chad. tur is probably = du + ARu: cf. Lat. arēo, aridus.—Ed.

TORC a nomen for a heart, ut dixit Etan, daughter of Diancecht, Im foindam mo thuirc i. e. as to the palpitation which is on my heart.

B has I fondam mo thuirc .i. i fogluasacht mo cride. F has ni fō in dam dom mo thuirc .i. mo chridi im chliab cofil for crith ('of my heart in my breast which is trembling'). O'Clery has not only torc .i. croidhe 'heart', but tore .i. eineach no aghaidh 'face'. So O'Dav. 121.—Ed.

TREFHOCAL [Trefhocla F. trefocal B] i. e. three words that are in it, i. e. two words of praise to counteract [?] the reproach which the third word causes i. e. the word of reproach and satire.

- (a) Gein torracht [i. i.] torroich as gach aignid inlaill B.—Ed.
(b) 'A mouth that resolves the difficulties of another's mind that is the person of natural truth'.—O'D.
(c) 'The mouth which resolves the difficulties of great nature has laid down from Adam'.—O'D.
(d) 'To every creature that is certain from one to another'.—O'D.
(e) ? a chend fodeold, F and B.—an agrippa.—Ed.
(f) 'He is the pronouncer of judgments of natural truth, and it is the obscure words of the poet that dictate the judgment here'.—O'D.
(g) 'Nothing is right which by judgment is not awarded, which is not according to full learning arranged, which with pure canon is not.....which with the noble (apostle) is not practicable'.—O'D.

TAURTHAIT ('an inadvertent assault') i. taurachtither ('it is.....') i.e. verbi gratia (a), thou makest a throw from thee to hit (?) anything (b) whatsoever. An animal is suddenly roused (c) before it; and was wounded or struck or killed by it from this occurrence (?) then is said Taurthait or turachur.

TIGRADUS i.e. the last responsibility (d).

This should be tig-rathus (or, as in F, Tigrathos) see tigba and cf. rath rathachas 'security'.—Ed.

TIGBA i.e. everything last, this is tigradus i.e. he who parts from the treasure (frisín main) or from the person last.

cf. H. 3.18, p. 74, col. 1: Tigh i. cach focenn nderid ('every conclusion of an end').—Ed.

TUGEN [tuigen B] quasi Togen i.e. a toga; toga enim est genus vestis pretiosi. Aliter tuigen i.e. tuige én 'covering (tuige) of birds' (én), for it is of skins of birds white and many-coloured that the poets' toga is made from their girdle downwards, and of mallards' necks and of their crests from the girdle upwards to their neck.

Seems cognate with the Gaulish name Tugnatus and the Ir. verb ind-tuighther (gl. induitur) Z. 465. The latter part of the article I translate from B: oa cris sis 7 do braigidib cailech loichen 7 dia cuirib o cris suas co(a)mbraghit.—Ed.

Manx tap, tappes 'quick' 'active'.—Ed.

TAMHLACHTA i.e. tam-shlechte i.e. a plague that cut off the people in that plain) i.e. in a great mortality during which the people used to go into the great plains that they might be in one place yet before death, because of their burial in those plains by those whom the mortality did not carry off. For if each of them were dead, one after another in his own place, they would not bring them to churches, for the people who were alive after them would not be able to bury them; et inde Tamlachta nuncupatur.

As don duinibadh sin muintire Parrt(h)alóin adberar tamlechte fer nEreann, Chron. Scot. p. 8. Tám-lechte ('plague-graves', tám = tabes) is probably the right reading.—Ed.

TENDÁL i.e. tene dál i.e. a flocking (dál) to fire (tene) i.e. to the place where the tendal is kindled.

O'D conjectures 'a concourse of people at a signal fire'.—O'Clery has Teannadal i. tene dhál i. dál no triall go teinidh, a 'bonfire', perhaps.—Ed.

Additional Articles from B.

TRAIG ('foot') a tractu vel quasi ter rig i. rig terram ar isi benas fri lar ('for it strikes against ground').

(a) Aroec friaré 'into a brake at any time'.—O'D; but aroec is verbum, v: ároec supra, and B here has 'verbi gratia'.—Ed.

(b) Do-ermáistein F and B, 'do urmaiste' A. I rather think this means 'to aim at' and then to purpose: cf. tuiseal ho ermaistein Airinne Z. 1084, and ro-urmháisteidh, O'D's suppt. s.v. Urmháisteir.—Ed.

(c) Docuithir 'happened to be'.—O'D.

(d) In his Suppt. to O'R. O'D defines Tigradus as 'the person who has last seen any thing lost or missing'.—Ed.

traig gen. traiged dat. pl. traighib: a t-stem, W. troed pl. treid: Corn. troit, troys, pl. treys, Bret. troed pl. treid, cf. Gaul. vertragus, Gr. ῥέχω, Goth. thragja, root TRAGH.—Ed.

TRUID ('a starling') on treod imbi asberar ('it is so called from the flock wherein it is') no on traide .i. on luas doní ('from the haste it makes').

Now druid cf. W. drudwy.—O'D. Manx truillag, Bret. tréd and dréd.—Ed.

TRU quasi do ru .i. doig a tuitim ('likely his fall') a verbo ruo vel tiru arti tuitme ata ('about (?) to fall he is') vel a troia [Troja?] dicitur .i. ar a mince a hairsen ('from the frequency of his standing still').

tru is understood to mean a wretched or miserable person.—O'D. am trú-sa tra olse 'I am a wretch indeed, says he'. Seirglige Conculainn: cf. perhaps A.S. threú afflictio, malum, calamitas.—Ed.

TRUAGH ('wretched') .i. tru agh .i. agusta(a) do gurab trú ('he is driven (?) until he is to be pitied').

W. and Corn. tru. Diez connects Fr. truand.—Ed.

toirse, toirsech Z. 585, 252, 1043.—Tor is probably cognate with Lat. tar-du-s.—Ed.

TRUAIL ('a scabbard') .i. dir uailli í ('due to pride is it').

TELLAIR ('the earth') i.e. a tellure.

Teallur, O'Clery, Tellur in H. 3. 18. p. 74 col. 2 ib. gen. tellrach, dat. tellraig supra s. v. Flaith and Senchas Mór p. 64. Corn. teller, tyller.—Ed.

TARATHAR ('an auger') quasi dair uath air .i. fuath na darach bis fair ('the hatred of the oak is upon it') .i. arasicesi ém ['for its cuttingness indeed'].

O. W. tarater now taradyr, Corn. tardar, Br. tarar, Gr. ῥέπερον, Lat. terebra for terefra, terethra, Kuhn, Zeitschrift, XIV. 218.—Ed.

TONN ('a wave') a verbo tundo vel a tondeo .i. ar berraid in fer don murbach ('for it shaves the grass fér, from the seamarsh [?]').

pl. tonna Z. 263, 1040, Fiacc's hymn, l. 4. W. ton, O. W. pl. ir tonnou (gl. aequora). The glossographer seems right in comparing tundo, root TUD, whence Tυδεύς, Per-tunda etc.—Ed.

TURESC ('a saw') .i. taresc .i. tairis tescas cach ní no diriuch tescas ('what cuts everything across it (b). Or what cuts straight').

Lives in Ulster: obsolete elsewhere.—O'D.

TULACH ('a hill') quasi tul uach .i. uacht inti ('cold in it') 7 sí na tul .i. nocht ar is tul gach nocht ('and it tul i.e. naked, for tul (c) is everything naked').

TAIRSECH ('threshold') .i. tairis astech tiagar ('over it inwards people pass').

a derivative from a form tars = Lat. trans.—Ed.

TENGA ('tongue') .i. te angabann sí ('hot wherein it resides') .i. in bel tall ('the mouth there') (d).

(a) v. supra p. 115, s. v. Magh. (b) 'backwards'.—O'D. (c) cf. W. tylased 'poor', 'needy'.—Ed. (d) 'within'.—O'D.

Gen. tengad, a t-stem, cognate with Latin ta-n-go: Manx chengey (ch as in English). O'Clery has the form ting .i. teanga.—Ed.

TROID .i. obann í no luath ('sudden is it, or quick') unde dicitur tiefa intraithe .i. coluath ('he will come in-troite i.e. quickly') vel quasi trú ait .i. ait i la troich ('it is pleasant to a wretch').

Troid now signifies 'a fight'. The phrase i traidé [the substantive occurs supra s. v. Truid] is used by the 4 Masters, A.D. 1590, for 'quickly', 'instantly'.—O'D.

TRAILL ['a thrall'] .i. a nomine trulla .i. lossat ('a kneading-trough') .i. ar doíre a fognama ('for the slavishness of its service').

O'D says traill means 'a drudge, a trull [P], a harlot' [P], but tráill 'servus vel serva' is living in the Highlands. O'Clery also errs about tráill, glossing it by losad. O'Mulconry (H. 2.16, col. 97) has cacht .i. cumal .i. ban-traill 'a female thrall'.—Ed.

TACCAD .i. ticaid i.e. ar ti cadhussa bis no ar ti chuad ata ('watching for honour or for fame [?] he is').

Obscure: the verb taccu, Z. 885, may perhaps be connected.—Ed.

TIR ('land') i.e. a terra.

Tír, the common word for land as contra-distinguished from sea, water.—O'D. Manx cheer, W. and Corn. tir, Osc. teerúm, Beitr. II, 158.—Ed.

TUNTI LIN a verbo tundo.

O'D conjectured that this was a smachtin or mallet for pounding flax, and he (?) writes in the margin 'tuinte lin is a living word for 'a lock of hair', and 'menaiith 7 tuinn 'awl and end'. He afterwards thought it 'a lock of flax'.—Ed.

TRAIGLI ['shoe-latchet'] .i. traig a lethet ('a foot is its breadth') no da raigled doberar fair ica beim fein dia thoebaib ('or two scourgings it receives in striking itself against its sides') no trog ialle .i. a ialla fein ise a trog .i. a clann ('its own thongs, this is its trog i.e. its children').

Traighle gl. corrigia (=W. carai), Ir. Glosses No. 74.—Ed.

TAST ('silence' [?]) .i. tae astas hé ('silence stops it [?])

tost is 'silence', perhaps cognate with W. g-osteg.—Ed.

tiag [better tiach (gl. pera, Ir. Glosses No. 41)] is borrowed from théca, Θήκη.—O'D. W. twyg 'a garment'. B also contains this: Tiag quasi teg vel a nomine graeco custodia.—Ed.

TON ('anus') a tonitro .i. on torainn bis inti ('from the thunder that is in it') vel a tono fograigim ('I make a noise').

tin=W. tin.—O'D. Corn. tyñ. The etymology reminds one of John of Gaddesden's for peritoneum, viz. 'juxta tonantem' (Morley, English Writers, II. 66).—Ed.

TARRACH .i. uamnach ('timid', 'fearful') quia fit tor .i. ecla ('fear').

cf. with tor, τρώ, terreo, terror.—O'D. Tarrach from **tarsáco* may well be connected with these words (τρί(σ)ω, **terseo*, **tersor*) which come from the root tras whence Skr. trasámi, trasyámi; but tor seems from the shorter root tar, whence Skr. tarala 'tremens'.—Ed.

TIMPAN .i. tim .i. sail ('willow') 7 ban .i. umae bis inti ('brass which is in it') vel quasi simpan a symphonia .i. on bindius ('from the harmony').

'A small stringed instrument' O'Don. supp. to O'R. Hence timpanack (gl. timpanista), Ir. Glosses No. 6 and p. 153, where the phrase tiompan téad-bhinn 'sweetstringed timpan' is cited from The Battle of Moy-Lena. How did tympanum ever get to mean a stringed instrument? In the Duil Iathne ninan is glossed by tiompan and piplen-nan by tiompanan.—Ed.

TAGRA ('discussion') quasi dagra .i. da n-agra bis ann ('two arguments that are in it').

O. Ir. tacrae means 'arguments' (deg-tacrae, Turin No. 81) from do-ad-GAR-ae—Ed.

TUSTALL .i. ar tustoltair riasin leim ('for ... before the leap').

Tustare 'pulse', Ducange, may possibly throw light on this obscure gloss.—Ed.

TERMONDD .i. tirma a maine cin a fliuchad imuich ('dry its treasures without being wet outside').

tearmonn is said to mean 'sanctuary', 'protection' in O'D's supp. to O'R.—bid derack do termain (leg. termonn?) 'illustrious is thy asylum' O'Davoren's gl. s. v. Derack. Probably borrowed from Lat. termo.—Ed.

TAIRE ('belly') arinni tairrether ind cach biad ('because all food is collected [?] in it').

W. tor and v. supra p. 102, s. v. Lethech.—Ed.

TAR .i. ole ('evil') unde rothar .i. ro ole ('very bad').

TORRACH ('pregnant') quasi tairt recht .i. ro-racht a bru immon ngein ('her womb reached around the child' (a)).

Manx torragh.—Ed. W. torog 'big-bellied'.—O'D.

TREFOT .i. eriu 7 manann 7 albu ('Ireland and Mann and Scotland') unde dicitur trefot .i. tri foide meini dibertæ as cach tir dib condenta cœnaicde dib tre druidecht 7 rl. ('three sods of ore which were brought from each country of them so that one fabric (b) was made of them through magic' etc.) inde dictum est ag togail bruigne da dergæ ('at the demolition of Bruighin da Derga') Maidfe riala fuada. Cia asberar din fuata ('she then who is called Fuata') rectius Fotla dicitur quæ regina [erat] tertia istarum insularum. Tres enim erant reginæ .i. Ere 7 Fotla 7 Banba. Lege gabala erend ('the conquests of Ireland') si vis plenius scire.

The story about the three sods of ore is now unknown. Trevot (Trefoid) in the Co. Meath is the locality at which the magical case (aicde) was placed. The story called the demolition of Bruighin Da Derga or Da Bearga, is preserved in two vellum mss. in the Library of Trin. Coll. Dublin, H. 2. 16 and H. 3. 18, and also in Lebar na h-Uidre in the Library of the Royal Irish Academy [and will, it is hoped, soon be published by Mr. Hennessy]. The event took place 25 years B. C. according to Tighernach. The fort was situate on the Dohair ('Dodder'), and a part of the name is still preserved in Bohernabreena, a well-known place on that river, near Dublin. Fodla was a Tuatha dé Danann queen.—O'D.

Here O'D inserts (I know not from what source) the article Tromdhe .i. Dei tutelares .i. de urlair no de didin 'floor-gods or gods of protection'.

(a) 'her womb is big with young'.—O'D.

(b) 'article'.—O'D.

SEPTIMA DECIMA LITTERA.

USSARB i.e. death : inde dicitur in the Amhra Conri Rí rodet doussairb in ulltaib i.e. Conrí came by his death from Ulstermen.

So O'Clery. See H. 3. 18 for the Amhra Conri.—O'D. In sarb I suspect the Skr. strīh 'to hurt' (which Bühler has lately found in the Āpastamba-sūtras) from STARBH, sterben, starve. The prefix us would then be by assimilation from ud (cf. ύδρεος from ύδρεος, A.S. ut, Eng. out) which Siegfried saw in the Ir. oscrad.—Ed.

UDMAT[H] .i. ud(d)amnad 'fastening or enclosing' [?], a bar upon the cattle so that they are tied in the middle [?].

Guesswork: A seems corrupt here: B has: udmad .i. ud 7 damnad .i. crand ar lias, ('a bar on a cattleshed') .i. gobung gaibther forsin crand condemnaiter anude i comulg. F, has: Udmad .i. ud 7 damnad .i. crann ar lias .i. gobenn gaibthir forsin cethrae condemnaiter anude i cumung 'a gobenn which is put on the cattle so that their úds (heads?) are tied in a pound' (P): cf. cumann 'a cattle pound', Senchas Mór, p. 268: damnad has been put by Bopp with Skr. dāman 'rope': cf. also κη-δεμνον.—See also O'Davoren s.v. udhma.—Ed.

UIDIM i.e. a name for the hole through which goes the bar that is on the hurdle when it is being closed.

B has: Udim .i. nomen dondroi triasa teit in crand bis forsin cleith ocon udmad no occa dunad.—Ed.

UR i.e. three things it means (a): úr, first, i.e. earth, and úr every thing new, unde dicitur imb úr 'fresh butter', and úr everything evil, unde dicitur lan-daerthae [lán dosiathach F] cach n-úr 'fully condemnable is everything úr i.e. everything evil.

These three meanings are not yet obsolete: úr 'earth', now usually written uir, is often applied to the mould of a churchyard (b). The second meaning is common in Connaught, where they call the new moon gealach úr and new town baile úr; but in the S. úr means 'fresh' as im úr 'fresh butter', feoil úr 'fresh meat'. The third meaning is generally used as a prefix in compounds, as urghrána.—O'D. In urghrána 'valde deforme', O'Molloy, 99, the ur is = the O. Ir. intensive prefix air, aur, er, and has nothing to do with úr 'evil', which stands, perhaps, for pú-r, root pú (Skr. puy) whence

(a) 'So called'.—O'D.

(b) In a note on the Amra Cholúimchille (Leb. na huidre, 12a, 2) it is said of Columba's grave: no-icad a drucht no a ur ar cach ngalar 'its dew or its mould used to heal from every disease'. And in the Bodleian Tripartite Life: is hé cetna marb dochuaid fo úir cluana maic nois 'he is the first dead man that went under (the) mould of Clonmacnois'.—Ed.

πίδα, Lat. pus, pu-teo, Goth. fu-l-s, foul. With the second meaning 'fresh', úr = Manx oor, W. ir, and, perhaps, as Siegfried thought, ὕψος. To úr in this sense I would refer húrda (gl. viridarium), húrdæ (gl. viridia), úrdatu (gl. virore) Z. 66, n-uraigedar (gl. cui virere) Z. 1070. With the first sense 'earth' úr, Manx ooir, is perhaps = Skr. urvá 'earth' lit. 'the Wide', εἰρηία. But the O.N. aur 'earth' in Alvismál, 11, should not be forgotten.—Ed.

UCH i.e. ab eo quod est aucha .i. aurgat feda.

The aurgat feda is the herb now called airgead luachra or meadow-sweet [σπειραία] In the N. feadh gen. feadha is used to denote strong rushes of which they make rush-lights.—O'D.

UBALL ('an apple') quasi aball : Aball autem from a town of Italy whereunto is the name Abellanum : thence they brought the seed of the apples. Or uball i.e. eo-ball, eo 'a tree' [yew], and ball 'a member'. Or uball i.e. Eva-eil i.e. because Eve was corrupted by it at the transgression.

See Ebel Beitr. II. 170, and add to the words there cited avallo (gl. poma) from Endlicher's Gaulish glossary, and the Manx ooyl.—Ed.

UIM i.e. brass.

The m hard, as appears from the reading of F. viz. uimm : the Skr. ambh 'sonare' is not belegt.—Ed.

UINCHI ETHA i.e. scarcity of corn.

uinchi may perhaps be cognate with the Skr. ana 'wanting' : etha gen. sg. of ith 'frumentum', an u-stem = Zend pitu.—Ed.

UCHT N-OSNAE i.e. ucht osmenta, i.e. a thinking which he thinks i.e. the scrutiny (with which) the poet scrutinizes the composition (aircetal). The place, then, wherein is the scrutiny has the nomen ucht n-ossnae.

Additional Articles from B.

UASSAL ('noble') .i. uassa fil ('he is over them').

O'D renders : 'he is high' : usal points to an Old Celtic szalo : W. uchel to uzelo : of Uxello-dunum.—Ed.

UA ('grandson') oo e oldas in mac 7 intathair ar is toisechu mac et athair. oldas úa ('younger is he than the son and the father, for the son and the father are prior to the grandson').

haue (gl. nepos) Z. 1029.—Ed.

UATH .i. sce ('a white-thorn') ar imat a delg ('from the abundance of its thorns').

The glossographer refers to uath 'terrible'.—O'D.

UATNE .i. uait suigdigter (sic) indeilb.

O'D translates 'a column (uaithe), the place (ait) where the effigy is placed', sed qu. if the word is not uaithe 'childbirth', Senchas Mór, 194, 268.—Ed.

UALL ('pride') .i. o aille asberar ('from beauty it is called').

gen. uáilbe Z. 32, 76. Hence uallach 'superbus', ualligim 'arrogans sum'.—Ed.

UAIR ('hour') ab hora latine.

W. awr.—O'D. Corn. ur. The glossographer seems right here: but in the W. awr, not ur (u=ó, Z. 117, 118), the aw=á makes one think that we have a trace here of the Indo-European YĀRĀ (Zend yāre, Gr. ῥα). On the other hand, why is not the initial y preserved in awr?—Ed.

UILLIND ('elbow', 'the letter U') .i. uillin a fil and ('an angle that is there') .i. da cnaim no da fid ('two bones or two strokes').

W. elin, Lat. ulna.—O'D. ὀλίην, Goth. aleina.—Ed.

UTH ('udder') .i. ont shuth .i. on loimm asberar ('from the suth i.e. from the milk it is called') úth is cognate with Latin úter not uber.—Ed.

ULCHAI ('beard') .i. cai .i. tech ('house') na hoili ('of the oil ('cheek') is it').

Now obsolete.—O'D. tall tra patraico a ulcha do fíac ('P. shore for F. his beard') Pref. to Fíacc's hymn.—Ed.

ULAD ('sepulchre') .i. [int adnacal] uilli ['the bigger tomb'] no intadnacal aile ('or the other [?] tomb')

Still a living word for a stone tomb or a penitential station in the shape of a stone-altar. Several uladhs of this description are still to be seen in the island of Inishmurray in Sligo Bay.—O'D. gen. sg. ulaid im nemtiachtain do dénam ulaid cumdacht (cumdachta?) imin faith, Senchas Mór, p. 186, and see Battle of Moira, 298. I think aile here must be the gen. pl. of ail 'a stone'.—Ed.

USQA ('lard'?) quasi susge .i. geir ('tallow') suis .i. na muici ('of the pig').

URGAL .i. togbal ('raising up').

O'D. reads urgbhail. But urgal occurs in the phrase urgal cuirmthige (a), Senchas Mór, p. 230, where it is translated 'quarrel [P] in an alehouse'.—Ed.

UNACH quasi anech .i. nighe in á .i. in chind ar is á cach nard ('washing of the á, i.e. of the head, for á is everything high').

As to á v. Arad supra p. 1.—Ed.

URNAIGTHE ('prayer') .i. ab ore niges nech ('what washes (b) one ab ore') .i. ogin inti chanas ('from the mouth of him who says it').

O. Ir. airnigthe, ernaigthe, irnigthe: ernacde in the Book of Deir: arniged 'orabat', Fíacc, 26.—Ed.

UARAN ('a spring-well') .i. uar a en ('cold its en') .i. a uisque ('its water').

Still living: enters largely into topographical names, as Oran in the co. Roscommon, Oran-more in co. Galway, &c.—O'D. Manx f-arrane: uar 'cold' seems W. oer.—Ed.

URLA .i. ciab ('long hair') ar is for ur lues hi ('for it moves', lues, on the ur) .i. tosach ('beginning') quia fit ur .i. tuiscech ('beginning') 7 iar cach ndéidenach (c) ('and iar everything last').

urla is still a living word for the long hair of the head.—O'D.

(a) W. cwrw/dy.—Ed.

(b) 'one says (makes) it'.—O'D. But the glossographer refers to the purifying power of prayer.—Ed.

(c) Ms. ndéigenach.—Ed.

UNGA ('an ounce') ab uncia latine.

used in the Brehon laws etc. for an ounce of gold or silver.—O'D. uinge supra s.v. Briar, but unga Z. 312, 1076. Manx unns, W. uns.—Ed.

UGTAR ('author') ab augmento ar doni fein ní núa ('for he makes something new').

augtar Gildas, 8, augtortás 'auctoritas' Z. 460, 897: W. awdur, awdurdod.—Ed.

USTAING .i. uas toinges .i. na uaisle ca toinge immacomall ('the nobles swearing upon it to perform their agreements').

So in H. 3. 18. p. 79. col. 2.—Ed.

UCCA .i. aicci a oenar atá sé ('with him alone it is').

O'D leaves ucca untranslated; but I think it must be uca 'choice', Senchas Már, p. 48. ucca, ucu O'D. Supp. ugga H. 3. 18. p. 79. col. 2. ní uccu acht is faitsine 'it is not a choice but a prophecy', Z. 1058.—Ed.

UDBAIRT ('an offering') .i. uad beror 7 ní haicci bis ('from thee it is brought and not with him is it').

O. Ir. edbairt; edpairt (gl. oblatione) Z. 7, audbirt ('oblationem') Z. 8. O. W. aperth now aberth, root bhar.—Ed.

UMAL ('humble') quasi humilis latine: humilis quasi homo [leg. humo] cl. is.

W. uffel, Corn. huvel, M. Br. uuel. The influence exercised in umal from umil by u on the following l is interesting. The same phenomenon occurs in cucann from cuctan = coquina, scrutan from scrutinium: cubachail = cūbūcūlūm, cubad = cūbūcūm, rustach = rusticus: so where l follows: druad, the gen. sg. of druí 'a druid', from drued (= druídos), Samual, from Samuel, unga from unce = uncia (a). The sequence e, u becomes e, a: cf. escal from esculus, credal from credulus. The sequence u, o becomes u, a: cf. putar from putor, sdupar from stupor.—Ed.

UMA ('brass') ab humo ar is de uir do(g)nither ('for it is from earth it is made').

humae 'aes' Z. 445. humaide 'aeneus' Z. 765. W. efydd.—Ed.

UMDAIM .i. ab umbilico .i. imlicen ('navel').

The meaning of umdaim is doubtful—the nave of a wheel? the boss of a shield? im-lic-en, umb-il-icus, ὀμφ-αλός are closely connected.—Ed.

USSARB ('death') ut dixit quasi assorb .i. asa orba beres nech fae ('from his land he brings every pilgrim' (b)).

See this word supra p. 164. Orba is rather 'heritage' and fae 'prince':—Ed.

UIBNE .i. nomen do lestur bic ambi deog quasi ibni deog ar cech deidbli fil imberlae is an no ene dofuarasccuib ut est feran segene balene erene ibine dicitur fonindus arroichled iarom edhadh as con nderna ibne de. Sic dono suibne intan is do tuirid is dir .i. suibine arroichleth din edhadh ass conderdnad suibne nde ('nomen for a small vessel wherein is drink, quasi ibni 'a drink', for every diminutive which is in (the) language, it is an or

(a) mulenn Z. 740 seems carelessly written for mulenn. Colcaid, from culcīta, comes immediately from culcaid.—Ed.

(b) fae .i. deoraidhe, Mao Fírbis H. 2. 15.—O'D. but cf. foi supra p. 80.—Ed.

éne which it presents (a), ut est ferán 'manikin', segéne 'a little hawk', balléne 'a small vessel', eréne ['a little load']. Ibéne dicitur thus for afterwards edhadh ('the letter e') was elided from it, so that ibne was made thereout. Sic, moreover, suibne when it is applied to a column, i.e. suibine (b) [leg. suibéne] for e was elided then from it, so that suibne was made thereout').

The diminutival termination éne may represent an Old Celtic ignio or icnio: cf. the Gaulish Tessignius, Tessicniu, Beitr. III. 429. There are many other diminutives besides those in -án and -éne: those in -én and -ín, in -cán (supra p. 146), in cne, as in ailcne, in -nán (supra p. 1) in -nat (as in derc-nat p. 57) in -óc (supra p. 131), and see Zeuss, p. 282.—Ed.

Hyt yma gan borth duw, W. S. 21. Aust, 1867.

(a) 'terminates in an or ene'.—O'D.; but cf. suarasobas (= do-so-ar-as-gabas) 'proferunt', Z. 867.—Ed.
 (b) cf. the name Suibine mac mailae humai.—Ed.
